FOSSIL ANIMALS GEOLOGISTS' KEY

STUDY OF REMNANTS OF ANOTHER EPOCH HAVE DISTINCT BEARING ON PERTINENT ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

The work of the United States geological survey in palentology—the study of fossil remains of animals and plants that lived ages ago—has a distinct bearing on some of the very practical economic problems of today

The descriptive Palenotologic reports are often treated as "pure science," yet instructive, striking or tedious as may these delineations of of the groups of animal or plant life which lived on the globe in some particular epoch, there is not one of these papers describing the fauna of flora of a formation that does not prove sooner or later to possess practical value and to be essential to geology in its constantly increasing refinement of study and results.

Without paleontology the geologic classification of formations, their correlation, and the determination of their mutual relations would be impossible. In fact, real and symmetrical progress in geology is impossible without corresponding inter-related development and refinement of its handmaid paleontology. The study of the economic geology of any region of complicated structure is blind and inconsequent unless the time relations of the strata concerned are known. These relations are indicated by the fossils which the strata contain.

Most Beautiful Women in Capital

(Photos by Harris & Ewing)

Mrs. Hugh Ronald French (left) and Miss Kathleen Elliott (right) have been pronounced the most beautiful women in Washington by C. H. de Lyon Nicholls, promoter of the Society of Colonial Cavaliers. Mrs. French was Ida M. Wynne, daughter of Robert J. Wynne, formerly consul general in London. It was in that city that she was married to Lieutenant French, a noted officer of the British army. She was born in California, but has spent most of her life in Washington and London. Mrs. French is a brunette.

Miss Kathleen Elliott of Racine, Wis., who was named by Mr. Nicholls as the other of the two most beautiful American women, is visiting Congressman and Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper of Wisconsin. She is a blonde.

LOCAL BOOSTER SUPPORTS HALLOCK

fessor's Diller's direction it was thoroughly charted from shore to the highest crest of the crater rim of Wizard Island. Here, according to this geological research, Mount Mazama stood, towering several thousand feet above its sisters, Shasta, McLoughlin or Hood, the molten lava pouring from its vents emptying out the mighty craters until a total of almost twenty cubic miles of solid matter had disappeared, burning out a hollow into which the crown plunged, its topmost crater becoming the extinct crater of Wizard Island."

Here Mr. White proceeded to connect the theory of Crater Lake's ebullition with the dicta explained by Dr. Hallock.

"It was," he said, "this lava flow from Mazama, another from Shasta, possibly others from sources not now visible, that overran the whole region where had grown and prospered the first mighty tribes of humanity, building cities, developing agriculture, establishing commerce, attaining advancement in the arts, education and sciences.

"The terrific flow of lava poured down to the southern plains and across the eastward slopes, for, probably to the westward as now, stood the barriers of the lower portion of the Cascade range and the Siskiyou group.

"It must also be suggested at once that there are other established facts tending to confirm the Hallock theory. The famous 'Calaveras skull,' unearthed in geological strata that seemed to determine absolutely that human life had existed in that part of the world at an earlier period than has been proved elsewhere on the face of the earth was dug up at a point not more than 150 miles south of Klamath. Thus, you will see, a generally accepted evidence of early [illegible] question is in harmony [illegible] conclusion."

Prior to coming to Klamath Falls last year Westerlund was employed in Old Mexico, and he left here to accept his former position. With the outbreak of hostilities he came to the conclusion that there are far worse places than Klamath Falls.

PORTLAND [illegible] LEARN TO [illegible]

SCHOOL FOR INSTRUCTION OF POLITICAL MATTERS IS OPENED AT THE CITY HALL—TO CONTINUE FOR SOME TIME

PORTLAND, Feb. 15.—To give woman voters an opportunity to learn the inside workings of politics, a school of instruction was opened in the city hall. Sessions will be held during the municipal campaign at which addresses will be made by men prominent in politics.

Among important subjects to be considered are the charter law, organization of political parties, methods of voting, qualifications of candidates and the various initiative and referendum propositions which will be submitted to the voters. Anybody who desires may attend, and if the women manifest a desire to support the undertaking, similar organizations will be established in other parts of town. The school of instruction will be non-political. It has been started by a number of South Portland club women.

PRISONERS WANT TO GO TO FRONT

INMATES OF ALCATRAZ ISLAND PENAL INSTITUTION ASK A CHANCE TO SERVE IN EVENT OF INTERVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—The possibility of intervention in Mexico has stirred unrest among the military prisoners on Alcatraz Island. In an open letter published here they ask "one more chance."

"True, there are many here who are not and never will make good citizens," runs the letter in part, "but about one-third of them would make as fine a fighting unit as there is in the army, a layout that any officer might be proud to take the field with.

"Many are here because they are poor, ignorant foreigners, easy-going, easy-spending men. The monotony of life on a post was too much for them. They know how to care for themselves in the field, know a rifle and how to use it. Many have had baptismal fire in Cuba, China and the Philippines.

"Those with good records should be given a chance to make good. They would know that the eyes of the army were upon them. What we want is a chance to serve in action and then retire to civil life with a good discharge, instead of a 'bobtail.'"

George Kistler was in from his Pine Grove ranch Tuesday.

Assurance of Accuracy
The first consideration in purchasing a watch is to get a reliable timekeeper. It makes no difference how little you spend for a watch it is money wasted unless you can depend on it to keep somewhere near correct time.
In the manufacture of a watch [illegible] of the chief expenses is the cost of justing and regulating. There are however, inexpensive watches of merit. These are constructed along simple lines, and are dependable time keepers. Other cheap watches [illegible] gotten up in a showy way are not worth carrying.
