The bulk of choice and prime steers went at $26.25 to $31.00 and good to low choice at $21.50 to $26.00. Heifers sold strong to 50 cents higher at $25.75 to $27.50 for high choice.

Council

It had previously been stated by city officials that the residents of the area would be allowed to vote in the general election.

Another annexation action was taken by the council when they voted to accept the annexation of 57 acres of land bordered by Washburn Way and Shasta Way if letters of annexation acceptance are received from the owners of the Tower Theater and the Assembly of God Church located in the area. Don Sloan, owner of the remainder of the tract, had petitioned the council for annexation of the area. If the council gives final acceptance to the annexation, an ordinance will be passed authorizing the move.

The council also instructed City Engineer E. A. Thomas to have his department do the engineering work on the sprinkling system that the Kiwanis Club is planning to install in Kiwanis-Kit Carson Park. The club is paying for the sprinkling system.

A low bid of $1,252 for the repair of hail damage to city owned buildings was awarded to C. Fitzgerald.

JOB AWARDED

The job of widening High Street between Fifth and Sixth streets was awarded to H. A. Sample for $1,604. Sample's bid was the only one submitted.

The Asphalt Paving Company's bid of $6,848.25 for the paving of Fremont Street from Pacific Terrace to Newcastle Street was referred to the city engineer and the street committee for study and recommendation back to the city council. The paving firm's bid was about $1,000 over the city engineer's estimate for the job.

Paving of Painter Street from Eldorado to the deadend near Kit Carson Way was awarded to Asphalt Paving Co. for $3,955.65 and the widening of Eldorado Street near Painter was given the same firm for a bid of $1,258.40. This company was the only one to bid the two jobs.

Chief Makes Drive Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said Wednesday he plans three more campaign speeches this month after launching his reelection drive Sept. 12 at a "pep rally" on his Gettysburg, Pa. farm.

The President disclosed the plans at a news conference in broad outline and the White House later supplied some detail.

The schedule now is this:

1. Next Wednesday Eisenhower will kick off his second term drive with an address to about 500 key campaign workers at his Gettysburg farm. Vice President Nixon also will speak there.

2. On Sept. 19 the President will make his first nationwide television-radio campaign address from a Washington TV studio. The theme of that speech will be announced later, but the White House said it will be a broad-based talk likely to deal with a variety of issues. It will last less than half an hour.

3. On Sept. 21 the President now plans to speak at the annual plowing contest at Newton, Iowa. His subject there will be the farm situation, one of the key issues of the campaign. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, has agreed to speak at Newton Sept. 22.

4. Less than a week after the Nixon speech—the White House said no specific date has been fixed yet—Eisenhower will make another nationwide TV-radio address in a city to be announced later. The White House ruled out Washington.

That address apparently will be before a campaign audience. The White House said it would not originate from a TV studio. The subject again will be the farm situation.

READERS TOLD

BERLIN (AP) — Neues Deutschland, the official East German Communist Party newspaper, told its readers Wednesday that many American factory workers do own automobiles. And it added: "We can accomplish the same thing if our work is tackled with equal enthusiasm everywhere."

New Convict Clues Eyed

OAKRIDGE, Ore. (UP) — A private pilot at Oakridge Tuesday night told Oregon State Police that he had found the motor of his aircraft warmed up and ready for takeoff at a landing strip in the Box Canyon Road area about 10 miles north of here.

The report spurred a manhunt for two California prison honor camp fugitives believed to be at large in the rugged mountain area between the headwaters of the McKenzie and Willamette rivers. They escaped a work camp at Yreka last week in a stolen plane.

State police searched the area around the landing strip throughout the night without results.

Police said the two men believed at large in Oregon may be Gerald E. Baucum and Edward Virgil. It was earlier thought they were Baucum and Charles Morgan.

A restaurant operator at McKenzie Bridge, 50 miles east of Eugene, told police today that she served lunch to two men Tuesday and that one of them answered Baucum's description. The other man, she said, was "foreign looking" and officers theorized it might have been Virgil.

Pilot Sought After Crash

PALMDALE (UP) — Search teams from Edwards Air Force Base hunted in rugged territory in Angeles National Forest today for a missing Air National Guard pilot believed killed in the collision of two F86 Sabre jets.

The missing pilot was identified as 1st Lt. Philip H. Henry, 26, Fontana. The second pilot, Lt. Jarman A. Lynch, 24, San Dimas, escaped with injuries after parachuting from his plane.

Wreckage of the two planes fell into the dry forest, setting a series of fires which raged out of control and spread over a 1,300-acre area. A total of 600 fire fighters, three helicopters, tankers and tractors from Forest Service headquarters and Los Angeles County fire departments were reported being used to fight the blaze.

Judges To See Beauty Parade

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — The 50 Miss America contestants start displaying their beauty, poise and talent Wednesday night before a panel of judges drawn largely from the worlds of education and entertainment.

The beauties, representing 46 states, Chicago, the District of Columbia, Hawaii and Canada, will be divided into three groups and judged in evening gowns, swim suits and on the basis of talent.

The groups will rotate Thursday and Friday night with the field narrowed to 10 semifinalists Saturday morning. Miss America 1957 will be chosen from five finalists during a 90-minute national telecast (ABC) Saturday night.

Pacific Supply Cooperative for $3.20 per pound or $310.40.

Bill Weitkamp, showing the grand champion FFA lamb, took $2 per pound, $214 from Webb Staunton, Tulelake. The reserve grand champion in this division, entered by Jim McCracken, Newell, sold for $2 per pound, $186 to the Dick B. Miller Company.

Seventy-five head of lambs tallied 6,717 pounds and sold for an average price per pound of 58½ cents, average per head of $53.87 or a grand total of $3,932.53.

The sale followed a Rotary-served free beef barbecue for an approximate 1,000 exhibitors, their families, buyers, Rotarians and their wives and special guests of the club. Serving was from 4:30 to 6 p.m. on the fine turf of the fairgrounds under a sunny sky.

Special Rotary awards for livestock judging and showmanship, for high point exhibitors, home economics sweepstakes winner, winning entries in Monday's big parade and for other efforts that made a successful fair and show, were presented prior to the sale by Rotary Club president, W. G. Hagelstein and William Whitaker, fair manager-secretary.

A total of 11,893 visitors went through the gates during the three-day event.
