JACOBSON TO ENTER CRATER SKI CONTEST

Was Winner Over Seven In 1927; Many Others Improve Style

FORT KLAMATH, Feb. 1. (Special)—Word has been received from McCloud, Calif., stating that he has just recently returned from Sweden and is in good shape to do some real ski racing. This news comes as a surprise because it was thought Jacobson's intention was to remain in the old country indefinitely.

The name of Manfred Jacobson was heralded all over the United States in February, 1927, when he won the first 42-mile ski race to Crater Lake lodge and return in 7 hours 34 minutes. Thirty-two ski runners lined up for the start of this race, in a raging blizzard that made it impossible to see but a few feet in any direction.

Jacobson Leads

Jacobson immediately took the lead and led the pack, breaking trail on his long narrow Swedish skis all the way to Crater Lake lodge. W. Nordquist and Nels Skjersaa followed closely on his trail.

Across the long flats, through the heavy timbered country and up the side of the Cascade mountains they chased him to the lodge, thinking perhaps that because he was breaking trail through the heavy snow the entire distance that he would surely be unable to stand the gaff in the high altitude, and they would outrun him on the descent.

Only Seven Finish

They never could catch Jacobson, and they finished Nordquist second and Skjersaa third, with Puckett and Francis in fourth and fifth place, respectively. Only even men completed the 42 miles in this first race. The others were scattered all along the trail between Fort Klamath and the lodge, some of them having become lost on the first few miles across the flats.

Jacobson again defeated all contestants in the 1928 race, lowering his own record made in 1927 from 7 hours 34 minutes to 6 hours 18 minutes. This record was smashed by Emil Nordeen last year when he won the race in 5 hours 57 minutes. It was endangered last year also by Nels Skjersaa, Bend, and Andy Myra, San Francisco, who made the run in 6 hours 25 minutes and 6 hours 29 minutes.

Many Will Enter

Both Nordeen and Skjersaa of Bend have so improved in their skiing since Jacobson won this race that either of them may be able to win over him. Andy Myra, from the Olympic club, San Francisco, had not done any skiing for years till a short time before the race last year, and he made a good showing, coming in third in 6 hours and 29 minutes.

John Peterson, one of the youngest skiers, also from the bay city, might be a dangerous rival. He finished fourth last year in 6 hours 30 minutes. Then there is Alex Pearson, the youngster representing Chiloquin last year, who is a whirlwind and might have been up in front but for a badly strained leg suffered in training. And then J. P. Linman and the Puckett boys are to be considered if they are trained. It would be folly to pick a winner in this coming event.

Always astonishing.

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. Turn to the back page and we'll explain the mistakes and tell you the word. Then you can see how near a hundred you bat.

Bend Plans First Winter Carnival For February 16

FORT KLAMATH, Jan. 30. (Special.)—The Sky Liners of Bend have completed plans for a ski tournament to be staged on their winter playground, February 16. They are featuring a 25-mile cross-country ski race.

It is quite likely that many of the entrants in Fort Klamath's 42-mile ski race will be well represented in all their minor event also. Many Fort Klamath and Chiloquin folks have already announced their intention of taking in Ben's first winter sports carnival.

Today's Markets

PORTLAND, Feb. 1. (AP)—Butter prices were again on the decline today. Standards, prime firsts and firsts went down 2c each at the Portland Produce Exchange. Extras were unchanged at 38c.

Egg prices appear steady at the declines announced Friday.

Reviewing the fruit and vegetable situation, the Portland bureau of the United States department of agriculture says:

"Fruit and vegetable prices and supplies are quite well stabilized, after last week's irregularities due to climatic conditions.

"The potato market is in a peculiarly stabilized condition. Shippers at Yakima valley points are unwilling to load their branded No. 2 potatoes (65 per cent No. 1) for less than about $39.00 per ton; and Portland jobbers apparently cannot pay over $43-$45 per ton, delivered at Portland. Thus, there appears to be little chance for fluctuation either up or down, in the immediate future. There is little speculative potato buying in the northwest at present. Yakima potatoes are obtaining rather wide distribution, with many carlot sales to British Columbia and the prairie provinces of Canada; also a few shipments to Texas.

"Early spring cauliflower acreage near Portland, which was already producing in limited volume during the first week of January, is reported as practically ruined by the cold weather during the middle of the month.

"Hothouse rhubarb from the Puget Sound district is more plentiful, and prices are declining to $3-3.25 per box."

Nylander, Stone Return From Meet

Hans Nylander, secretary-treasurer, and Karl Stone, manager of the Klamath Co-Operative Dairymen's association, returned yesterday from Corvallis where they attended a convention of buttermakers of the state.

Federal inspection of milk, state grading of cream and dairy refrigeration were the chief matters taken up at the meeting. All, it is thought, would benefit the producers.

A Detroit woman asked a divorce because her husband allowed four saxophone players to practice in the home. No wonder there was no harmony in that house.
