Guardsmen Attend Camp

Over 100 Klamath Basin National Guardsmen are presently undergoing two weeks of field problems and firing exercises at Camp Rilea, Warrenton, as part of the National Guard's annual summer training program.

The men are members of Batteries B and C of the 249th Artillery, SP, both of which are assigned to the National Guard Armory in Klamath Falls. The 249th group headquarters is in Portland.

Commanding the local batteries are Capt. Richard L. Gilchrist, Battery C, and Capt. Leonard D. Springer, Battery B.

Both local batteries are equipped with 40 MM self propelled guns used for air defense. The civilian soldiers will have an opportunity to get experience in live firing exercises on the guns they have become familiar with, but not fired, during training at the local armory.
