Norblad Hits CAB Ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Norblad (R-Ore) has protested a Civil Aeronautics Board examiner's recommendation for discontinuance of air service between Portland, Ore., and Alaska.

The examiner's recommendation, now before the board, calls for ending the service now provided by Pacific Northern and Alaskan Airlines.

Norblad wrote CAB Chairman Chan Gurney that the effect of such a decision "would be to provide Seattle with a monopoly on air traffic into Alaska." He asserted:

"The monopoly which Saettle has had in many fields of endeavor in connection with Alaska over a period of years has been one of the greatest and most material factors in limiting the development of that territory."

Norblad urged the board to reject the examiner's recommendation.

Portland, he said, ranks second as a traffic generating source for Alaska, is a logical connecting point for interline air service and is a focal point for all West Coast rail, bus, air and steamship service.

Norblad said Portland is Alaska's main source of supply for certain products and shipment of these products to Alaska would be materially hampered if air service were discontinued.

"I certainly hope that your board will reverse the ruling of the examiner and not give the unwarranted monopoly of all this traffic to Seattle," he said.

REPAIR

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower has asked Congress for 25 million dollars to repair merchant-type vessels now in the national defense reserve fleet.
