Few Realize Development in Golf In Recent Years

finest 9-hole courses in this part of the state and those who play it are its boosters far and wide.

Last Sunday inaugurated the local tournament season with a flag and blind bogey match between the club members and while mid-season form was not displayed by all its entrants, some good brand of golf was unleashed for a starter. Ben Brickel won the flag tournament by planting his marker several strokes ahead of his nearest competitors, namely Bill Heath and Emil Messing, who finished in this order. Prizes were balls offered by the tournament committee.

Blind bogey was won by Milo King, who with his score of a net 78, was nearest the lucky number chosen by chance. Golfer King also carted away several balls for his day's efforts so altogether the Riverview boys did not fare so badly, and they never do, for by both ladies and men, the local club recruits some of its best golfers from this section of the city.

Next Sunday, June 11, as announced previously, brings the Forest Hills club here for the first of a home and home match, Captain Doc Cole and his team have their hearts set on winning this match, for various and obvious reasons, the obvious being that the Vernonia pellet pushers look very unkindly towards being walloped by the Washington county champs—and it might happen. Sixteen of that clubs finest stylists will enjoy the hospitality of the Vernonia boys and a like number will return the compliment on a later date at their fine course in Cornelius.

The match will start promptly at 9 o'clock. Caddies are requested to be on hand at 8:30.

G. A. Nelson Gives Advice about Late Garden Planting

Cold, backward weather has held back many gardens, caused some seed to rot, requiring replanting, and causing considerable trouble to those growing vegetable gardens in the county, points out County Agent Nelson.

The May schedule of planting, which included in most gardens sweet corn, snap beans, lima beans, tomatoes, squash, cucumbers, and pumpkins, which has been delayed or failed because of cold, backward weather should now be planted, it is suggested.

"An important item in the farm family garden which should receive attention now, if not already done, is the planting of an outdoor seedbed for the production of plants of late cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower, curly kale, and several other allied crops," points out Professor Bouquet of the state college in a recent communication to County Agent Nelson. Plants grown in these seed bers can be transplanted in about six weeks. Professor Bouquet particularly emphasized that every garden should grow plenty of tomatoes, as canned tomatoes provide essential elements in the diet during winter months.

More lettuce also can be planted of the Hanson or Iceberg variety, both of which stand warm temperatures well. Swiss chard for greens will also take the place of spinach or other greens which have failed to produce and will be productive until serious fall frosts.

NO OUTSIDE HELP NEEDED FOR BERRIES

(Hood River Glacier)

News was broadcast to the outside world yesterday that no extra help will be needed this year to harvest Hood River valley's strawberry crop. As a result of the damage caused by sub-zero temperatures when the berry vines were covered by no protecting blanket of snow, the local berry crop, it is declared, will be no more than 25 per cent of normal. Families engaged in seasonal fruit work and accustomed to find jobs in mid-Columbia berry fields have been arriving here in increasing numbers the past several days. Many of the newcomers reach the city with funds exhausted. Because of lack of cash local charity is unable to stand the strain placed by demands of outside help.

Advertising Aids Business Revival

NEW YORK.—Aggressive concerns are expanding business by effective advertising despite depressed business conditions, declared A. W. Diller, advertising counsel, at a bankers' conference here recently.

"Is 1933 a good year in which to advertise?" Mr. Diller asked. "Yes, if 1933 is a good year to stay in business, to reinforce the public's confidence in you, to put more business on the books. There is new business to be had today and aggressive companies are getting it. But new business will come in only if you go out for it. Advertising certainly goes out for it.

"Will people read newspaper advertisements these days? They will read anything that interests them. There are plenty of present-day arguments for business. Instead of asking 'How often should newspaper advertising appear,' it would be better to ask 'How often is it wise these days to neglect contacts with possible customers?'

Helping Each Other
A community can often be judged by its utility service. Good public utility service is essential to the growth and expansion of any town or city.
In turn, the prosperity of the utility is dependent upon the cities and towns it serves. This interdependence serves at once to develope both.
Naturally we try to give you the best possible service, for it is only by helping you that we can help ourselves. We want our service to you to be of such a high standard that we will be looked upon as a welcome part of the daily life and activity of your community.
