Announcement on the case that has kept city police of Chiloquin, state and federal officers puzzled for the past several months was made today by Police Chief Lewis Jones, Chiloquin.

Following filing of the case with the district attorney, all details will be made available.

Lost or damaged in the outbreak of fires were 12 buildings last fall and six recently. This does not, however, Jones pointed out, necessarily mean that the total blazes were all set by Huff and Pearson.

Swim Classes Filling Up

Registrations in the beginners "learn to swim" campaign are being made so rapidly that late comers may be disappointed according to Bob Bonney, city recreation director. Response at the YMCA, the recreation office and schools has been highly gratifying and dozens of Klamath youngsters will learn during these courses to handle themselves in the water.

It was formerly announced that classes would be limited to 30 students but the number, because of demand, has been stretched to 40 which is the absolute maximum.

The swim classes for boys start Monday, April 6, 6:30 p.m. and for girls, Tuesday, April 7, 6:30 p.m. all at the KUHS natatorium.

Boys and girls in the advanced classes will swim Wednesday night, April 8, 7 p.m.

Many registrations are being made without the $1 registration fee Bonney states. In order not to be disappointed the money should accompany the registration blank.

Montgomery, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Frank Bell and a number of outstanding speakers from the upper six grades who showed in their talks and poems the ability which won first place in the county junior high school speech festival, and placed the senior high students in third place.
