Navy Seeks Eye Men

Graduate optometrists will be eligible for possible direct Navy officer appointment beginning July 1, said Chief R. J. Gomes, head of the Navy recruiting station here.

At present, the graduates receive a four-month indoctrination course and appointment under the officer candidate school.

A final-term optometric student or a practicing optometrist may apply for direct appointment and be assigned to the School of Hospital Administration, Naval Medical Center, Behesda, Md., for a four-week orientation period prior to reporting to his first duty station.

Taylor Heads Sheep Group

LAKEVIEW—Members of Fremont Sheepmen's Association elected Neal Taylor as president to succeed Jerendah O'Leary during their annual meeting recently in Memorial Hall here.

Jack Flynn was elected vice president and Oris Rudd and John Blair were reelected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

A meeting highlight was presentation of a certificate of commendable service to Raymond Morris of Plush by the Fish and Wildlife Service for his work during 19 years as a government trapper in the Warner Valley area.

Willard Nelson and Jack Dietrich, assistant district agents from the Portland office, made the presentation. The certificate allows Morris free passage for life to all national parks in the U.S.

A letter from Leo Layte, retired area director, cited Morris for "loyalty, initiative and ability."

During his trapping years, Morris accounted for 6,117 predators, including 5,009 coyotes and 1,108 bobcats.

Dr. C. W. Fox, sheep scientist at Oregon State College, and Bruce Arnold of the Pacific Woolgrowers' Association, Portland, were featured speakers.

Members decided to continue the annual ram sale this year and to promote a membership drive for the Oregon Woolgrowers' Association.

Darrell Gretz, assistant district agent for the Fish and Wildlife Service, and supervisor of predator hunters for the state, said that, though catches have been good, the number of coyotes is considerably increased.

Lake County's two hunters are Raymond Houston, who covers the north end, and Al Short, who handles the Goose Lake Valley, Warner Valley, Hart Mountain and Big Juniper areas.

Posse Trails Mental Case

ROSEBURG (AP) — Armed deputies picked up the trail of mountain man Steve Solovich, an escapee from a mental hospital, but then lost it Friday at the ranch of a posse member shot in an earlier search.

Sheriff Ira Byrd said a search party saw Solovich Friday afternoon, but he escaped into the wilderness. They trailed him to the ranch of Watson Talcott, four miles east of Glide in the Cascade Mountains, before darkness set in and they lost his trail.

Talcott was wounded in a gun battle with Solovich when a posse closed in on the escaped mental patient Tuesday. The tall, husky Solovich eluded pursuers then, and was not seen again until Friday.

Byrd said he had talked to Joel C. Olsen of Boise, Idaho, who had said earlier he thought he could talk to Solovich, whom he had known when they both worked mining claims in Idaho.

Byrd said he told Olsen he would be glad to have him try to talk to the hunted man.

"I'm glad to have anybody who thinks they can talk to this boy," said Byrd. "But it's silly now—I don't think he can do it."

"There's probably a good chance he (Olsen) would get shot," said Byrd.
