AP Protests Supression

SPOKANE (AP) — Charging that a "near iron curtain" had been placed around meetings of the Pacific Coast Conference, Washington and Oregon members of the Associated Press Friday restated their determination to fight news barriers at every level of government.

In a resolution passed at their annual meeting here, the AP members said that although most of the member PCC colleges and universities are tax-supported, conference meetings for some years have been closed to the press.

The members said they were resolved to seek "a proper and adequate access to the affairs of the conference."

Another resolution was aimed at the federal government, deploring the institution of a "system by which civilian officials may suppress or classify information and thus withhold it from public knowledge and scrutiny."

John McClelland Jr., publisher of the Longview Daily News, was elected president of the Washington AP group, succeeding W. H. Cowles, publisher of the Spokane Spokesman-Review. Robert Letts Jones, publisher of the Salem Capital - Journal, was re-elected Oregon chairman. He appointed J. W. Forrester Jr., publisher of the Pendleton East Oregonian, as chairman of the Oregon AP members' Continuing Study Committee.

Vic Condiotty of the Seattle Times won the annual AP newspaper photo contest with his shot of a blind woman kneeling beside the body of her seeing eye dog, killed by a car.

Condiotty's picture also took top award in the metropolitan news division, with Larry Dion, also of the Seattle Times, getting honorable mention in the class for two pictures of returning Korean War veterans returning to Seattle.

Condiotty was awarded a trophy by Cowles in memory of his father, the late W. H. Cowles, former publisher of the Spokesman-Review and Associated Press director. The trophy is to be presented to the overall photography prize winner each year.

Other photo award winners in the metropolitan division were:

Feature— "Welcome," by Frank Parker, Spokane Spokesman - Review, a neighborhood winter scene Honorable mention went to "It's Been a Long, Long Time", by Ken Harris, Seattle P-I, a picture of a Korean veteran greeting his sweetheart.

Portrait—"Don't Worry Sisters' by Carl Vermilya, Portland Oregonian, a study of two aged sisters watching a fire near their home. Honorable mention went to "Old Gentlemen", by Roy Scully, Seattle Times, showing a man checking an agate.

Sports — "Racing Crew", by Josef Scayles, Seattle Times, showing an eight-oared crew in action. Honorable mention was "Victor and Vanquished", a hockey picture by Bill Kay, Spokesman-Review.

Winners in the Non-Metropolitan division were:

News — "Rescue on the Flag Pole", by Ken Knudson, Everett Daily Herald, showing a painter dangling by one foot from a flag pole being rescued. Honorable mention was "Bulls of the Road", by Howard Schillios, Eugene Register-Guard, a traffic accident scene.

Feature — "A Bird in Hand", by James Rayner, Yakima Herald, a sheep dog protecting a sparrow. Honorable mention was "Friends", by Rayner, a picture of a cat and bird.

Portrait — "Polio", by Schillios, boy in an iron lung. Honorable mention was "Miss Patsy Towata", by Schillios.

Sports — "Fishin' Season", by Phil Wolcott, Jr., Eugene Register-Guard, close up of trout being pulled from water. Honorable mention went to Rayner, Yakima, for "Three Point Landing", a boxing picture.

FORT KLAMATH

By MYRTLE WIMER

Mrs. R. O. Varnum is home for a short vacation from her duties as postmaster in Crater Lake National Park. During her absence, Mrs. Robert Hurrsch, wife of the park engineer, is in charge of the postoffice.

Friday evening dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Loosley were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ashley, Klamath Falls.

Miss Gladys Leonard returned Saturday by Shasta Daylight from Klamath Falls to her home in Red Bluff, after spending a week visiting Lilija Shionys at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Loren L. Miller Jr., and family.

Weekend guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Ericksen at the Modoc Lumber Company 7-mile camp were their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Beem, Klamath Falls, who enjoyed the Western style street dance held here Saturday night, Aug. 23. The Ericksen home was the scene of a family reunion Sunday, when their other daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dodson and four children, came from Dorris, for the day. They played pinochle and cribbage until evening, when Mr. and Mrs. Ericksen were hosts at a special dinner inhonor of the family reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ridenhour and children and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Ridenhour returned Sunday, Aug. 24 from an unsuccessful 4-day elk hunting trip to Troy, near Pendleton, the two men having drawn tags for the special open season on elk. On Wednesday, the Ridenhours were called to Bellingham, by news of the serious condition of the mens' father, who has been ill for some time at his home there.

Mr. and Mrs. David Carroll of John Day, were last weekend house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood W. Maloney at their home at the 7-mile guard station where Maloney is on duty with the forest service for the season. The party attended the street dance Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren L. Miller Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. McAulliffe drove Wednesday night to Ashland where they saw the presentation of "Much Ado About Nothing", played that evening for the annual Shakespearean festival.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey Dorris, of Alturas, Calif., were weekend house guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Zumbrun at their ranch one mile south of here.

Mrs. Thomas W. Hawkins is improving following recent leg surgery necessitated by an accident Saturday, Aug. 17, at Seven Lakes, 14 miles west of here, in which she sustained a fracture of the right leg between knee and hip, as a result of being thrown off her horse onto a rock when a packhorse broke loose and her mount bolted. The Hawkins party had been camping at Seven Lakes for a week and had reached grass Lake on the return trip when the accident happened. Mrs. Hawkins was brought out on a stretcher by seven men who walked the six and one-half miles to the scene of the mishap, the trips in and out being made in pitch dark with flashlights and lanterns to light the trail. Dr. Raymond Engelcke of Klamath Falls, rode horseback and gave emergency first aid to the injured woman. Five hours were required by the rescue party to make the return trip carrying Mrs. Hawkins on the stretcher. At the end of the trail, the Hawkins station wagon was waiting, and she was transported to Klamath Valley Hospital for treatment and care.

On Wednesday, Aug. 27, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Harlow, Oakland, arrived at the Hawkins home at the Hawkins Cattle Company ranch here and are caring for the two small Hawkins children, Jerry and Barbara, who had been staying at the ranch with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Corona since their mother's hospitalization. The young matron will be confined to the hospital for several weeks yet.

Weekending in Medford were Mrs. Myrtle Denton and son Delbert and their two houseguests, Mrs. Minnie Mallory and Mrs. Katherine Nichols. The group stayed during their visit with Mrs. Denton's niece, Mrs. Phil Lowd.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Sanders, daughter Shirley and sons, Ray and Don, moved last week to Klamath Falls where the children will attend Klamath Union High School this term. Sanders is president of the Home Builders' Maintenance Company, Klamath Falls, and the family plans to return on weekends to their Sanders apartment house property here.

Prof. and Mrs. Paul Bonifas and their small daughter Marianne, came Thursday, Aug. 28, to spend the remainder of their summer vacation at the Wilson Cottages. He is professor of ceramics at the University of Washington in Seattle, and this is the sixth consecutive summer that the family has spent the vacation period here —but as Prof. Bonifas has been conducting classes during his vacation at the college in Logan, Utah, they will be able to stay here only three weeks this year instead of the usual three months. The Bonifas family loves the Klamath country, in fact the only obstacle to their making this their permanent home is that there is no teaching position hereabouts in Prof. Bonifas' lifetime vocation. They are both French, and are delightful visitors whom we look forward to seeing each summer.

Ralph Vaden and son Billy left Friday for the state fair at Salem, where they placed on exhibition a yearling white Shorthorn heifer calf, one of Vaden's herd of 26 purebred registered cattle kept at the Hawkins Cattle Co. ranch where he is employed as ranch hand. Other specimens of Wood River Valley cattle was displayed at the fair by Earl Kerns, who in addition to two of his own animals, took along a year old white Shorthorn steer from the registered stock of Lorin M. Streeter of Fort Klamath, whose herd numbers 200.

Vaden is leader of the local 4-H Club livestock project which includes six boys, one of which is Smoky Pritchett, whose Hereford calf Charlie was adjudged grand champion at the Rotary Junior Livestock Show in Klamath Falls Aug. 25. In addition to this high honor, Smoky was also awarded showmanship championship. Five other members of the local group also entered calves in the show, including Billy Vaden, Fort Klamath, Victor Sisson Jr., Klamath Agency, Billy Ray, Dick and Ted Siemens, all three of the Agency Lake district.

Instead of being nine years old as reported in the paper, Smoky will be eleven on his birthday, Nov. 19, of this year. At the time he registered, in 1950, he was nine, and this is probably how the error in his age occurred. He is the only son of Mr and Mrs. Bud Pritchett, and has two smaller sisters, Faybia, 8, and Virginia, 5, the family living at the William Zumbrun ranch, where Pritchett is employed as year round ranch hand.

Born in March, 1951, the grand champion calf was acquired through Zumbrun in October from its owner, Carroll Ownes, cattleman of the Upper Klamath Marsh and Red Bluff, Calif. When sold last week, he was 17 months old and weighed 968 pounds, the sale price of $1.50 per pound bringing $1,452. From the time of his purchase last October, the calf was the entire personal responsibility of Smoky, who tended him and did all the daily work involved in his care and feeding, and also paid incidental upkeep expenses as well as the initial purchase price of Charlie. Ranch work is nothing new for the boy, as he helps his father with the daily chores on the Aumbrun ranch.

In addition to the $1,452 received from Bill Serruys, purchaser of the calf, Smoky was also given cash amounting to $75 in other awards. The sum left after all expenses are paid will be used to finance a calf for next year's Rotary Club show, and as a matter of fact, Smoky already has his eye on a promising animal nearby . . . .

People of Fort Klamath are justifiably proud of the fine showing made at the show by Smoky and all join in congratulating him and the leader, Ralph Vaden, on the success of the local project.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Noah and two daughters spent the Labor Day weekend here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Noah, returning Monday to their home in Brownsville, Ore.

Mrs. Jack Thomas, accompanied by her mother and daughter, Mrs. Grace Colahan and Mrs. Dennis B. Knowles, left Saturday morning for Roseburg where they attended the wedding on Saturday night of Miss Jean Shidler of Klamath Falls. They will also take in the Roseburg Centennial celebration now under way there before returning home. During Mrs. Knowles' absence, her small son Jeffry was left in the care of his aunt, Mrs. Albert Bricco, at her Williamson River home.

Mrs. Jay Hughes (formerly Marie Loosley) who with her husband lives at Rager Ranger station 46 miles from Paulina Lake in the Ochoco National Forest, has written to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond S. Loosley of Ft. Klamath, telling of a harrowing experience recently undergone by her 19-year-old sister, Joan Loosley, who is stationed atop Paulina Butte as lookout during her summer vacation from Oregon State College at Corvallis, where she is a junior majoring in elementary education. At 4:30 p.m., Aug. 13, a sudden terrific electrical storm struck the section where Joan is stationed as lookout for the forest service, 40 fires being started by lightning in her immediate territory, one blaze burning over five acres before it was controlled. Safe in her lightning-proof steel lookout tower, Joan kept her head in spite of the fact that all about her in the forest below lightning was flashing, thunder crashing, trees falling and being ignited by lightning, and called her brother-in-law, Jay Hughes, U.S. forest service ranger at Rager station, advising him that fires were blazing on all sides of the lookout. The noise on the telephone was so terrific that it nearly split Joan's eardrums, and her ears hurt for days afterward, Mrs. Hughes said in telling of the wild storm, which lasted for several hours. Fire fighting crews were mobilized and dispatched to the scene of the fires, and the men and equipment had the blazes under control in a short space of time. Quite an experience for a young girl, perched high up in a lookout tower when the elements broke loose in all their fury, and one that might well cause many an older person to become panic stricken in the face of it.

CHILOQUIN

By DARLENE WOLFF

Newcomers to the community are Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Robinson and daughter Donna, who for the past four years have lived in Klamath Falls. The family lives in the house at the junction of the Crater Lake highway and the North highway into Chiloquin, a farm formerly owned by the Sherman Maner family. Robinson is a rancher. Donna is a third grader and reports she has a dog, three ducks and a mother cat with seven kittens. Anyone want a cat?

Visitors from Alaska at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ray are his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Brown. They have been here for two weeks and are spending part of their time in Klamath Falls at the home of a daughter.

One of the first graduates of Chiloquin High School, Lena Stewart, visited in town for a day a week ago. Her parents were partners in a drygoods store in the middle twenties. She and her husband, Russel Morgan, live in Salem.

Jack Wolff had a freak accident a few days ago and was lucky not to have been hurt. He was driving to the ranch when his front wheel got in a hurry and rolled down the road ahead of the pickup. A passing truck driver helped him locate the wheel and no actual damage had been done.

The Rev. and Mrs. Gene Elliott, former pastor of the Fort Klamath and Chiloquin Methodist Churches, will be in town for one day only, Monday, Sept. 8. An evening meeting is being planned for them, at which time they will show pictures and tell of the mission field work they have done for the past three years in Alaska.

Agatha and Doris Ann DiUlio spent the past week with an aunt and uncle in Crescent, returning home on Saturday evening when their parents and grandmothef drove north to get them. They brought their 13 year old cousin home with them for the weekend, too.

Mrs. Ernest Smith and three children arrived in town on Saturday after spending the summer near Portland, where Smith has been employed on construction work the past year. The Smiths will remain here for the winter.

Preceding her sister, Mrs. Smith, by a week was Mrs. Dutch Dolphus and her five children, but they were here only for a ten day visit and are returning to Toledo. They came at this time to be here for the wedding of a niece, Mary Ann Souers, who became the bride of Steven Wilkie, on Saturday.
