More to Moore Movie Than Hollywood Shows

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA)—Exclusively Yours: Like the first Al Jolson film, "The Grace Moore Story" will leave Hollywood with a chance for a sequel. The Warner film, now shooting with Kathryn Grayson as Grace, takes her only as far as her operatic debut — skipping her marriage to Valentin Parera and movie stardom.

The opera star's temperament kept the sparks flying during her movie reign. Was she the same fiery Grace during the years Kathryn plays her?

Kathryn answered the question for me with:

"All I can say to that is Wow!"

Dark-tressed Kathryn is getting a weekly bleach job to play the lark and goes to the same hairdresser Grace had when she starred in "One Night of Love."

John Wayne, taking the affirmative side of the "Should-there-be-violence-in-movies?" debate:

"I don't think it's wise to make a picture without action. I'm for as much violence as I can get by with. It's easy to arouse emotion with violence — and that's what movie-makers are supposed to do to an audience."

James and Pamela Mason will soon be hurling a lawsuit at the English woman who succeeded Pamela as Mrs. Roy Kellino. They'll claim she made off with all the furniture from their English farmhouse.

Arlene Dahl is readying a night - club act. I thought she had one. What else could you call her glitter-den smooching with Fernando Lamas? . . . The torch that Frenchman George Sorel is carrying for Lana Turner could light up Mammoth Cave. Lana won't accept his phone calls and he's screaming that some of her pals poisoned her mind against him.

The Lawrence Tibbetts spiked the separation rumors. It's Larry Jr., and his bride who are splitting up . . . Now it's Jeanne Crain going in for the sexy glamor treatment . . . Rock Hudson and Sharman Douglas discovered each other in Denver, first stop on his personal - appearance tour with "Lawless Breed."

Doris Day's avoiding the big Hollywood bickering about movie queens looking like the girl next door. She's wearing buckskin pants for "Calamity Jane" — and looks like the boy next door.

"But I'm having a ball," she grinned. "I'm the tomboy type."

Doris spins a revolver and cracks a bullwhip in the film when she isn't romancing with Howard Keel. But with Keel in buckskin pants, too, maybe, for their love scenes, Doris should wear a sign on her back, reading:

"I'm the girl."

Bob Hope's words about Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis at the Adolph Zukor birthday party are still getting industry howls. "Dean and Jerry," Bob dead-panned, "bring a lot of happiness to a lot of people. Not me, but people. They have one quality that annoys me—talent."

It's Tom Morton's quip—he's the newcomer in "From Main Street to Broadway"—that book covers are so sexy these days that it's better to curl up with a good book cover than with a good book.

A Polish beauty who goes by the name of Bella — nothing else—is being groomed as Hollywood's next Garbo by Darryl Zanuck. She's a guest at the Zanuck home.

Marilyn Maxwell and U-I are talking about a big contract for her. Only hitch: The studio wants an anti-TV clause . . . Alan Ladd's being paged by Alex Korda to star in "Forty-Five," the story of an American gangster who hides out in an English village.

Colette Marchand, the dazzler in "Moulin Rouge," and Jeanmaire the beauty in "Hans Christian Andersen," have decided that the Ballet de Paris is too small to star them both. So Jeanmaire is stepping down and Colette reigns supreme.

Dawn Addams isn't admitting marriage plans with Claude Dauphin, of "April in Paris," but says: "It's more than just friendship with us—far more." . . . Best stunt of the year: The PGA's sponsorship of Martin and Lewis, Crosby and Hope in a golf match at the Inglewood Country Club Feb. 8. Par for the day will be 1268 gags.

Irene Ryan to a night-club heckler:

"He thinks a smart spot is a soup speck on a $15 tie."

CITIZEN

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After three years of residence here, Phyllis Stanley, 36-year-old British actress, has become a United States citizen. She took the oath of citizenship yesterday. She is the wife of Steve Miller, film studio publicist whom she married 10 years ago in London.

Police Study Twin Killing

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Police sought a motive today for the pistol deaths of a retired Navy admiral and his mother whose bodies were found in a hotel room. A radio still was playing when officers broke in on the grim scene yesterday.

The coroner said that Chessford Brown, 47, a World War II rear admiral, killed his mother, Mrs. Jane Brown, about 70, then shot himself.

Both bodies were sprawled on the floor near the bed. Brown's hand still clutched an automatic. Mother and son were shot in the head.

Brown, a U. S. Naval Academy graduate, captained a destroyer in the Pacific during World War II. He previously had served on the battleships New Mexico and Nevada and the cruiser Tulsa.

He had worked the past two weeks at Convair as a weights computer. Brown left a note asking that his wife, from whom he had been separated, be notified. The mother was the widow of a retired rear admiral, Guy Brown.

Teenagers Face Murder

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Four teenage girls faced murder charges today in the strangling of 14-year-old Olga Houchins at the Marion County juvenile center.

Detective Sgt. Frank Lotz quoted 14-year-old Joann Munden as stating she had borne a grudge for three years because Olga taunted her for wearing castoff clothes.

The two girls were friends in public school at the time, and Olga was at the Munden home the night the castoff clothes were brought there.

Joann said in the statement she had been "trying to think of some way to scare her for those three years." She said she asked a supervisor Wednesday to "get that girl out of here, or I'll kill her."

The other defendants are Lavetta Keown, 16, and Lucille and Louise Spann, 13-year-old twins. The five were being held in a security room at the juvenile center because of an attempt to escape last week.

The statement told how the girls wrapped a towel around Olga's neck Friday and stuffed a sheet in her mouth. When she became unconscious they called a supervisor.

End Paul Bischoff, captain of the West Virginia football team, caught 49 per cent of his team's forward passes during the '52 season.

U.N. Fires American

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The U. N. has fired a Russian-speaking American woman stenographer on the basis of secret information supplied by the U. S. government.

A U. N. spokesman disclosed the dismissal of Mrs. Irene Pogorelsky last night in answer to only that the secret information came from "reliable official sources."

The spokesman said the U. S. government had supplied further facts about Mrs. Pogorelsky after listing her several weeks as one of 11 American employes of the world organization who were "Communist or under Communist discipline." The U. N. had said previously that it did not have enough evidence to take any action.

Mrs. Pogodelsky, who earned $3,800 a year in the Russian language typing pool was fired effective Jan. 21.

The U. N. also announced the U. S. State Department had provided further secret information about another American on the list, Abraham Nadel, a Russian language proof reader. Officials said Nadel, who is approaching 60, will be on special paid leave until his retirement May 14. He earns $6,000 a year.

Two of the nine other Americans on the State Department list have resigned. There has been no announced action on the other seven.

So far as known here, the U. S. has supplied the U. N. with adverse comments on 46 American U. N. employes. Of these, 36 have had their jobs terminated, two have resigned and one is on retirement leave.

Man Gets Alimony

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Mrs. Ottilie Silver, 64, has the divorce she asked for, but she'll have to pay 35-year-old Charles Silver $150 monthly alimony and $500 attorney fees.

Silver's lawyer declared his client is jobless while Mrs. Silver is a member of a wealthy family, and argued that under California law the spouse who has the money is required to support the other.

The court gave Silver until next Monday to get out of their apartment. The couple wed in 1931, after annulment of a previous marriage.

Jolter Wants To See Boy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Joe DiMaggio wants full custody of his 11-year-old son or at least more opportunity to visit the boy.

The former New York Yankee outfielder has filed a Superior Court custody action seeking modification of the divorce decree granted actress Dorothy Arnold DiMaggio in 1944.

Atty. Loyd Wright Jr., representing the ball player, said Miss Arnold has been uncooperative in arranging visits between DiMaggio and his son, Joseph Paul DiMaggio III. The boy attends a Hollywood military academy.

Last November Miss Arnold sought a change in the divorce order to increase the $150 monthly support for the boy to $1,000 a month. DiMaggio put into the record yesterday a 1949 agreement signed in New York by which he has been paying $650 a month besides educational expenses. Her action is pending.

Most Critics Say

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Did the quality on movies improve in 1952? Most critics voting in the nationwide Associated Press movie poll just concluded, think so.

But the dissident minority is emphatic.

"Lousy year," commented Jim Hamilton of the Everett (Wash.) Daily Herald.

The summer comments included this from Milton Randolph of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner: "In my opinion more good pictures were offered movie patrons last year than any year in the history of the industry."

Allen M. Widem, Hartford (Conn) Times: "Industry quality is definitely on the upgrade, with more and more top product coming through."

Joseph L. Preabrey Jr., Newport (Vt) Daily Express: "Movies in general seemed to be a bit better than last year. TV is holding the house down but at the same time is forcing a better brand of movie."

R. M. Shepherdson, Peoria (Ill.) Journal: "There were so many superlative performances this year it is hard to make decisions."

Naomi Caddel, Lubbock (Tex.) Avalanche - Journal: "We had more good pictures to choose from this year than we have had in many years."
