PRESIDENT M'KINLEY AND HIS BELOVED PASTORS

The national Prohibition platform is the hottest shot fired so far. It is a stump speech but a good one. It is more of a denunciatory inflammatory slogan and appeal to orthodox prejudice than even the McKinley composition. But the salvation-in-turnip-juice people have certainly succeeded in giving McKinley a cold water douche on his diaphram at a time when he was in need of their prayerful support.

The difficulty with the Prohi hydraulics is that it is charged with high-pressure facts and frozen truths.

It says: "McKinley was elected by appeals to CHRISTIAN SENTIMENT and PATRIOTISM ALMOST UNPRECEDENTED, and by a COMBINATION of MORAL INFLUENCES NEVER BEFORE SEEN IN THIS COUNTRY." The above is a solemn confession of the double-dealing fraud and hypocricy of the 1896 Mark Hanna moral-wave campaign.

Recall what was done 1896. The national Republican committee made direct appeals for the support of all the churches, Catholic and Protestant, Jew, Gentile and Mormon to save the honor and intergity of the nation, to protect the interests of God, home and native land, by defeating Bryan and electing McKinley. It was successfully represented as a solemn morel religious duty. This office was supplied with tearful, red-eyed sanctimonious appeals, urging all ministers to preach and pray and vote for the only party of morality and honesty.

Methodist bishops, Jewish rabbis, and priests were enlisted as campaign boomers for McKinley and Sound Money. Archbishop Ireland was kept busy sending out appeals to the Catholic clergy and laymen to stand firm for the cause of national purity and uprightness in public affairs. It was a glorious appeal to organize orthodox righteousness all over the land to save our children and grandchildren from the blight of Bryanism.

About a month before the November 1896 election at Salem, by solemn proclamation of the Protestant churches all over the nation, a public prayer meeting was held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, in which all the pastors of the city were asked to unite in supplications for salvation from the anarchists, revolutionists and fiatists, who were opposing the restoration of prosperity. It will now be in order for all who participated to read what their prayers accomplished as set forth in the Prohibition platform.

The movement among the churches and the Prohibitition vote was a great factor in carrying Oregon for McKinley and Sound money in 1896. No one can doubt that McKinley and Mark Hanna have again started in to bombard and bamboozle the churches for political co-operation in 1900. Behold the regularity with which doses of political slush are sent out about forcing the sultan of Turkey to pay that $90,000 Missionary claim—or surrender every last jewel in his harem.

The destruction of missionary schools and meeting houses in China will now be the string to harp on for all there is in it. At the proper moment, in the agony of "What shall we do to besaved?" an army will be called out, Mark Hanna's battle-cry and bottle-cry will go forth, and the interests of humanity and religion will be exploited to enable the far-seeing bell-wether of lirer McKinley's political flocks, the voting cattle of a thousand hills, the whole religious aggregation of allied forces, into successful battle array in November, cold-water Baptists, stiff-necked Presbyterians, shouting Methodists, the loyal followers of Ireland, and all.

In Ohio the ministers and temperance people made an united protest against the president of the state liquor dealers league being made national committeeman for that state. But the state convention turned down these cold water Republicans. The canteen won again and George B. Cox was chosen to represent the Republican party of Ohio on the national committee.

The prayers and petitions of the Buckeye clergy and temperance people from their congregations availed nothing with Hanna and Foraker in keeping the man of influence with the saloon-keepers off the committee.

The place was promised to Cox for services rendered to Nash, McKinley, Foraker and Hanna in past elections. He will now issue his campaign orders from the roof instead of the cellar. He will stand out in full view and not remain in hiding when rounding up ministers and laymen to the polls.

Cox in the past, whatever his character, was less a hypocrite than those who voted as he dictated, affecting to disbelieve in his presence and influence in dictating nominations and shaping the policy of the Republican party.

But how shall Cox be classified? He stands alone, unique a "living picture" to the eye of religious connisseurs who vote the Republican ticket and shout for Hanna, McKinley and the canteen. But it looks as if the tide had turned. The Prohi platform names McKinley and damns his administration from Cuba to Alaska.

Whose Champion Are You?.

Is it your own city or another that you are helping to build up? Those who smoke "Our Champions" enjoy a good cigar and patronize home industry.

GATH'S STUDY OF ROOSEVELT.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt is descended from the Holland men who fought Spain for their independence, not seven, but seventy years.

Roosevelt is a man of literary incentive, with a warm brain, more like Walter Raleigh than any Dutchman.

He had imbibed admiration for the wild cowboys on the plains, where he had a cattle range. He thought of a man, Dr. Wood, who possessed superior experience to his own in utilizing these cowboys.

With the true executive discrimination, he made this unknown Wood, not himself, the colonel of the Rough Riders, taking himself the lieutenant colonelcy.

The organization highly distinguished itself and Colonel Wood is the very man who has shown up the postal frauds in Cuba.*

New York had prepared itself to go Democratic, when Roosevelt was nominated for governor. He was saved by the votes of Democratic young men who said that he had sand in him.

The man of fame, the old fashioned, poetical man, is restored to the Republican party in Roosevelt.

Roosevelt, to some persons betokens the revival of literature of this country, which the era of mere prosperity has discouraged.

I have had two occasions to make a small study of Theodore Roosevelt.

He sat close to me some years ago at Chicago, to address the Marquette club, and Warner Miller was the ponderous speaker there, I think.

But the young men all wanted to hear Roosevelt, and that was long before the Cuba war.

Roosevelt as a quantity preceded war.

Roosevelt delivered from manuscript, but with force, his address upon the realities of politics. It was plain to me that the youths of the Republican party forefelt, or foresaw, in Roosevelt the man we now see in 1900 carrying away the convention.

As Roosevelt has won almost everything by directness and velocity, the rounding up of his career has been somewhat worried by the necessity of subduing himself.

Roosevelt has betrayed no passion to become very rich. This is perhaps why the corporations in New York city are said to fear him.

But nobody expects to find Roosevelt in the ice trust.

When he came home from Cuba nobody thought of offering him a subscription.

I should say that he was not a very rich man and perhaps poor among the Roosevelts, who belong to both the political parties.
