Wissenback Picture Identified In PW Bulletin Sent Here

A picture of their son, S/Sgt. Darwin Wissenback, was identified by Mr. and Mrs. James Wissenback of Shady Pine in a Prisoner of War bulletin sent them by the American Red Cross. Darwin was shown with a number of other American airmen who had been shot down over Germany, but names were not published. Just now Darwin is at Stalag 17-B.

The Wissenbacks were cheered by a recent letter received from Darwin's buddy who was returned on the Gripsholm a short time ago for medical treatment. The two had shared their parcels and the same quarters for two years, and the Wissenbacks were assured that Darwin was in good health and taking part in the barracks' sports program allowed prisoners at the camp. When Darwin's friend left to be returned to the United States, Darwin was pitching for the barracks softball team.

Darwin's twin brother, Erwin, who made news when he escaped from Occupied France and returned to his base in England, has been graduated from Mariana field, Tucson, Ariz., and is soon to go on to an advanced school. Erwin was given the opportunity to qualify as a full-fledged pilot following his heroic escape under great difficulty.

Maley Stone to Be Tried Under Habitual Criminal Act

DALLAS, Nov. 20 (AP)—Maley Stone, who was convicted of robbing the Grande Ronde bank in a daylight holdup last August, will be tried under the habitual criminal act next January.

Stone refused at a hearing here yesterday to reply to charges of the district attorney that he had been convicted of four felonies during the past 17 years. Judge Arlie G. Walker disqualified himself for further action on the case and ordered Stone's case to come before a jury next January.

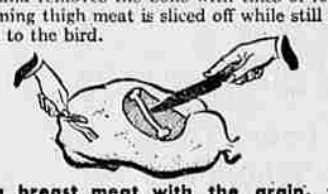
A New way to Carve

Will your holiday bird be carved with professional skill? There's a simple, modern way to do it just as adroitly as do the smart chefs. The drawings and instructions given below are taken from a book "How to Carve Meat, Game and Poultry", by M. O. Cullen of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. Suggestion: clip them for the use of the family carver!

After the turkey, roasting chicken, or other large fowl has been brought to the table on a platter, breast up and with the legs pointing to the right or left (depending on whether the carver is right or left-handed), the carver turns the turkey on its side so the back is toward him. Then he removes the drumstick by grasping the outer end and pulling gently while the knife cuts through the joint, separating it from the thigh.

Then the carver places the drumstick on a side plate, holding it upright, and slices its meat off, carving parallel with the bone. Next, he cuts thin slices from the thigh, continuing until the thigh bone itself is exposed. Then he loosens the meat on each side of the thigh bone with tip of his knife, and removes the bone with tines of fork. Remaining thigh meat is sliced off while still attached to the bird.



Slicing breast meat with the grain, the carver takes lengthwise slices from the breast and wing until wing-to-body joint is exposed. Fork is established in wing, and wing is unjointed from body with knife. Thin lengthwise slices are removed until all white meat has been carved from this side of the bird. (All meat, of course, is placed on the side dish as it is cut.)

To get at the dressing, the thin skin under the thigh is slit with tip of the knife, making an opening large enough to allow entrance of serving spoon. "Getting at" the dressing is much simplified by this method.

Once half the turkey has been accounted for, in this manner—and provided the carver needs still more meat for a complete serving—the platter's position is reversed. The bird is turned over, to put the meaty side on top again. And the process is repeated. Simple? Of course!
