Was newspaper advertising a success with you last year? If not—why not? It pays others. It ought to pay you; and will, if wisely done. Get a good article, advertise liberally but judiciously; advertise the truth; set forth the announcement in a neat, simple, but pleasing way, and satisfactory results will follow.

DOCTORS.—The Sunday Welcome says: The Welcome notices lately in several of its exchanges doubts expressed as to the real cause that led to the killing of Marion Martin, an old pioneer of Lane county; and suspicion is growing throughout the state that the whole truth has not been told by Mrs. Taylor, who claims to have shot him to preserve her honor.

HOW TO CURE A COLD.—"I'll cure any cold you ever heard of, with the simplest remedy you ever saw," said a lady vocalist of considerable reputation on both sides of the Atlantic. "It's oysters. Just plain, simple every-day raw oysters. I've sung fourteen years here and in the old country, and you may imagine that the climate has often got the better of my lungs, but I rely upon oysters, and they can be depended on. My husband told me of this kind of medicine, and I don't know how many years he had used them. They act as beneficially on my children—and the next time you have a cough go to the oyster bar instead of a drug store."—Boston Globe.

A JOLLY TIME.—The Old Folks' Whist club met on their regular evening last night at the residence of Mr. R. B. Fleming, corner of Cottage and Center streets. To vary the usual custom, drive whist was indulged in until 9:30, when the committee was appointed to award the prizes and determine the proper names for the awards. As soon as this was arranged a bountiful lunch was served by Mrs. Fleming, it being the anniversary of some friend whose name the reporter could not obtain. Some objected to the lavish assortment of cakes, but all voted the hostess hearty thanks for her efforts to make the occasion so enjoyable. The rules of the club prohibit lunch, but on important occasions it is left to the discretion of the persons entertaining the club. Those who were present pronounce it the success of the season.

INSANE FROM BEREAVEMENT.—This morning an officer from Portland arrived in the city with Mrs. Zelena Porchet, a French-Swiss woman, who will receive treatment at the asylum for the insane. About three years ago her husband, John Porchet, a stonecutter, was accidently drowned at the Cascade locks, which misfortune at once began to prey upon her mind, and her dementia has assumed a serious phase. For a time she was confined in St. Vincent's hospital, and after partial recovery she was there employed as a domestic, but more recently she worked in a private family. She is but 25 years of age, and has been the mother of thirteen children, seven of whom are living. The eldest is fifteen and the youngest only 3½ years old. The authorities think that with proper treatment she will soon be her former self again. The poor unfortunate children will be cared for.

MISS COUTHOUI AT PORTLAND.—The dramatic readings of Miss Jessie Couthoui at the Y. M. C. A. hall last night were received with warm and continued applause. Each selection received a hearty encore. Miss Couthoui more than fulfilled the expectations of her admirers and succeeded in delighting all. She has rare powers of mimicry, and her varied facial expressions are remarkable. She possesses a sound, full and rich voice, which is under admirable command, whether impersonating the cold and haughty King John or the pleading voice of little Arthur. Her reading of "Uncle Reuben's Trials," in which she introduced the way down South melodies, moved the audience to constant laughter.—To-day's Oregonian.

ALL NIGHT ON A MUD FLAT.—McMinnville people are investing in Astoria real estate, among them Wm. Gilson, who has found the length, the breadth and the depth of one of Astoria's mud flats, says the Telephone Register. It seems that he desired to look up some acre property on the Lewis and Clarke river, and accompanied by L. Loughary left this city for Astoria. On the 31st of December while the judge was warming his shins in front of a good coal fire, William started in a dugout to find the land. The sea began to roll a little too high for the canoe, so he put for a mud flat which contained a solitary tree. The tide was coming in, and in due course of time our Yamhiller was forced to climb the tree or get wet. He never took water before so he took the tree. When the tide went down the sea quieted, and the party made for the mainland where they built a fire and William raised the umbrella to shield him from the piercing wind. The fire caught the umberella unbeknown to him and burned the cloth, and it was several hours before the fact became known to the holder. Mr. Gilson has the umbrella on exhibition at his ranch a few miles from this city. The party finally got back to the city after an absence of a day and a half without a thing to eat. Land in this neighborhood is cheaper than in Astoria and persons do not have to suffer the hardships mentioned in order to find it.

"HANS, THE BOATMAN."—"Hans, the Boatman," the first American play to receive recognition as such from the English critics, was written for and first played by Charles Arnold in England. Mr. Arnold presented the somewhat peculiar aspect of an American actor, with an American play, treating of essentially American phases of life and with an American locale, boldly going before English critics, who had refused to allow that "the states" had any "stage literature" worthy of the name. Flying thus in the face of iron-bound conservatism, his pluck and audacity challenged admiration, and his talents as an actor and the intrinsic value of "Hans" as a play, demanded praise.

Both were accorded him in the fullest measure, and from the initial performance in Sheffield throughout the long run of forty-six weeks in London, where it was witnessed by the nobility and royalty, on through a year's season in Australia, New Zealand and the antipodes, nothing but praise has been heard of this charming drama. It is an idyllic poem treating of the beautiful phases of child life, with a strong romantic story furnishing the dramatic thread.

Mr. Arnold sings several sweet ballads, and his quaint Swiss-American dialect is extremely fetching. Little May Hanan, the bright five-year-old actress, who plays the role of the "Baby Coquette," is the brightest child actress on the American stage, and has accompanied Mr. Arnold throughout his English and Australian tour. "Nord," the majestic St. Bernard dog that plays the part of Lion, is the only dog on the stage to-day that acts from a cue.

"Hans, the Boatman," will be seen at Reed's opera house next Friday evening, and Saturday matinee.

Some Views on the Tax Question.

To the Editor of the Capital Journal:

It is time the tax question was sensibly considered, and the fog brushed away. The fact that non-taxable bonds exist is evidence that they can be and are used to defraud the honest tax payer. The arm that feeds, shelters and protects us can be paralyzed by an unjust system of taxation. But when we discuss the matter, it is usually for the purpose of misguiding. With the present suspicious arrangement the people are growing uneasy, and at no distant day taxes will be collected very much the same as rents are in Ireland, or in Rome before the fall.

Either of the following methods would greatly simplyfy matters, but could not be made a law in an Oregon legislature, as manipulated in by-gone days. Every person giving in under an oath that will imprison if false, giving in all the property owned, all of one certain day in each year. Every one having a blank to fill on that day—the number of each non-taxable bond to be given in said tax lists. It would not be necessary for the "educated assessor to ask Mr. Hardup when he will be ready to be assessed." The imprisonment of the person swearing off taxes, and the confiscation to the state of the property, would make the asessment roll very much more formidable. It is a fact that all the money passes through the tax collector's hands once each year, and the present system makes it interesting for the people whose property is all in sight. If either system should ever prevail, non-taxable bonds would depreciate. CIT.
