SUMMER LAKE

THE DEAN CANNONS were in Riley June 12-16 to assist the George McGees with branding. On the day following their return, Mrs. Cannon and children and Mrs. Charles Clark motored to Sherwood where they were overnight guests of Mrs. Millie Mercek, mother-in-law of Mrs. Cannon.

DEBBIE CANNON stayed with the Lyle Swearingens in Paisley while attending Brownie day camp in Lakeview.

GEORGE CARLON has brought his wife, Patsy, and son, Dan, home from Portland where she had been convalescing at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knopf, following surgery.

MRS. JOHN WEDUM and two children have returned to Sacramento following a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Harvey. The Harveys accompanied Mrs. Wedum and a grandson, Gary Brunnemer, as far as Los Molinos where they visited their oldest daughter, Mrs. Louis Brunnemer, over the weekend. Ersa Million returned with them for an extended stay.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN GINTHER of Klamath Falls are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Robert Elder, and family.

THE BUD PERNOLLS were hosts to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Pernoll, Portland, for two days. Buddy had to return to Portland June 29 to start his internship at the University of Oregon Medical School Hospital the following day.

MR. AND MRS. VAN WITHERS spent the weekend in San Francisco to see his sister, Mrs. Charles Davis, and her niece, Sandra Campbell, before they embarked on a month's trip to Japan.

MR. AND MRS. LOUIS WITHERS and Glenn Harvey attended the Dale Carnegie commencement exercises at a meeting in Lakeview June 21. They were both among the graduates.

LINDA PENINGTON was a weekend guest of Susan Brattain, Paisley, while attending the Junior Rodeo in Lakeview.

THE BOB PENINGTONS had as weekend guests, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Robinson of Eugene. The two men became acquainted while attending OTI.

VERA LEONE and Virginia Harris have returned to Oakland after spending a week with cousins, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Harris. Accompanying them from Oakland was Reta Thornton, who remained for an additional week with her brother, H. C. Harris.

MRS. JOHN LOOSELY of Roseburg was here overnight June 27 to leave her two children, Steven and Judy, with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Harris, for a week.

DONALD McMULLEN, sophomore at Oregon State University, is a summer trainee at the Summer Lake Game Refuge.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN WITHERS and daughter, Mrs. James Ogle, Lakeview, were in Salem for a week while he attended a Production Credit Association meeting.

MRS. R. C. FOSTER has returned home after a visit of two weeks with her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Ankney, Eugene.

MRS. LOIS LENNINGER and children of Klamath Falls are visiting her brother's family, the Del Hands, for a week.

DR. AND MRS. J. H. POWELL of Portland were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Withers.

MARGE HIBBERT of Bly was a guest of Lora Carlon for a few days.

ELAINE FOSTER visited June 17-22 with the Herb Nelson family at Leaburg. Mrs. Nelson brought her home, accompanied by Olivia and Bill, to stay overnight with the Jim Fosters and to leave Olivia for a week. The two girls were formerly Paisley classmates.

DAIRY

MRS. KIRK CURRAN and four children of Redding visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Challis, recently.

JOHN HERSHFET of Salem and Kenneth Hershfet of Albany were visitors at the Frank Tofell home last week.

CHRISTMAS VALLEY

MRS. LOUISE DUQUETTE of Calgary visited three days last week with the Ed Cater family. She is Mrs. Cater's grandmother. With her were Mrs. Cater's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barrett, whom she had not seen for 23 years. Visitors also included Mrs. Fred Cater and Mrs. Ralph Becker of Salem.

Department Suggests New Standards For Food Container Inspection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A quality that I greatly admire is straightforwardness. I like things laid out in one-two-three order. Cards on the table. Open and above board.

In short, I like the Agriculture Department's proposed new standards for food container inspection. They take a down-to-earth, mince-no-words approach that is all too rare in the federal bureaucracy.

Suppose, for example, that you were inspecting some food containers and you noticed that one of them was leaking. In your usual slipshod manner, you probably would mark it down as defective and let it go at that.

Well, sir, under these new standards, you wouldn't get by that easily. If defects were found, you would evaluate them under a defect rating system. Then you would classify them as "minor," "major" or "critical."

In my opinion they are neoclassical in their logic and simplicity. They go like this:

"A small dent in a metal can which doesn't affect its usability is a minor defect; a tear in a fibre carton which does materially affect its usability is a major defect; and a leak in a can or jar is a critical defect."

Now that is what I call laying it on the line.

Once you have decided whether the defects are minor, major or critical, the next step is to determine whether they are "related defects" or "unrelated defects."

Related defects are defined as "defects on a single container that are related to a single cause."

"A can may be a leaker and also seriously rusted," the department explains, but only one defect is scored against it if "the rust condition can be attributed to the leak."

The defect that counts depends on "whichever condition is the most serious." In this example, the can would be scored as a "leaker" rather than "seriously rusted."

On the other hand, if the defects are "unrelated"—as when a can is rusted, dented and unlabeled—all of them count.

The next step is to determine the "total defects," which are defined as "the sum of critical, major and minor defects."

Then you establish the "acceptable quality level (AQL)," of the containers and compare the number of defects in each rating with the "acceptance number (AC)" and the "rejection number (RE)."

If the minor, major, critical and total defects do not exceed the AC of the AQL, the containers are accepted.

That is all there is to it. I think the department is to be congratulated for making it so clear.

Polish Major Asks Asylum

BERLIN (UPI) — A Polish major today flew his wife and two children to West Berlin in a single-engined Polish military plane to seek asylum in the first air escape to Red-encircled west Berlin.

To get to West Berlin the major had to fly over 50 miles of Soviet zone territory separating this isolated Western outpost from Communist-run Poland.

A U.S. spokesman said the major landed at West Berlin's Tempelhof Airport on the part of the field used by the U.S. Air Force at 3:15 p.m.

Details of the major's flight were not immediately available. A U.S. spokesman said the complete story of the escape could not be learned until the U.S. mission here found a Polish interpreter.

U.S. Reacts Sharply To Charge By South Vietnamese Prosecutor

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In Saigon, U. S. officials reacted sharply in public and bitterly in private to charges by a South Vietnamese public prosecutor that the United States had encouraged a 1960 attempt to overthrow the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The U. S. Embassy denied the charge "flatly, officially and unequivocally."

The State Department in Washington issued a similar denial.

Actually the charge was not new.

It stemmed from a short-lived revolt which began on Nov. 10, 1960, by 500 or so South Vietnamese paratroopers and marines.

The rebels seized most of Saigon's principal buildings, including Saigon Radio, and surrounded the presidential palace. Over the radio they announced that Diem's regime had been overthrown because of its autocratic rule and nepotism and has "shown itself incapable of saving the country."

Revolt Collapses

But the rebels failed to capture the president and two days later the rebellion collapsed with the arrival of loyalist troops.

The day after the collapse, Vietnamese officials accused the U.S. Embassy of encouraging the revolt and of spreading rumors in Vietnam and abroad that the Diem government was corrupt, anti-democratic and inefficient in fighting communism.

Despite U. S. assurances that it was satisfied with failure of the coup and continued all-out aid to the regime, the charges frequently have been repeated, notably by the president's brother and chief adviser, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

In 1961, as fears of another revolt against Diem's one-man rule mounted, the United States sent Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson to Saigon once more to assure Diem of its support and even more aid.

But, while the U. S. publicly supported Diem and privately urged him to institute democratic reforms, there was increasing evidence of government resentment against what it regarded as American interference.

U.S. Newsmen Harassed

United States newsmen attempting to report the "dirty, untidy, disagreeable" little war encountered government harassment and occasional refusal to renew their visas.

On the government level relations declined to a new low because of U.S. dissatisfaction with the Roman Catholic Diem's handling of his relations with South Vietnam's Buddhist majority.

A roughing up of newsmen by Vietnamese secret police also expressed the government's displeasure with them.

There seemed little doubt that Diem was out of touch with and had lost the sympathy of the people.

On Diem's side was the fact that he had put down the private armies which plunged his country into chaos after the Geneva armistice agreement of 1954, that he had instituted land reform and had made economic progress through American aid.

It was also true that it was at the insistence of his much-criticized but tough sister - in - law, Mme Nhu, that Saigon had been cleaned up and lost its luster as one of the world's outstanding sin-cities.

The question for the U.S. now to decide was whether Diem still was its best bet for a democratic South Vietnam or whether he and his family simply were holding on to power for power's sake.

No Blisters For Military

LONDON (UPI) — The British army, in another move to make military life attractive to recruits is going to issue blister-proof socks to its men.

An announcement Wednesday said the socks are made of layers of plastic mesh which renders them shock absorbent and keeps the feet warm in winter and cool in summer.

Story Telling Hour Slated

BONANZA—A story telling hour from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. will begin Thursday at the Bonanza Library and continue until the opening of school. All children from 4 to 12-years-old are invited.

The sessions will be conducted by Mildred Kelleson, librarian, assisted by Lenore Pederson and other women in the community.

LARRY SHEARER

YMCA Sets Program

The Klamath Falls YMCA will have a program at the "Y" for the four or five-week period this summer where the other youths and "Y" employes are at resident camp.

The program will consist of basketball, archery, riffery, trampoline and other indoor sports. It will be under the direction of Larry Shearer, 23, 4205 Bisbee Street. Larry is a junior at SOC and is in the education department. As part of his college requirements Larry must get 200 hours of practical experience working with children. He is a Klamath Union High School graduate.

The new program is open to all "Y" members of any age group. Call the local YMCA, TU 4-4140, to sign up or for further information.

Dinner Given For Juniors

Members of the 1963 court of the Basin Junior Roundup, to be held July 20-21, were guests of Keith Rice for dinner at the Blue Ox and later of the West Coast Shows management at the carnival.

There is a family night potluck picnic and swim night, planned for Queen Anne Rodgers of Klamath Falls, and Princesses Nelda Ackley of Tulelake and Diane Atwood of Macdoel.

The court will make a grand entry each of the two days before the rodeo performances.

Queen Anne has received a saddle blanket from the Klamath Falls Saddle Club, a silver belt buckle, and complete riding outfit. The two princesses have received riding outfits.

Chaperones are Mrs. Ida Lee Givans, Mrs. Juanita Stoehsler, both of Henley, and Mrs. Pauline Lubbe of Klamath Falls.

Mrs. Keadle Rites Held

LAKEVIEW — Funeral services were held Wednesday, July 10, at the Full Gospel Church in Lakeview for Alice Martha Keadle, 52, who died here July 7. She was a resident of Bly and had lived in Klamath County since 1950.

She was born Oct. 13, 1910, in Oklahoma and is survived by two sons, Charles Gay of Lakeview and G. L. Keadle of Anderson, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. Jim Ford of Bly and Mrs. Ruland Officer of Lakeview; one brother, Elbert Gay of Oakland, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. May Combs of Oakland, Calif., and Mrs. Minnie Lack and Mrs. Pawnee McArthur of Oklahoma.

Interment was in the Sunset Park Cemetery, with the Rev. Obed Mark officiating. Arrangements were made by Ousley-Osterman Mortuary.

Flag Burned

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika (UPI)—The Portuguese flag was torn down and burned before 15,000 persons Sunday at Mtwara in southern Tanganyika, according to reports reaching here today.

The incident was in protest against Portugal's racial policies.
