FUNNY BUSINESS

"It's quite a help to us in the meat shortage, sir!"

Tony, Famed Horse of Tom Mix, Put to Humane Death

SAN FERNANDO, Calif., Oct. 8 (AP) — Tony hadn't much to live for, anyway.

Tony, you see, was an old, decrepit horse two years ago when his master died, and he hasn't taken much interest in life since. So Wednesday they put him to death humanely, and that was the last of the famous team — Tom Mix and Tony the horse — that thrilled uncounted thousands of moviegoing youngsters, and adults, too, over a long span of years.

Tony was around 40 years old, and had been living in retirement for quite a while when his master, the old western film star, was killed in an auto accident. That really was Tony's finish, also. He was entrusted to the care of Ivan D. Parker, friend of Mix, and lived the horse's version of the life of Riley, but it didn't seem to matter.

He hadn't eaten well, his rheumatism had grown upon him, and he was nearly blind. So Wednesday, Parker reluctantly decided, was the last for Tony, who never won a derby or stake event, but who helped make more money for his master than any horse ever did.

Mix bought Tony, so the story goes, for $12 from a junk dealer. Mix used to credit the animal largely for his own rise to screen fame, which at its height saw the team earning $10,000 a week.

But now:

"It was a choice of seeing Tony's sufferings grow or putting him to rest," says Parker.

And who can say Tony hasn't earned his rest?

The school at Chemult is now closed and all children go to Gilchrist.

NEWCOMER, MAYBE

TACOMA, (AP)—The district attorney's office sent a telegram to Rufus Wood at Wenatchee, asking him to appear as a witness in a court trial.

Back from Wenatchee came this report: "Not known here, try Yakima."

(Ed's Note—Rufus Woods has been publisher of the Wenatchee Daily World for the past 36 years.)

The steel industry must think in terms of the steel industry, not of Bethlehem or Republic; and the automobile industry in terms of its industry, not of Ford, General Motors or Chrysler.—Roger Lapham, employer member national war labor board.
