Cash Raised For Release Of Prisoners

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Gen. Lucius D. Clay led a drive last weekend that quickly reached $2.9 million in cash to clinch the deal for release of the 1,113 Cuban prisoners.

A Justice Department spokesman disclosed today that the attorney general made one telephone call that brought in $1 million. The remainder was raised in a 24-hour emergency fund drive led by Clay.

The money was all in hand by Christmas Eve.

The spokesman said that during the final stages of negotiations for release of the prisoners, Cuban Premier Fidel Castro suddenly upped his demand for the $2.9 million. This was in addition to the $53 million in food and medicine which was raised by contributions from private companies.

Last April Castro made a deal with the Cuban Families Committee under which he agreed to release 60 of the most seriously wounded prisoners in the Bay of Pigs invasion of April, 1961. Castro did get the 60 free but never got the $9.9 million price he demanded.

New York attorney James B. Donovan, who negotiated release of the 1,113 prisoners Christmas Eve, reported to the attorney general last weekend that Castro had suddenly renewed his demand for the $2.9 million. Donovan said Castro threatened to renege on release of the 1,113 prisoners if the money were not provided in addition to the $53 million in food and medicine.

Marine Private William D. Schuldheisz, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Schuldheisz, 401 Summers Lane, completed two weeks of individual combat training Dec. 14 with the Second Infantry Training Regiment at Camp Pendleton.

The training provided newly enlisted Marines with a background of experience in the field under combat conditions. Lecturing exercises were completed, in addition to field trips and classroom lectures.

Under carefully selected instructors, the young Marines learned to take their places in small fighting units, each as the foreman for team and the 18-man squad.

Washington Talks Terms

SALEM (UPI) — The Washington Highway Commission will meet in special session here Friday to consider ratifying the Oregon Highway Commission's terms of sale for the remaining $23 million worth of bonds to construct part of the Astoria-Megler bridge.

Oregon is responsible for building and operating the bridge on U.S. 101, and the Washington commission has the power to concur in the terms of the bond sale.

The Oregon Legislature in 1961 authorized a $24 million bond issue to pay for the bridge. The additional $22 million sale which the Washington commission will consider is the balance.

Washington will hold approximately 10 per cent of the sale and has agreed to help pick up the deficit not to exceed $200,000 per year if the bridge operation goes in the red.

The new 4.2 mile facility now under construction is expected to open in mid-1966.

Work Day Held

MALIN — The Women's Association of Malin Presbyterian Church held a work day Dec. 6 in the church social room, with a potluck dinner at noon. The morning was spent tying quilts and sorting and packing rummage to mail to the World Council of Churches for overseas distribution.

Mrs. George Smalley, chairman, presided over the business meeting, and committee reports were given on the rummage sale and spaghetti feed proceeds. The members voted to pay all outstanding church bills for the month of November and also to remove some trees in the church yard which were damaged in a recent storm.

On Dec. 26 the women will meet at the home of Mrs. Loyal Loveness for their social meeting.

Dance Slated

A dance will be held from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. at the Moose Lodge Monday, Dec. 31, with music by Lee Gardner. Following the dance, a breakfast will be served at the cost of 75 cents per person. Dance tickets, $1 each, may be obtained from members of the lodge.

Blacklist Plan Urged By Senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., has suggested that the Pentagon blacklist any contractor whose advertising divulges vital nuclear power information.

Anderson made the proposal last spring at a meeting of the House - Senate Atomic Energy Committee. The censored record of the hearing was made public Tuesday.

Anderson produced an advertisement which he said contained "technical information which should not be released." The names of the company and the publication involved were taken out of the hearing record.

"I think one of the effective ways of dealing with it would be for the Department of Defense to cancel any contract they may have and put them on the blacklist for at least five years," Anderson said. "That is the only way you can ever bring them to comply."

Chairman Chet Holifield, D-Calif., said the advertisement was "a serious matter. I think it is giving aid and comfort to the enemy."

Anderson and Vice Adm. Hyman Rickover, head of the Navy's nuclear propulsion program, also expressed alarm over permitting foreign visitors to see some components of the nuclear plants aboard atomic-powered submarines.

"The chief of naval operations permits foreigners to tour our naval nuclear propulsion plants on the basis that a casual visit doesn't give away any technical information," Rickover said. "Our Navy officials may consider these visits casual, but you can bet that the foreign visitors don't view them casually."

"All the evidence is that foreign visitors view these visits just as I do—an unparalleled opportunity for them to get valuable technical information they can get no other way," Rickover said.

Rickover also urged the committee to support legislation that would keep his nuclear training program in operation after he retires.

Admiring his operations were "quite foreign to the way most things are done in the military," Rickover said he was afraid his program would be discarded.

Rickover said the basis for his authority now came from an executive agreement, but he urged the committee to support legislation that would make it more permanent.

If his training procedures are changed, Rickover said he felt there would be an increased chance of a nuclear accident. The military organizations have gotten to be so large that if a project is diluted it does not work well," Rickover said.

Red Policy Draws Fire

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department today termed Russia of mellowing on "anti-American campaign" through its charges of espionage in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

Department spokesman Lincoln White, speaking at a news conference, added that the campaign "hardly jibes" with statements by high Soviet officials calling for improved U.S.-Soviet relations in the aftermath of the Cuban crisis.

White said the inconsistency of these two lines of policy has been officially called to the attention of the Soviet Foreign Ministry by the U.S. Embassy in Moscow.

In letters to President Kennedy agreeing to end the Cuban Missile crisis last October, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev urged that the two countries go forward on negotiations for disarmament and other matters in the interest of peace.

While repeated an official denial of the Soviet spy charges issued by U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler in Moscow earlier today.

The latest Soviet charges were against three American Embassy employes, none of whom was apparently asked to leave the country.

Missing Driver Hunt Resumed

ALBANY (UPI) — A search was resumed this morning for Herbert Knippel, 40, Lebanon, whose auto was discovered in the South Santiam River near Sweet Home Sunday.

The Linn County Sheriff's office here said the search started Monday and was halted Christmas Day.

Deputies said there were no plans to drag the river "because the river is running so swiftly."

Knippel was last seen Dec. 14. Last Saturday, he was reported missing by his wife, and the next day Knippel's auto was found partially submerged in the river.
