The season for shipments is through although a few scattered shipments will to forward from time to time in some of the assorted cars.

The apriod shipment is practically over. There were shipped about the number of cars expected at the beginning of the season and everything in their connection has been as anticipated.

In plums and prunes there was a marked increase in shipments, mostly of the better varieties, as anticipated. The shipments for the next week will be steady and about the same volume. Quality is reported fine from all diluticits and we look for them to give spiendid satisfaction in all markets.

Three cars of pears were shipped. These such as Wilder and Keume. Very few Bartlets to amount to anything will be shipped until immediately after the Fourth of July, though a few have been and will continue to go forward in half-hoxes from Winters and Vacaville. They are growing nicely and will be much cleaner and generally better quality than last year.

No damage to grappes is reported from any district or to any variety. Prospects good.

especially in view of the fact that only one more banking day remains to be bridged before the time for disbursements.

The stock market was still in professional hands to a large extent, but indications of the countenance given to the movement by important financial interests added to its influence on speculative sentiment. Stocks were distributed in scanty supply and this was the mainstay of the professional operations for the rise. They were thus made effective, although on a rather small scale. Operators for the rise avowedly based the movement on the hope of an investment demand for stocks springing up after the first of the month as a result of the effect to reinvest the proceeds of dividents and interest distribution. The rise in stocks, therefore, will be dependent for its justification upon the development of this later demand, and also upon the quick subsidence of the effect of the extra demands upon the money market.

The New York money market is usually slower to react from the periodical settlements than are the great foreign money markets. Money was strong in London today, but discounts were easy in anticipation of an early lowering of money rates. The Bank of France, while reporting a gain in gold of nearly Side50,000, showed a loan expansion of $18.785,000, as a prejude to the coming settlements. Sterling exchange yielded a fraction in Paris, but was also lower here. Tomorrow's New York city bond offering attracts large attention and the better feeling in the market was parily due to reassuring reports of the likelihood of the whole $20,000,000 being subscribed for.

the conclusion that supplies at the mills are not so very large after all. Already there has been some purchasing of delains wool, to strive. The reason given by manufacturers for their operations in country markets is that they had to have the wool.

This is the most builts view of Boston possibilities. Everything, however, depends upon the volume of the demand when supplies from the new clip are received in quantity. Should it be sisady and large, holders should that they had to have the wool.

The poultry market is steady, with the demand principally for here and large Springs.

the Increase.

Semi-Yearly Settlement Likely to Be

NEW YORK, June 27.—The rise in prices of stocks today was a clear reflection of the growing confidence in financial circles that the principal troubles ils behind rather than before. This sentiment has been underlying the surface of market operations for some time past, affected by the constraint of possible money market complications in connection with the semi-yearly settlements. The flurry in call-money today testified that the semi-annual period is not to be exempted entirely from the effects on money rates. Today's movement of call-loan rates was so moderate, however, as to leave an effect of confidence, especially in view of the fact that only one more banking day remains to be bridged before the time for disbursaments.

Scramble of Shorts Causes Great Excitement.

Prices Sent Above the Dollar Mark in the Last Hour of Trading. Other Cereals Are Also Affected.

CHICAGO, June 27 .- In a sensational ad-

CHICAGO, June 27.—In a sensational advance, caused by the covering of shorts, the price of wheat on the leoal exchange today shot past the dollar mark, the December delivery seiling at $1.03%. At the same time the September option sold at $1 even. Part of this advance was subsequently lost on realizing sales. At the close September wheat was up $3.c. December wheat was $1.c. higher. Corn was up $1.c. Oats were $1.c. higher. Provisions were 5.07% to 10.012% higher. Provisions were 5.07% to 10.012% higher. The sharp advance in wheat took place in the last hour of trading, and was the culmination of numerous reports regarding the alleged serious shortage of wheat in the Southwest. The situation today contained no new features, but when a few shorts commenced to cover about the noon hour they found the market almost bare of offerings. This frightened the shorts, and in an instant there was a wild scramble for what little wheat was offered for sale. From a dull, dragging affair, the market became one of intense excitement, while prices rose % to be at a jump. When the September delivery touched $1 and December sold at $1.03%, longs began to sell freely and brought about a quick decline. September drapping to 18%c and December to $1.01. The close, however, was strong. September opened %c lower to %c and then at 30% $9.05%c, sold off to 94%c and then advanced to $1.01. The close was at 99c. at 95% @95%c, sold off to 94%c and then
