PORTLAND TAKES ANGELS' SCALP

"Sheriff" Gets Knocked Out of Box by Wild and Wooly Beavers

(By The Associated Press)

Driving the Angels' latest pitching acquisition, "Sheriff" Peters off the mound in the seventh, Portland hammered out a 7 to 6 win over the southerners. Errors on the part of the Los Angeles infield paved the way for four of the Beavers' scores. Batteries: Couch and Fischer; Peters, Sanders and Sandberg.

The Seals combined five Seattle bobbles with Edwards' wildness to defeat the Indians, 5 to 3. Batteries: Edwards and Schmidt; May and McCree.

Hank Hulvey had the much stuff on the ball for Oakland and Hollywood triumphed, 10 to 0. Batteries: Hulvey and Murphy; Delaney, Crashead and Bool, Read.

The timely hitting of Rod Whitney and the airtight hurling of Barfoot enabled the Missions to take a hairline decision over Sacramento, 2 to 1. Batteries: Barfoot and Whitney; Kallio, Keefe and Koehler.

Big Leaguers Clout 17 Home Runs One Day

Led by the player who fanned for the final out in the last world series, the hitters of the major leagues have registered a total of 17 circuit blows for one day's games.

Tony Lazzeri's name led all the rest. The Yankee infielder who had the doubtful honor of making the last strikeout of 1926 made three runs in five times up against the White Sox at New York. Lazzeri's performance, which came within a single run of the record for number of homers in one game, featured a long drawn and thrilling battle which ended with the Yankees on the long end of a 12 to 11 score.

The Giants set back the Pirates with an 8 to 7 victory on the wings of Hornsby's over the fence clout in the ninth. Home runs by Webb and Wilson enabled the Cubs to down the Robins, 3 to 2, while Fothergill's circuit wallop started a rally which gave Detroit a 5 to 3 edge over the Red Sox. The Cardinals with Homers by Bottomley and Schulte had the home run advantage over the Braves, but the visitors tallied a greater number of shorter safe blows and won out 11 to 8. Concentrated hits by the Cincinnati Reds in the later innings accounted for their fourth straight victory 5 to 4 at the expense of the Phillies. Under a 7-5 beating by the Athletics, the St. Louis Browns descended to the second division.

The Senators' rookie pitcher, Lisenbee, had a bit the better of his duel with Hudkin, Cleveland youngster, and pulled out a 2 to 1 decision.

FIRST TWILIGHT GAME TONIGHT

"Cotton Pickers" to Meet "Bankers" on Fair Grounds

"The Cotton Pickers," who claim to be the fastest aggregation of stellar performers ever drafted from the local clothing stores will meet the "Bankers" in the first of a series of Twilight baseball games, this evening at the Fair Grounds at six o'clock.

That the game is to be a bitter one, crowded with plenty baseball in a five-inning game, is the opinion of local fans who have watched the boys in practice.

Lineups for the contending teams are:

Cotton Pickers		Bankers
Kennett	c	Ham
Greene	p	Offield
Brady	1b	Drew
Boatman	2b	Gerber
Nohd	3b	Glover
Walsh	ss	Dalton

Barth, Joseph and Zlake, outfield for the Cotton Pickers. Porter, Beard and Hackland, outfield for the bankers.

"Is Man a Machine?" was the subject of a debate in an eastern city. Yes, but the driver sits in the back seat.

The curtain raiser will be between Eddie Peck and Dixie Henley.

De Autremont Trial Livened By Court Tilt

COURT HOUSE, Jacksonville, Ore., June 9. (AP)—At the opening of the re-trial of Hugh De Autremont, charged with the murder of Charles O. (Coyle) Johnson, during the progress of the Siskiyou tunnel train robbery in 1923, the defense interposed a challenge against Robert J. Luke, rancher of Ashland, which was denied by the court.

The defense, through attorney John A. Collier of Portland, asked Luke if he had not at lunch in Jacksonville, Wednesday, expressed a decided opinion to Richard Payne, of Medford, on the guilt or innocence of the defendant and if he had not expressed a decided opinion on the merits of the case, to several people. The venireman answered somewhat evasively "That he probably had," and "did not remember," and no definite answer could be drawn from him.

When the court denied the defense challenge, the court stated "that under the peculiar circumstances confronting us, I will overrule the challenge."

Luke, in response to interrogations from the bench said that he would be able to try the case fairly upon the evidence.

A spirited tilt arose between counsel over what Luke had answered in reply to queries on his qualifications.

The jury box was filled with 12 men when W. C. Clemons, lumberman of Eagle Point, was drawn.

Hugh Whistles When Told of Twins' Capture

COURT HOUSE, JACKSONVILLE, Ore., June 9. (AP)—Hugh De Autremont, on trial for first degree murder as a result of the Siskiyou tunnel train dynamiting, received the news of the capture of his twin brothers—Ray and Roy—with a whistle, according to Sheriff Ralph Jennings and made no comment. The sheriff handed De Autremont a night extra of a Medford evening newspaper with the words:

"Have you heard that?"

The debonair defendant read the article eagerly, according to the official, and then started whistling. Paul De Autremont, father of the De Autremont boys, adverse to being quoted said:

"Let them produce them. The twins have been caught before. If they have them let them produce them. I don't want to say anything about it."

Defense counsel viewed the capture in the same light, and with counsel for the state, agreed it would have no effect upon the present trial.

Hugh came into court this morning with no change in his demeanor, but appeared wearied.

2 DE AUTREMONT BROTHERS ADMIT IDENTITY TODAY

chance, because he knew what was ahead of him.

Desperate

"If you had come inside the house I would have killed you and then shot myself. My life is worth nothing to me now, for I know what I am up against," the officers quoted him as saying.

Roy, who was arrested in an employment agency and taken to police headquarters for finger printing, remarked: "Well, it looks like some of you guys are in for a reward."

Twenty thousand dollars was on the heads of the brothers when the arrests were made.

Ray, who had married an Ironton, Ohio, girl since the holdup, under the name of Clarence Goodwin, had never revealed his identity to her, and when news came back to her from the police station of the charge against her husband she was prostrated. She was left at home with her one year old child when Pomeroy knocked at the door last night, said he was an insurance adjuster and asked her husband to go with him to a hospital, explaining that Roy had been injured in an accident.

In the car waiting at the curb was Rob Cunningham, Steubenville chief of police and two detectives. De Autremont stepped into the car and found himself facing a battery of guns. He submitted to arrest quietly.

At the police station he found Roy awaiting him, their long flight from the law at an end.

About the time of the arrest of Hugh De Autremont, the third member of the trio, who was captured in the Philippines some time ago, federal agents received a tip that Ray and Roy were in hiding in eastern Ohio. The men were located a short time ago, and had been under surveillance by United States department of justice agents. They were working in the Wheeler Steel Corporation Mill here under the names of Elmer and Clarence Goodwin.

For nearly four years the two, with a third brother, Hugh, recently captured in the Philippines, had been sought virtually around the world, with $20,000 in rewards over their heads. Reports of their capture from widely separated places had been so frequent that their name and the deed with which they were charged had become known probably as no others in modern criminal history.

Scores of men resembling the De Autremonts were arrested, but on each occasion it was found a mistake had been made and the twins remained free until federal agents and police traced them to a Steubenville steel mill, where they had been working under assumed names and with their hair dyed in an effort at disguise. Arrested late yesterday they admitted their identity and were held for arraignment.

Ray had married an Ohio girl, who was unaware of his real identity, and was living here with his wife and one year old child.

Cold Blooded Murder.

The two De Autremonts, with their younger brother Hugh, who is already on trial for murder at Jacksonville, Ore., were charged with one of the most cold blooded train holdups in the memory of the west.

It was on October 11, 1923, that a Southern Pacific passenger train was held up in a tunnel near Siskiyou, Ore., the mail car dynamited and three trainmen and the mail clerk killed. Just after the train had pulled out of the little station at Siskiyou and was entering the tunnel, two men boarded the tender of the engine, covered the engineer and firemen and compelled them to stop as the engine emerged from the far end of the tunnel, where a third bandit awaited with a supply of explosives.

The trio are charged with shooting down Sid Bates, the engineer; Marvin Seng, the fireman, and then pistoled C. O. Johnson, a brakeman. E. E. Dougherty, the mail clerk, perished when the mail car was dynamited. The desperadoes were forced to flee empty handed, however, when they were unable to enter the blazing and shattered car, but postal inspectors said they left behind evidence of their identity.

Then started an intensive man hunt which continued until Hugh was taken in the Philippines and his brothers were traced here. Hugh, who was only 19 at the time of the holdup, was serving in the army under an assumed name. He was returned to Jacksonville, where he now is undergoing his second trial for the murder of Brakeman Johnson.

The new army blouses have "graceful, flaring skirts," according to a news item. The skirt is an ancient form of dress that used to be a fad among women.
