Great Northern's Proposed Extension Would Not Harm Portland Business---Gilman

PORTLAND, Ore., April 10.—Business interests in Portland will not be injured by the proposed Great Northern-Western Pacific railroad line, declared Judge L. C. Gilman, executive vice-president of the Great Northern railway, who was in the city yesterday. No diversion of traffic normally belonging to Portland will be caused by the new line, he stated.

"The proposed rail construction by the Great Northern and Western Pacific should not be considered a duplication of existing facilities," Judge Gilman pointed out. "It is rather a connection between existing facilities, which enables such facilities to so function as to give a greater service to the public, and to create a traffic route between the northwest and southwest, over which the people of those regions can more freely exchange commodities than can now be done. In addition to this, it opens up a heavily timbered region not now served by any railroad.

"This new route is of great importance to Oregon, for the reason that it gives the Portland territory a competing line to California, and gives central Oregon a through main line of railroad from the Columbia river to the California line, supported by a flow of traffic between the entire northwest and California and the entire northwest and California and southwest.

Line to Benefit City.

"There is no possibility of Portland suffering any loss by the construction proposed. Diversion of through traffic to the new line would not affect Portland's interests. Portland derives no substantial revenues from business which simply passes through it—in fact, such business is a detriment to Portland, as it serves only to congest its terminals without any corresponding benefit.

It has been estimated that Portland railroad shops would lose something in the way of car repairs. It is well known that only minor repairs are made to through cars, and any loss from that source would be negligible. A minor matter of this character should not be considered as against the benefits to Portland and all of Oregon arising from the construction of a competing line.

"For many years competitive rail service has existed between Portland, Seattle and other points north, and between Portland, Spokane and other points east. It has never been suggested by anyone that such competition is otherwise than beneficial. It is difficult to understand by what process of reasoning a conclusion can be reached that the extension of competition to California will change existing trade relations or disturb the existing rate structure. In fact, it will not have, and cannot have, any effect on either.

Investment in Portland Large.

"Much has also been said in regard to the diversion of the present rail and water traffic passing through Portland to the new line. The claim that there will be any such diversion is manifestly absurd. Traffic moves in this way because of rates below the all-rail rates. These rates are lower because of water competition. The situation will not be at all changed by the construction of another line. The water competition will still exist, and rates will still be lower by the rail and water route than by any all-rail route.

"The Great Northern has a large investment in Portland. It has been since 1893 a strong factor in its growth and development. I cannot conceive how there can be any sincerity in the claim that it is now contemplating a course that will injure a community it has done so much to build up, and at the same time destroy its own investment. If Portland will recall that this new enterprise is being opposed by the same interests that obstructed the building of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle, the Oregon Trunk and the Klamath Falls extension, all doubt as to where the interest of Oregon lies will be dissipated."

Congress to Meet Monday; Adjourn By First of July

WASHINGTON, April 10. (AP)—Belief that congress would complete its work in time for adjournment of the extra session, which begins Monday, by July 1 was expressed today by Republican Floor Leader Tilson, who returned here today.

Others are not so optimistic, and some forecasts are being made that the session will run into September.

Tilson said the farm and tariff bills would be ready for presentation to the house during the week.

The senate will take up the McNary farm relief bill on Thursday, Republican Floor Leader Watson of that body said today after a call upon President Hoover. The measure will be introduced Wednesday, he said.

The president's message will be sent up and read to both houses on Tuesday. Monday will be devoted to organization of house and senate, with election of officers.

Watson said the senate will take up reapportionment legislation after it passes a farm relief bill, and then a bill providing for the 1930 census. These will be followed by the tariff bills, which the house meanwhile will be considering.

Aimee 'Kidnaping' Probe Is Opened

tributed to newspapermen was described by him. Mrs. Kennedy and Judge Hardy were present at this meeting, Hyde said, and Judge Hardy looked at the statement and said:

"I think we had better change that."

A penciled correction was then made by Mrs. Kennedy at the advice of Judge Harvey, Hyde said.

Judge Cross-Examines

The feverish days surrounding the preliminary investigation of Aimee McPherson on charges of subornation of perjury were vividly described by W. I. Gilbert, a witness who stated that he was an attorney in the case.

He denied that Judge Hardy had ever approached him with advice or even discussed the McPherson case with him while it was in progress.

The judge cross-examined Gilbert personally and a round of laughter greeted several questions and answers during this examination.

Answer Causes Laughter

"Did you ever discuss any law connected with this case with Judge Hardy?" the jurist asked him, using the third person as has been his custom when he personally cross-examined witnesses.

"No, I didn't, Judge, but to tell the truth, there was very little law connected with this case," Gilbert replied.

A roar of laughter greeted the reply when Judge Hardy asked Gilbert:

"Were you the counsel in the McPherson case, Mr. Gilbert?"

"That's an open question in my mind, Judge," Gilbert answered.

You Fellows Lay Off

The now-famous phrase, "You fellows lay off the Aimee case," was heard again in the senate this afternoon when Robert W. Bridon, member of the grand jury in Los Angeles during the McPherson investigation testified.

Bridon said that Judge Hardy had made this statement to him in an elevator in the hall of justice in Los Angeles.

Aimee-Ormiston Next

Attempts by the defense to show that Bridon had described the scene differently at the board of managers' meeting in Los Angeles in February failed. After quibbling over legal technicalities, and the exact position in which Bridon and Judge Hardy stood when the statement was alleged to have been made, defense attorneys dropped the matter.

Wallace Moore, prosecution witness who is supposed to have seen Mrs. McPherson and Kenneth G. Ormiston in Santa Barbara the night after she disappeared, took the stand immediately before court adjourned. On the request of the prosecution, who said that his testimony would take considerable time, court adjourned without hearing from Moore.

Buford Lovell Funeral Friday

Final rites for the late Buford Lovell, popular young man of this city, who passed away in San Diego on Monday will be held in San Francisco at The National Cemetery, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Word of the final arrangements was received here yesterday by friends from Mrs. Irene McCann, mother of the young man.

For the past two years he had been with the United States Navy stationed at San Diego.

Dry Law Arrests Pay Big Amount

Eleanor Brewer took the count and paid $300, while Gertrude Morgan was assessed $350. Both were charged with sale and possession.

Violators "Hit Hard"

Those who appeared in Justice Barnes' court with the disposition of their cases were:

Mark Smith, sale and possession, put up a cash bond of $500 to appear later. He did not enter a plea but took the time allowed.

Raymond Myher, fined $150 for sale of intoxicating liquor and committed to jail.

George Mosby, sale and possession, fined $100 and committed to jail.

Harry Smith, sale, put up bond of $250 to appear later to answer the charge.

Boy's Case Dismissed

Babe Clark, sale, fined $200 and put in jail.

Pete Costich, sale and possession, $100, committed to jail.

Ralph Johnson was released from jail when Pat and Brady Montgomery put up a bond of $200 for his appearance. Johnson was charged with sale of liquor.

Tom Barkley, sale and possession, fined $500 and committed to jail.

Charge against Russell Barkley, a boy, for sale of liquor was dismissed.

60 In Jail

In each case where the defendant was fined a plea of guilty had been entered. When they were unable to pay fines assessed or furnish bond they were committed to jail.

Yesterday morning 60 prisoners were in the county jail, the greatest number ever to be incarcerated in the county jail at one time.

Federal, state and city officers combined in the raids Tuesday night and brought in the largest number ever caught on liquor charges in one evening in this county.

Pelican Loggers Set New Record

men. The equipment used in bringing the logs to the landing consisted of five Best 60 tractors and one Monarch 75 tractor which operated six slip tongue high wheels. The equipment averaged 104,000 board feet per caterpillar.

Second Record by Baker

The logs were hoisted to the cars with a McGifford quarter swing loader and the loader handled its own cars, the locomotive being in attendance merely to take away the empties when the string became too long.

The logging operations of the Pelican Bay Lumber company are under the supervision of J. C. Johnston, and Pete Baker was in charge of the crew making this record. This is the second record Mr. Baker has made. His former record was made at the Algoma Lumber company camp in 1924, when 40 cars containing 429,900 feet were loaded with five horse wheels and two old type five-ton caterpillars.

The Record-Making Crew

The names and position of the men who are entitled to the credit of making the record are:

Jammer engineer, Tom Dubruill; top loader, Gus Anderson; fireman, F. D. Crawford; woodbuck, A. H. Hillar; second chainman, Al Verden; sin pole man, William Scott; sin pole man, Earl Scott; hookers, E. L. Edmundson, J. P. Hazel, Charles O'Brien, H. E. Coleman; toggle knocker, Henry Burke; bull cook, Dan McMullen; tractor mechanic, H. A. Smallfield; tractor drivers, Joe Barrett, John Price, Frank Silva, R. Peck, J. W. Sullivan, M. R. Guiness; wheel loaders, George Stebbins, Mike Brtox, Joe O'Brien, Henry Sandberg, Cliff Campbell, F. A. McDonald.

Train crew: Conductor, E. P. Brady; brakeman, Fred Brooks; engineer, R. McCollum; fireman, Joe Myerscough.

Official scalers: Ray Shipman, George Jones, J. B. Brennan.

Official observers and timekeepers: John D. Hoist, U. S. forest service, in charge of the timber sale; Messrs. Zee, Moffat, Petri and Collins of the Indian department.

These observers record that many of the cars were loaded on the minimum of five minutes per car and some at the maximum time of nine minutes per car.
