Irrigon, Heppner Junction, Lexington and Heppner.

In Boise the visitors received a cordial welcome and many courtesies. Members of the party called on Governor Gooding and Senator Borah, who extended to them hearty greetings. The Boise citizens afforced facilities for going over the city and viewing its substantial business buildings and its handsome dwellings. The big natatorium, with its warm water. The big natatorium, with its warm water from natural springs, flowing hot from within the earth, was opened to the Portlanders, and they enjoyed swimming

e development of Southern Idaho

The development of Southern Idaho goes on marvelously fast. Great things have been accomplished in the last seven years. The towns of Weiser. Payette, Nampa and Caldwell have doubled in population in three years. No region in the Pacific Northwest has progressed faster than Southern Idaho in the last three or four years, the speed of its development is a marvel and its banks creating fast-increasing bank deposits. Its cities are built largely of brick and stone and its farms contain the most modern improvements and promising crops. Miles and its farms contain the most modern improvements and promising crops. Miles and miles of sage brush plains have been turned into fertile lands by means of irrigation. This is the basis of the new prosperity in Southern Idaho.

TWO IDAHO MEN INDICTED

West and I. N. Smith Receive Notice From District Attorney.

LEWISTON, Ida. May 9.—(Special.)—Attorneys I. N. Smith and J. B. West have received letters from United States District Attorney Ruick at Bolse to the effect that the Federal Grand Jury which sat at the state cap-ital last month, had indicted them for conspiracy in defrauding the Govern-ment of timber lands. The letter said that one indictment was found on March 22 and the other on April 10. Mr. Ruick added that it had been derants for their arrest and asked them to give bonds, but to instruct them to appear in court at Moscow, Monday morning, and answer to Judge Dettrich. It is said that the indictment of Smith and West completes the chain the Government's conspiracy cases Attorney Smith acted as associate counsel for Kester, Kettenbach, et al. furing the trials of William Dwyer and Clarence Robnet, associates of the indicted bank officials, when they were convicted of subordination of perjury.

For eight years West was receiver of the Lewiston land office and it is claimed that had it not been for his aperations the bank officials and their agents could not have carried into execution their alleged conspiracies to lefraud the state government out of rast quantities of timber land.

LOTS OF FRUIT IN UNION

Damage by Frost Not Nearly So

Great as First Reported. UNION, Or., May 2.—(Special.)—
Further examination shows that the fruit crop is not nearly so badly injured as at first reported. The peach crop will be a total loss, but pears and cherries will make a fair yield if no further accidents befall. The late cherries are hardly injured at all and many of the early orchards will yield half a crop. The damage to other crops is of little consequence. A few early gardens were destroyed but there is still plenty of time for replanting. The grain crop is uninjured and gives promise of an abundant yield.

RIPLINGER'S SCHEME CLEVER

Carefully Covered Up Track of His Bunco Work on Friends.

SEATTLE. Wash. May & (Special.)—
It is apart from the examination that has been made of ex-Comptroller John Riplingar's books that it is learned he deliberately buncoed his friends in the hope he might cover up his tracks. The bond he gave the city had no qualifications; it was a straight-out obligation on the part of the bonding company to make good for any of his shartcomings, and the exComptroller hung on to the company all obligations up to $10,000. It is evident from the investigation that he deliberately borrowed from his political and other supporters to make up the fund he carried away from this city. This cannot be shown from books he left behind him, but it can be inferred from the records so far as city authorities have investigated. Experts were put to work today to look into his affairs and the bond he gave was discovered in the private papers of ex-Mayor R. A. Ballinger, now Commissioner of the General Land Office, who left his safe behind him.

"This is the first time I have been in a jail of any kind and I am now $6 years old. But I do not know what made me do this. It seems as if I got crazy jealous. You see we had got crazy jealous. You see we had some trouble over the men at the camp, and I had made up my mind to move back into town in order to stop the trouble. At first she was willing, but later she said she would not go. We had been quarreling over this matter and when I came down stairs to eat my supper she sat down and mocked my supper she sat down and mocked me. Every time I would say anything she would mock me. I asked her if she intended to stay at the camp, as she had said she was going to do, and she said yes. This made me crazy and I grabbed the butcher knife that was lying on the table and went for her. She went into the bunk house and I followed her. The men ought to have stopped me, but instead they let me go. I was crazy. I did not know what I was doing until it was over. I guess it will go pretty hard with me, but I guess I will have to make the best of it now."

REPRIEVE ON HANGING DAY

Jacob Swanger, Aged 80, Was Found Dead in Cabin-Young Son of German Consul Suspected of Crime-Was Thought Insane.

HILLSHORO, May 3.—(Special.)—
The release of Henry Wintzingerode from the pentientiary after nearly 27 years of incarceration, recalls to people of Washington County a great trial, which was held here, early in June of the year 1880.

About the preceding January 10, one Jacob Swanger, aged 30, was found dead in his house about six miles northeast of this city. For two or three days neighbors had noticed that no smake was issuing from the Rabble is an old resident of this county and has always enjoyed a good reputation. When seen today in the jall he said:

"This is the first time I have been in the was not vicious, but he was incapable." was not victous, but he was incapable. Wintsingerode hed frequently asked Swanger for small sums of money, as loans, and the old man told the neighbors that he feared the young fellow. Swanger had several hundred acres of land, and was supposed to have some N. B. Mead, now of Grant's Pass, arrested the young man and he confessed to the killing, so the officers say, but he alleged that he and Swanger had a row, and he shot him in self defense.

The old man according to the prisoner's story, became violent, and he shot him and afterward struck him on the head with a hatchet. He later placed the dorman in his cabin and locked the door. Wintsingerode said the question of robbery did not enter his head until after he had killed him. He then took a few dollars in silver, hiding $50 to gold under the rug beneath the bed, thinking he would go to Portland until after the excitement died down, and he would then return and get the money in order to leave the country. Wintsingerode's father was German Consul at Portland, and the boy was well educated and a fine violinist. While the scaffold was being built he would play the violin and say, "let them go on. They can no more than hang me." Governor Thayer waited until a few hours before the execution before he sent the reprieve. N. B. Mead was the man who caught young Wintsingerode.
