SALEM BACK YARDS GROW WALNUTS TO SUPPLY WHOLE CITY

SALEM, Ore., Nov. 1.—Sufficient walnuts to supply every man, woman and child in Salem with two and a half pounds have been grown in the parking spaces and yards within the city limits, a survey of Salem reveals.

Approximately 45,000 pounds of nuts were grown on the city's shade trees this year. It is estimated that this is more than enough to supply the entire needs of the city for the coming year. The crop is valued at $12,000.

Local authorities believe that there are enough trees growing in Salem parking spaces to plant an orchard of 60 acres. There are believed to be over 1,000 trees within the city limits.

In order to determine which varieties of walnuts will do the best locally, many of the growers have been doing considerable experimental work. One grower has a dozen different varieties growing on one tree.

Royal Plans Start Talk
Prince Collects Jewels

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The fact that the Prince of Wales is collecting pearls for a necklace has furnished another topic of absorbing interest for discussion over the tea cups, and there are flutters in the hearts of those interested in the royal matrimonial plans.

It will be remembered that Lord Lascelles did exactly the same thing before the announcement of his engagement to Princess Mary. But even with that precedent, it is not safe to assume that any exciting news will follow the revelation of the prince's interest in such matters, for pearl collecting among the English nobility is a time honored occupation.

Many priceless collections of pearls have been owned by Englishmen in the past, but very few of them are intact at the present time. The Duchess of Devonshire still possesses the famous Devonshire pearls which were collected 50 years ago at a cost said to have been 50,000 pounds.

The Duke of Buckingham, during the reign of Charles I, was able to collect the most famous pearls then in England but at the time of the Commonwealth they were taken to Paris and sold to various dealers there.

Matching pearls in the present day is a hard task and, of course, it requires a very long and well filled purse. Even when money is no object it requires much time and infinite patience. All the markets of the world must search, and each pearl must be considered in relation to all the others to form a perfect necklace.

WHEN THE REV. HALL WENT PICNICKING

What Caused the Argument

Here's the start of the race between the Canadian Bluenose and the Henry Ford, American entry, off Gloucester, Mass. The Henry Ford (right) won. Captains of both fishing schooners considered it a race, but officials declared it "no race" since the skippers disregarded their signal to return after the start.

Today At The Liberty

"In the Name of the Law"

This is a picture of the American home, without which America would wither and decay. You have had stories of a mother's forgiveness and a father's sacrifice. Let us idealize here for you in this story—the Family. Let us picture for you that sweet sympathy; that bond of understanding which makes each American home, be it high or low, an empire of love; a treasure house of human kindness.

It is said that motion pictures must be salacious and unclean, or you, the public, will not be pleased. We have dared to differ. In our faith we will show you a clean, wholesome picture rich in drama, tense in its story, lovable in its characterizations. In its story it touches those big moments of life when the happiness of the Family trembles in the balance; when the shadow of pain looms threateningly. Again it pictures those days when the heart of the family is light and carefree with laughter; when contentment rests gently and the smoke of the hearthfire rises to a cloudless sky.

Let us then introduce—the American Family, as exemplified in "In the Name of the Law."
