YANK MACHINE RUNS SMOOTHLY WITH YOUNGSTERS REPLACING OLD TIMERS; WHITE SOX WINNING AGAIN

The New York Yankees have achieved a winning streak of two straight games, equalling their own record for the season. They won another from the Senators in 12 innings, yesterday, using for most of the game the same lineup of substitutes and regulars which was devised as a winning combination Tuesday afternoon, when the Yanks finally took a game after losing five in a stretch. There were only four old-time Yanks on the field as the game began, including Babe Ruth.

The Yanks won 6 to 4. Earl Combs, one of the new lads on the Yank side, made four hits in five times up, knocked in three runs, and scored one himself. Bob Meusel, whose two homers may be said to have won the first game of the present winning streak, supplied another homer in the twelfth and final convulsion yesterday, his fifteenth of the season, scoring two runs.

Vean Gregg, the 40-year-old left hander of the Washington team, pitched the Senators to a tie for 9 innings. Babe Ruth fielded two flies, but failed to hit in six times at bat.

The Athletics, still the top team of the league, lost to the Red Sox in Boston, 4 to 2. Lefty Groves, the $100,000 pitcher, took his usual turn as relief man, with the Athletics, but couldn't hold the Red Sox.

The White Sox came to a stand after losing a few games, and beat the Tigers in Detroit, 12 to 7. They are still third, and the Browns, in fourth place, are maintaining the chase, for they won from the Indians again in Cleveland, 7 to 6.

There were only two games in the National league, one in the east, and one in St. Louis.

The Phillies won from the Braves in Philadelphia 5 to 4. The Reds lost to the Cards, 7 to 3.

CHAUTAUQUA TICKET SELLERS TO ACCOUNT BY THURSDAY NOON

It is desired by the local committee of the Chautauqua that all guarantors who have received tickets for sale shall account to Bert C. Thomas, Room 8, Loomis building, by Thursday noon, as settlement with Ellison-White must be made during the afternoon. If any tickets remain unsold hand them in with the proceeds of all sales.

In this connection it is important to note that if single admissions are paid for all performances the aggregate cost will be $7.25, while adult season tickets purchased before the first performance Thursday afternoon cost but $2.50 and are interchangeable in the family. After the first performance the price of adult tickets will be advanced to $3 each.

Tickets may be had from any member of the committee as shown on the front page of the program, at all drug stores and at the office of Walton & Wright, 601 Main street.

OMAHA TORNADO STRUCK

OMAHA, Neb., June 3.—A dozen houses were blown down and many others badly damaged in a small tornado which struck Omaha late today.

The storm first struck the race track, tearing off a portion of the grandstand roof and creating a panic among the 3,000 spectators.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NOUMAN E. BROWN

The recent elevation to the presidency of the Brooklyn National League club of Wilbert Robinson is pleasing to the thousands of fans, the hundreds of ball players and the host of others connected with baseball who know Uncle Robbie intimately.

Their only fear is that he may eventually find the dual role of manager and president too exacting and lay aside his managerial garb. This, in the opinion of many, would be a body blow to the club and its adherents. For Robinson draws more real affection from players and fans of his club than any other man in baseball.

He is of a different type than the others. He has developed to the nth degree, the happy faculty of winning the confidence and personal friendship of his players without losing his authority as manager and boss.

Most baseball managers will tell you that players are prone to bite the hand that's feeding them—that familiarity breeds contempt. Robinson rules his men with a swede glove instead of the mailed fist. He permits his players to retain their own individualities—carry out their own ideas of training and playing, in so far as these methods work to their and the club's advantage. That is one reason why he has such remarkable success with pitchers. He makes each hurler feel that he is directing his own activities. All that Robbie asks is results. When he presses a point he gains it—without "bearing down" on the player.

Robinson is one of four men now high in the official circles of the National League who once served terms as players. The other three are Christy Mathewson, now president of the Braves; Branch Rickey, vice president and manager of the Cardinals, and John McGraw, vice president and pilot of the Giants.

It is an interesting sidelight on this fact that two of these manager-executives entered the magnate class after long periods of service as managers—periods in which they won fame and pennants. The other two served with less distinction in managerial roles and found the road to "front office" jobs much shorter.

McGraw had been managing the New York Giants for something like two decades when the change in control of the club gave him the opportunity to acquire an interest and a vice presidency in it.

In that time McGraw won a flock of league pennants and the world's series at intervals.

Uncle Robbie has managed the Brooklyn club for 12 years. He led his team to a pennant in 1916 and again in 1920. He has come close to adding a third one in the campaigns since 1920, but couldn't nose out the Giant machine.

Brooklyn fans see bigger days ahead for the team as a result of Robinson's elevation. Robinson will have free reign in the acquiring and disposing of players and in the general conduct of the team.

* * *

The other day President Ban Johnson of the American League suspended Manager Speaker and Infielder Klugman of the Indians for three days for their run-in with Umpire (Pants) Rowland. The players, of course, committed a sin when they sassed back the umps. But those present are unanimous in saying that Rowland gave the culprits some hot words too. Now, the question is, does Rowland get some sort of punishment for breaking Johnson's rules that umpires should conduct themselves as gentlemen while discharging their duties?
