PRESIDENT OF LINCOLN ST.

OBERLIN, Ohio (AP)—A man living here is named Abe President. And the name of the street he lives on? Lincoln Street, of course.

KLAMATH FALLS PARKS AND RECREATION DEPARTMENT

Safety is perhaps an overworked topic, but overworked as it may be it still seems to go unheeded by many. With the playground season starting soon the Klamath Falls Parks and Recreation Department wishes to stress the importance of observing the posted speed limits and other safety regulations in and around local playgrounds and parks.

There will be hundreds of small children playing in these areas. The mere presence of these children warrants extreme caution regardless of speed limits and other safety regulations. Let's not let the old apathetic axiom "someone's got to get killed in order to do something about it" apply here. The time to exercise caution and common sense is now!

The state department is sponsoring a recreation exchange program whereby recreation departments throughout the nation plays host to a foreign visitor who has come to the U.S. to observe how American recreation departments function. The Klamath Falls recreation department will be visited in the near future by such a foreign representative.

Such visits provide an excellent opportunity to gain understanding between nations, an opportunity to erase false impressions gained over the years from second - hand information and third rate movies. Albert Einstein said that peace cannot be achieved by force but only through understanding. In our own small way, perhaps we can contribute something to such understanding.

In late May, the Herald and News will be publishing the recreation department's 1959-60 annual report, complete with pictures, in the magazine section "Basin Living" — watch for it. Our thanks to Bill Jenkins and to the rest of the Herald and News organization for their cooperation with us in bringing recreation news to you.

Tragedy befell the Moore Park Zoo recently. Jocko, the bellicose, but somehow engaging Macac monkey, died of pneumonia. We hope the celestial zookeeper will be kind to Jocko and that Jocko, in turn, will refrain from gnawing on said zookeeper's heavenly hide. Having forgiven Jocko of his earthly sins, we hope that he has gone where all good monkeys go. Plans are being made to replace the deceased chimp with another monkey of the same species.

Starting this summer a weekly playground schedule will appear in this column. All the activities, programs and various other events occurring at city playgrounds will be listed. We're planning big things for the summer months, so if you have a youngster who says that he can't find anything to do with his time, refer him to this column. Sports and games, handicrafts, field trips, outings, parades, contests, costume parties and numerous other events are on tap. Mom and dad will be able to join in the fun, too.

PEARS AND BABIES

LOCKPORT, N.Y. (AP)—There are indications that babies' appetites are going to spur a moderate increase in pear tree plantings in Niagara County. Fruit growers say baby food manufacturers think pears are among babies' favorite foods, and the nation's healthy birth rate may mean a greater demand.

According to preliminary estimates, more than 3.5 billion dollars, or 31.7 per cent of all advertising dollars invested in 1959, went to newspapers. This made daily newspapers again the number one advertising medium.

Shasta Weather Summary Says March Mimics June

MOUNT SHASTA—A weather summary from the Mount Shasta area reports that while it didn't quite make June in January, it did make it in March. During the nine-day period from March 17 through 25, temperatures ranged from the low 70s to the low 90s over the entire area. It was one of the longest warm spells in March, since records were begun in 1888.

There were eight consecutive days of 70 degree temperature in 1934 and again in 1939. The warmest day of the month was March 24 when the mercury rose to 77 in Mount Shasta, the warmest March day recorded in 20 years. It was only one degree cooler than the all time high for March, recorded in 1940.

Even so, Mount Shasta was the coolest spot in the area. Weed recorded a high of 78, McCloud, 80; North Dunsmuir, 84, and South Dunsmuir a very summerish 90.

First and last weeks of the month produced nearly all the precipitation. At Weed and Mount Shasta, amounts were slightly above normal, while from Dunsmuir and McCloud, south, amounts were substantially in excess of normal.

In spite of the excess rainfall, there was considerably less than average snowfall. Mount Shasta measured a total of 12.4 inches, compared with an average of 17.4. The greatest depth on the ground at any time was six inches on the third and fourth, and it had disappeared completely by the fifth.

At the close of the month, seasonal precipitation for Mount Shasta, July 1 through March, was 22.95 inches, compared with a normal of 26.93, a deficiency of 3.98 inches, or about 85 per cent of normal.

From these figures it would seem there is little cause for alarm as far as a potential water shortage is concerned. A snowpack of 87 inches on the southwest slopes of Mt. Shasta March 29 is only 76 per cent of the 31-year average of 114.5 inches.

Chances are good there will be a water shortage in Shasta and Scott valleys, but no shortage is anticipated in this immediate area.

Of the 27 million American workers who get a daily coffee break, better than 16 million don't have to leave their desks or work benches. Their coffee is brought to them. Coffee drinking in the U.S. reached its highest level in history last year. Total consumption was more than 390 million cups a day. An estimated 7 million dollars was spent for advertising coffee and tea in daily newspapers in 1959.

2 Guns Used In Shooting

ASHLAND (AP) — Jackson County Sheriff Joe Walsh said Friday two guns were used in the fatal shooting of Mrs. Lester Hamilton in suburban Ashland March 15.

Her husband found her body in the living room of their home. She had been shot nine times.

The sheriff said it has been established that five of the bullets were from a .22-caliber revolver and four from another .22-caliber gun. No guns or empty shells have been found.

Walsh said an inventory shows these items missing: a wallet, a silver charm bracelet, a set of silver earrings, a man's brown hat and a woman's white leather jacket. Police believe the slayer took these articles.

Meanwhile the search continues for a man reported to have been in the Hamilton neighborhood the day of the slaying. He was described as about 25 years old, and stocky.

The sheriff said there were fresh heel prints near the house.

He added that these were from heels like those made at the Leavenworth, Kan., federal prison. Shoes with such heels are issued to members of the armed forces and to federal convicts.

Jury Indicts L. McDonald

PORTLAND (AP) — Levi S. McDonald posted bail for the third time Friday. This was after his arrest Friday on a grand jury indictment charging him with a part in the hurling of a jar of acid-like substance into the Oregonian Pharmacy Jan. 12.

The indictment was returned last week secretly. The arrest of McDonald was made at his Portland home. He was free on bail at the time from charges in Multnomah and Clackamas County of damage to property by explosives.

McDonald was a member of the negotiating committee of the Stereotypers Union that struck the Oregonian and Oregon Journal Nov. 10. The two previous charges came after four men confessed the dynamiting of 10 trucks that hauled for the struck newspapers and one said McDonald paid them to do it.

The district attorney's office said McDonald was indicted on the drug store incident after Caryl R. Forbish, 24, of Portland said McDonald paid him $50 to throw the jar into the store, located in the Oregonian building.

Forbish appeared before Circuit Judge Herbert Schwab Friday on a charge of use of a stink bomb. Judge Schwab put off the arraignment until Forbish obtained an attorney.

GRASS CLIPPERS, YET!

DES MOINES (AP)—Mrs. Walter Schlievert says she saw a woman driver, her car stuck in a snowbank, take a pair of hedge clippers from the trunk of the car, and try to clip away the snow from the rear tires. Then, says Mrs. Schlievert, the woman put the clippers under one of the tires, hoping to get the car to move. It didn't—until she called a tow truck.
