"German Syrup"

J. C. Davis, Rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, Eufaula, Ala.: "My son has been badly afflicted with a fearful and threatening cough for several months, and after trying several prescriptions from physicians which failed to relieve him, he has been perfectly restored by the use of two bottles of Boschee's German Syrup. I can recommend it without hesitation." Chronic severe, deep-seated coughs like this are as severe tests as a remedy can be subjected to. It is for these long-standing cases that Boschee's German Syrup is made a specialty. Many others afflicted as this lad was, will do well to make a note of this.

An Episcopal Rector.

J. P. Arnold, Montevideo, Minn., writes: I always use German Syrup for a Cold on the Lungs. I have never found an equal to it—far less a superior. ®

Not the Girl.

A young Esquimaux seal hunter had become engaged to the daughter of a rich neighbor, but was unable to obtain the consent of her parents to a speedy marriage.

Between the cake of ice on which the young suitor had erected his hut and the larger floe which was pre-empted by the parents of his sweetheart the cold had broken an impassable crevasse some hundred feet or more in depth, and twenty in width. Save for a single jutting fragment, just thick enough to bear little more than his own weight, his home was completely cut off from the world about him. This practical isolation inspired him.

He began storing up in his humble quarters oil, blubber and other delicacies sufficient for the support of two persons for at least six months. He had resolved to steal his bride, and knew that if he gained his ice floe with her and broke down the bridge they were safe from trouble or pursuit for the winter season, or until the warmer weather of the summer moved the icebergs to closer contact. By that time he hoped the opposition of the parents would give way to pardon and reconciliation.

The Esquimaux sleep on a raised snow bank on one side of the igloo, or icehouse. Encased in their sealskin nightbags, with a huge protecting hood over the head and face, they are as comfortable as their natures require.

The youth waited outside the girl's house until he thought that all within were asleep; then creeping through the narrow entrance, he made his way toward the young woman. He seized the long, leglike mass in which her form was incased, bore it triumphantly across the narrow bridge to his stronghold, and before pursuit was possible, with his ax cut down the ice bridge and was safe.

Not waiting to hear the objurgations of those on the other side of the abyss, he knelt down beside her and dragged back the hood to catch a glimpse of her face.

He had stolen his intended father-in-law.—Parsons' Weekly.

Soldier and Squaw.

A well authenticated story of the slaughter at Pine Ridge is that of an Irish soldier who, kneeling with his comrades behind a bank, was shot close to the heart.

"Faith," he exclaimed, "I'm shure it's all over wid me! Rowl me round, boys, an' make a fince of me."

The next moment he was dead. They obeyed him and used his body as a rampart.

Another incident is told of the same fight worthy of note. A squaw retreated backward before the terrific fire of the white soldiers, holding both hands behind her.

She fell at last, pierced with many bullets. It was found that she had sheltered a baby with her wounded body—a baby, ugly and copper colored like herself. She was killed. The child was saved. It gives the story more meaning, perhaps, to know that it was not her own.

Could not these red and white skinned human beings, in both of whom such heroic courage and self sacrifice were possible, have found better occupation than murdering each other?

The same problem has arisen in every war since the beginning of the world.

"The Romans," says an old writer, "kept their legions removed from the foe, lest coming closer they should look into each other's eyes, and recognize brother's and friends where they had thought to find enemies."—Youth's Companion.

"On the Road" Before Railroads Came.

"Speaking of a man's age," said William C. Overton, "I don't believe I could ever repeat my theatrical experience and live through it. We used to do the territories of the wild west before the railroads reached the principal towns, and we had some rough times, I can tell you. I would go on for a leading part, work like a slave for three or four hours, go to the hotel at mid night, pack my trunks, get them into a wagon and away we'd go to the next town. Trying to sleep on your trunk along a lonely road, in the cold and wet, the wagon jolting your liver into all sorts of shapes, is not pleasant, and when to this is added an absence of breakfast until 10 or 11 o'clock in the morning your unhappiness is complete. Of course this experience was not of daily occurrence, but it came often enough for personal discomfort. Had lots of fun, certainly, but we paid for it."—St. Louis Republic.

The Jews and Insanity.

Insanity among Jews is increasing. In the lunatic asylums of Prussia the number of Jews is said to have nearly quadrupled in sixteen years. According to the statistics of the German empire there are 369 insane Jews in every 100,000 of their number, against 241 insane Protestants and 237 insane Roman Catholics in the 100,000.—New York Post.

A Choice Seat.

Theater Goer (looking over diagram) —I will take this seat.

Box Bookkeeper—One of the pillars is directly in front of that seat, sir.

Theater Goer—So I observed. I prefer a pillar to a high hat.—New York World.

A shopkeeper recommended a silk dress material to one of his fair customers. "Let me advise you to take a dozen yards of this silk. It is everlasting wear, and you can afterward make it into an underskirt."—Fliegende Blatter.

GENERAL NEWS NOTES.

Chief Justice Fuller and party were tendered a grand reception by the people of Seattle on Tuesday.

It now seems likely that Dr. Spurgeon will recover. He sleeps and eats well. His gout is subsiding and he takes an interest in things around.

Eli Croston, a prosperous farmer of Downey, Cal., was found in a cornfield Tuesday shot through the heart by an unknown murderer.

Philo Johns, of Fresno, Cal., was shot and killed Tuesday by John B. Murphy, on account of the latter's wife, who had become infatuated with Johns.

A review of the commerce of the United States shows the past year to have been the greatest business year ever known. The total business amounted to $1,729,339,866.

John and Alex Hamilton, brothers, while bathing in the bay at Gray's harbor Tuesday, ventured out beyond the breakers and were drowned. They were expert swimmers.

The sum of $75,000 is missing from the express office at Kountze, Tex., a big sawmill center. Officials are making an investigation but are very reticent.

Thomas Burke, a San Francisco expressman, formerly a fireman on one of the Nanaimo colliers, has been caught smuggling. Opium valued at $2500 was found in his possession.

At Warren, O., Ed Caldwell, colored, and John Tumason took refuge under a tree during a storm. Lightning struck the tree, and both were killed.

The village of Taberg, N. Y., was visited by fire Tuesday, which rendered several families homeless and seriously crippled the business interests of the place; loss $25,000.

The body of Edmund Davis Woodsel, the wellknown young printer who was drowned Sunday near Eryte ranch while bathing in the Sacramento river, has been recovered.

Two freight trains on the Fort Wayne road collided near Salem, O. Several train hands were badly injured, and a tramp who was stealing a ride is believed to have been killed.

Lucas Dougherty, Jerry O'Brien and Willie O'Brien, aged 15, 9 and 12 years, were playing on a raft in the Ohio river at Pittsburg. A strong current swept the raft under a coal barge. The two first named were drowned; the latter swam ashore.

There is a well authenticated rumor floating about town that Edwin Booth is dying from the effects of too much smoking. He is such a slave to the weed that he cannot stop smoking, even though he knows it is killing him. Its effect upon his health is just as fatal, though not of the same character, as that which shut out the life of General Grant. Joe Jefferson and ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland have been striving to reform Mr. Booth in this respect and for awhile they partially succeeded, but the habit had to strong a hold upon him and his indulgences became more unrestrained than ever. It is because of this relapse and because he can get no better in health that he left suddenly last Saturday. He has gone to Narragansett pier.

The resumption of the Welsh tinplate works is only partial, if the firms are fortunate enough to secure orders. The works will only run while orders last, by week to week contracts with the men. No appreciable reduction of stocks in America is noticed. Prices are still unremunerative. During July, shipments from Swansea have been under 1000 tons weekly, as against 40,000 to 50,000 tons in the same month in 1890, while the stock now on hand amounts to 400,000 boxes, against 1,500,000 boxes in the corresponding week in 1890. It is estimated three months must elapse before the trade becomes brisk again, but general confidence is felt among manufacturers that the trade will regulate itself within six months. The threatened American competition causes no serious alarm to most manufacturers, though some of the less sanguine think the Americans will eventually succeed in establishing the trade, especially as they will be able to adopt labor saving appliances, attempts to introduce which have already incurred the resentment of the men and will inevitably lead to a severe struggle. The Daniel Edwards company are unable to resume, their men declining to work the new Box patents from America. Other firms are also idle, their men refusing to work at reduced wages. The attitude of the workmen is largely the outcome of inquiries of American agents for labor. If the masters bets do not concede the demands of the men the latter know they can secure employment in America. The relationship between capital and labor is becoming strained, and it is feared employers will be forced to consider the advisability of transferring their business to America. Manufacturers have offered to reopen the works on lower wages, simply to give the men employment and without hope of profit. The secretary of the Flintshire Masters' association is an intensely confirmed free trader. But added that you nothing to fear from American competition.

The Little [illegible] Fell has arrived at Kingsmill [illegible] days out from London. [illegible] a modern fairy steamer which [illegible] and [illegible] their expensive engines and [illegible] high speed.

cargo consists of 1,600 tons of steel rails with tons of accessories, including fish plates, bolts, spikes etc, and 150 tons of locomotives and flat cars for use of construction Peninsular railroad. The steamer Quentin, where the steamer Carlos Pacheco has gone to San Quentin, where the steamer Folwell will discharge her cargo on lighters, using the Pacheco as a low, the water not being of sufficient depth to allow the Fulwell to lie alongside the wharf as she draws two feet of water. The Pacheco will be absent about two weeks. The steamer Newburn will do work between this port, Ensenada and San Quentin in the meantime. Active work of surveying the line of the Peninsular road between Tia Juna and the junction with the line from San Quentin north has actually begun. The company has shipped to Tia Juna the necessary material to be used in making the survey.

DO YOU FAVOR

Building up a Strong, Independent Paper for the People in Oregon?

A PAPER THAT WILL NOT SELL OUT—Printed at the Seat of Government

LOOK AT THE RECORD OF THE CAPITAL JOURNAL.

During the recent session of the legislature it was the only paper in the state that attacked successfully the Portland dictatorship in Oregon politics. It successfully opposed all doctoring the Australian ballot law to the interests of political bosses. It advocated the law (that passed) giving the Oregon railroad commission power to fix just and reasonable not a of freight and power to enforce its decisions. It successfully advocated retention of the old railroad commission as best qualified to enforce the law. It labored for all measures to open rivers and thus secure to the people the right to free and unrestricted use of the waterways.

ITS PLATFORM.

THE CAPITAL JOURNAL favors a reform in national finance, to the end that the present expensive monopoly system of supplying an inadequate currency may be supplanted by the government issuing direct to the people an adequate supply of legal tender money, with a coin basis sufficient to conform to sound bankers principles. It favors election of all officials who legislate for, or are directly responsible to the people, by direct vote of the people. It favors raising all state revenues by a tax on the gross earnings of corporations, both foreign and state. It favors opening all waterways to the sea and a control of all common carriers to the end that the producer shall secure to his labor the largest net return.

If you favor establishing all powers possible in the hands of the people and government in the interests of the people, do what this paper. For terms, see elsewhere.
