PPL Warns About Safe Kite-Flying

Kite flying safety precautions would be a good topic for the breakfast table briefing for the family's space pilots, according to Pacific Power and Light Company.

With a rash of reports of kites tangled in power lines and trees, some resulting in a few power disruptions that have inconvenienced customers while creating hazards for youngsters, the power company has issued a six-point reminder about handling kites.

1. Always fly kites in an open field, well away from power lines.
2. Never use tinsel string, wet string, wire, or any twine with metal in it. Use only dry string.
3. Don't fly kites in the rain.
4. Don't dash across streets or highways while flying a kite.
5. Keep kites away from TV or radio aerials.
6. Never pull on the string or climb poles or trees to loosen a kite snagged in power lines. If your kite lodges in a power line, or in a tree near power wires, leave it there! Do not try to get it down.

Overtricks Can Hurt

By OSWALD JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

A Missouri reader wants to know if I ever have to defend against an unbeatable contract. The answer to his question is that I sure do and the contract makes, but sometimes good defense will keep declarer from an overtrick. In rubber bridge that represents a mere 30 points, but in duplicate it is likely to mean the difference between a good score and a bad one.

My son, Jim, opened the ten of hearts. Declarer called for the ace from dummy and I was able to drop the deuce.

The four of spades was led from dummy and Jim let South's king hold the trick. He wanted to give me a chance to signal in either diamonds or clubs.

South led a second spade and Jim played his ace. Now I was able to give him a signal.

I had no problem playing with Jim. He might read the seven of clubs as a high club, but I had a much surer play at my disposal. I dropped the deuce of diamonds.

This gave Jim all the information he needed. I didn't want a heart or diamond lead. I might not want a club lead either, but at least that lead was indicated. He led a club and I cashed two club tricks to hold declarer to his contract.

Had he led either a diamond or heart declarer would have been able to pull Jim's last trump and discard a club on dummy's fourth heart.

Local Bridge Players Join In National Charity Games

Prizes for high and low scores, in addition to various door prizes, will be awarded to duplicate bridge players participating in the local version of the Spring National Championship Charity Game being held in St. Louis, Wednesday, March 20.

Bridge players in more than 200 cities throughout the nation will be competing with one another, playing the identical hands as those being played in the Nationals.

The Klamath Falls edition of the game will be held at the Winema Motor Hotel, 7:30 p.m. Entry fees will go to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society and the Institute of Logopedics.

Duplicate bridge players who are without partners need not pass up the opportunity to participate in the second truly national charity game, according to Mrs. David Richardson, chairman of the local tournament.

Players needing a partner need only call Mrs. Bill Cunningham, partnership chairman, at TU 4-7177. Tickets may be purchased by contacting Bertha Harlan, TU 4-3832, or may be obtained at the Winema Hotel on the evening of the tournament.

The first nationwide charity game was played last summer when 20,000 duplicate players participated in cities all over the country and raised a total of $42,500 for the Multiple Sclerosis Fund. The local game, held at the Willard Hotel, attracted 96 players and raised a total of $154.60 for charity.

So successful was the last game that directors of the league decided to run a nationwide charity game simultaneously with the charity event of all three of its national tournaments.

The upcoming tournament, second in the league's history, is expected to top the previous record by a considerable number, since it will be played in the evening.

Red Troops Said Using Castro Garb

MIAMI (UPI)—New clashes between Russian soldiers and anti-Castro guerrillas in Cuba were reported Friday by a Cuban exile leader here.

At the same time, refugees from Havana who arrived here Friday said that Soviet troops in Cuba are now wearing the uniforms of Premier Fidel Castro's army and militia.

The exile leader, Dr. Luis Conte Aguero, said the Russians suffered "many casualties, including dead" in fighting in the Escambray mountain zone near the city of Cienfuegos. He said he received the reports from Cuban agents of two underground resistance movements he heads, the national resistance front and the Christian anti-Communist front.

Conte said Thursday that at least seven Russians were killed in fighting a month ago against anti-Castro Cubans near the town of Batabano in Havana Province.

The Cuban - Americans who arrived aboard Friday's refugee flight declined to give their names to newsmen for fear of reprisals against relatives left behind.

But they said Russian soldiers in Cuba now are wearing the same olive green uniforms standard in the Cuban army. The Russians also are using Cuban army rank and insignia, they said.

Return Forms Changed

A new Social Security form for the 42,136 companies and individuals who employ people in the Oregon District was announced recently by Internal Revenue Director A. G. Erickson with tips on how to use it.

He said the new form, which is on paper stock, replaces the old two-part form which consisted of an IBM card and a separate paper-stock schedule. The number of the old and new form remains the same—Form 941.
