Swim Classes Start Monday

Klamath Falls' "Learn to Swim" spring program gets underway next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with those three days set aside for the next seven weeks following, the City Recreation Department has announced.

Recreation Director Bob Bonney reports it takes eight lessons sometimes for some beginning swimmers to get over the fear of water—but often they become the better swimmers. Others who cannot even float at the first lesson often may swim in deep water at the end of eight.

Saturday afternoons are being reserved for open swims where learners may practice.

Class schedule includes:

Non-floaters and floaters (first class) 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. Mondays and Tuesdays (to be broken into non-floaters 7:30 to 8, floaters 7 to 7:30).

Swim-a-little 7:30 to 8:30 (first class). After first class the schedule for this group is to read:

7:30 to 8, those who can barely keep up; 8 to 8:30, those who can swim several strokes without touching bottom; 8:30 to 9, deep water swimmers who have not passed the Red Cross beginners tests.

Tuesday evening from 9 to 9:30 a lady's class is planned, with any Klamath County woman who wishes to learn to swim or swims for pleasure eligible for entry.

Wednesday evening instruction is from 6:30 to 7:30 with recreation swimming at the last half-hour.

Those who wish to attend the meeting Friday noon at the Willard Hotel are invited to get in touch with a member of the club, McIntyre said.

Henley Speech Students Win Class 'B' Trophy

Henley won the senior high school "B" class speech trophy yesterday at Merrill. The winners scored 35 points from a possible 40, three points ahead of second place Bonanza, five ahead of Chiloquin, who lost the second rate spot on a technical disqualification in one of the ten divisions of speech entry.

The festival was planned by Don L. Miller, Malin, Helen Rambo, Merrill; Dorothy Houston, Gilchrist; and E. James Huff, Chiloquin. Harold Hendrickson, principal of Merrill, was official host. Judges were Charles McFarlan, KFLW announcer, and two critic judges from Southern Oregon College of Education, Arthur Ostrander, pre-law major from Ashland, and Richard Dickson, radio and education major from Medford.

The contestants did a great deal of creative work, emphasizing citizenship in four fields of speech, oratory, extemp, impromptu, and panel discussion. The orators chose a highly controversial subject meaningful to them, such as changing the electoral college or what to do about communism. After studying, they wrote their opinions in an oration. Kay Heglund, Chiloquin and Kaye Robinette, Henley, were judged excellent in this section.

The extemporaneous speakers have studied current events for the past few months and had a wealth of knowledge learned or at finger tip. They each drew a particular topic, prepared for one hour and then presented a speech. Myron Hurlbut, Henley, rated highest in this competition yesterday.

DIFFERENCE

The impromptu speakers go through the same preliminaries as do the extemp with one great difference, they have slightly less than five minutes to prepare the speech. Impromptu takes more confidence and quick thinking than any type of speaking with the possible exception of the question and answer section of panel discussion. Bill Vaden, Chiloquin and Ernie Mathes, Henley, rated tops in impromptu.

On the panel some subject is discussed pro and con with each member giving a special emphasis, such as spiritual, economic, or from an educational standpoint. A moderator ties the material together and leads the quiz section, finally summarizing points covered. Sharon Finchum, Henley and Elna Fitzhugh, Bonanza, each placed four points.

Three other sections demanded original material. The after-dinner speakers gave clever short talks with Charlotte Passolt of Bonanza receiving top award. The talks were given in the proper setting, following a luncheon served to the contestants of this section, the judges, and the coaches and principals attending. The meal was served by the Merrill freshman girls' home economics class under the direction of their instructor, Mrs. Orville Adams. A St. Patricks' Day theme was used for decoration.

In radio, groups of students with their coaches prepared scripts and presented them. No one was rated excellent in this division, but Malin and Bonanza rated highest, after Chiloquin defaulted on a technical point.

The special speakers were the emcees of each section, the ones who explained, introduced and concluded. Darlene Ripple, Bonanza, introducing poetry interpretation, and Susan Ravizza, Chiloquin, who introduced story telling, were each four point winners.

GOOD READING

The last three sections were interpretation of material written by others. Ellen Ward of Henley received four points for her unusually fine poetry reading. Nancy Pruitt, Henley, four points for her story telling of "Little Bobby Shafto", Phyllis Johnson, Malin, and Donna Hobbs, Chiloquin, four points each for their hilarious humorous selections, "The Show Must Go On and On and On", and "Mother On a Bus".

While waiting for the point tallies, the visiting students were entertained by two Merrill students, Joleah Millet, who did a tap dance, and Jackie Barry, who played the accordion.

County speech coaches other than those listed in the planning were Joseph Mercer and Mrs. Frank Bell, Chiloquin; Mrs. Robert Hagerud and Mrs. Earl Graham, Bly; Mrs. Joanna Givan, Bonanza; Hugh Simpson and Mrs. Geneva Duncan, Henley.
