THE CRY OF THE YOUNG WOMEN.

Give me liberty to live!
We are so young and strong,
So fit for work and love,
For laughter and for song:
O World, our joy is in thy hand,
Withholden long and long.

Life called us, not desire for life,
And we obedient came;
Were blindfold set, nor knowing why,
To play Fate's losing game.
For foolish stakes, a cast of dice,
Each holds a dream within her heart
Of future or of past,
A dream of mother love, or child,
Too poignant sweet to last,
A mirage dim in dimming eyes,
We know—but hold it fast.

BY ALL MEANS, DO NOT SKIP YOUR OUTING

Take a summer outing. Do not miss a vacation, if it is only for a few days or a week. Take a trip to the ocean and camp or live in a cottage with your family. Spend a month in the mountains and live in a cabin or sleep in your blanket in the fastness of Bongo.

Or you can go to a fashionable resort by the seashore, or to some great national summer resort hotel.

Or you can put up a tent in your own dooryard and roll on the grass with the children at home and get just as good a summer-resort for nothing.

THE INVASION OF JOURNALISM

[illegible] is treated in The Atlantic Monthly by Brander Matthews to show that the methods of newspaper writers have been adopted by the magazines. Topics are treated as the basis of literaries solely from the standpoint of human interest—because they are entertaining.

Journalism has invaded the pulpit. Ministers take timely topics to draw the interest of the public. The language, of journals, the Heaven to the hearts of humanity has not ceased to interest mankind, but is presented in a manner in keeping with the style. So it is with advertisers. They seek to make their announcements have the attention of readers, not so much by quality and veriety of offers, as by the way they tell the story of their bargains.

The newspaper has invaded the domains of government. It proposes to reform abuses through upon public attention, and through the focalizing force of aroused public sentiment, upon public officials. Journalism is today the vital fluid of self-government.

SPOILIATIONS AT CAPE NOME

The confusion, lawlessness and anarchy prevailing at Cape Nome, Alaska, and other portions of Alaska, show that a civil government is not a guaranty of life, property and the peaceful pursuit of business.

The mining regions of Alaska are described as the grafter's paradise. Real estate swindles are perpetrated, robberies of individuals are of daily occurrence, murders are committed, corporations display bullcoisness and greed that [illegible] from the countenance of [illegible] harbor.

[illegible] the noble qualities of the coyote and Berkshire combined in winking at the spoliation of the miners by powerful companies that stake out all the claims on an entire creek, and all its tributaries far above the snowline. If we are unable to hold in check official and corporate capacity when practiced on full-fledged Americans, how shall we protect the weaker races in our new island possessions from rapacity?

THE TOLSTOI PROPAGANDA

Of the seventeen characters in Tolstoi's last novel only two will be remembered—Katusha, the ruined maiden, prostitute and Siberian exile, and Nekhludoff, the reformed aristocrat, revolutionist, disciple of Tolstoi. The early threatened indecencies of this latest product of Russian political fiction have disappeared under the fumigating hand of an American woman translator. But they were enough exploited to force a wide sale. There are still however plenty of sideshows of indecencies, fleas, filthy prisons and social salacciousness.

A humor of the time depicts President Harper of Chicago university, as the latest disciple of Tolstoi. The great Baptist college has just floated in from a pilgrimage to the shrine of the Russian anarchist and under his influence no one doubts but that Rockefeller will disgorge all the millions taken in profits on oil, and all the rest of the multi-millionaires will replenish the coffers of the millions with their surplus cash, put on an unbleached shoepaldn suit and pursue poverty in a hot chase the rest of their lives.

THANKS FOR ROOSEVELT.

THE PICTURESQUE

Wolcott, the Colorado silverplated politician has [illegible] Roosevelt of his nomination for Vice President, and referred to his multiplicity of state, naval official, military hero, cowboy, broncho-buster and "literary feller" all combined. Hurrah, for Roosevelt!

[illegible] as a society swell. Of an old knickerbocker family, inheriting great wealth, just enough of a reformer to lend character to his party, but not enough to interfere with the Bosses; he is a religious man, and all the constituents sighteen [illegible] respectability. Roosevelt is an [illegible] success and has never been guilty of any sentimental namby-pamby nonsense such as sympathizing with the underdog in the struggle of plutocracy, that he is supposed to kill. He has got real red blood in him. He is not afflicted with blushes or modesty. He can furnish fourteen magazine articles in one month on his own exploits in the army or navy, or as the hero of his own exploits in killing big game, all illustrated with pictures of photos of himself.

A $20,000 EXPLOSION AT YAQUINA BAY.

The war department has [illegible] a [illegible] to Newport to remove a rock from the entrance of the harbor. It is reported that [illegible] for this purpose. The rock is visible at low tide from the hills above the town, although it is below water even then, and would no doubt be dangerous to navigation if there was any.

Of course under the present trusts contracts railroads combine no competition [illegible] to be developed at Yaquina bay. If the Corvallis and Eastern [illegible] would have to build southwest from Huntington. The S. P. Co. would have to build northwest from Sacramento into Southeastern Oregon. That would cause a general settlement and development of the state.

So $20,000 will be exploded in Yaquina bay to remove a rock that is in no one's way, to improve a harbor that the war department has said cannot be improved, and to facilitate commerce, where no commerce is permitted. Still the removal of the rock at the entrance of the bay will be an improvement of permanent value. No one can tell how soon the exigencies of Pacific Coast commerce will send shipping into this harbor.

AN ERA OF PEACE AND HARMONY.

It is not a matter of history that no few distinguished [illegible] were there to assist in the national Republican convention. With Mark Hanna as chief mogul, men like the expelled Matt Quay of Pennsylvania, and the notorious Gas Addicks of Rhode Island, feel perfectly at home. Indeed it is recorded that the former was the most popular personage in the convention. (See Review of Reviews [illegible] page [illegible]) Addicks, notorious for corrupt political methods, was triumphantly seated with his contesting delegation. Quay's approval of Roosevelt had to be secured before he could be nominated.

In Oregon, Republicans who left the fold for any reason whatever, are invited back into the grand old party to sit at a grand banquet of peace and harmony with McBride, Mitchell and Sol. Hirsch as the apotheosis of statesmanship, and we will give a gold medal to any man who can connect the names of one of these gentlemen with any beneficient public measure. In these days of expansion, two million a day of boodle, and assimilation of British imperialism it is a certificate of character for every more to be a mere private in the party of progress and political purity.

HENRY WATTERSON SUPPORTS BRYAN

Louisville Courier Journal:

"That the nomination of Mr. Bryan, long-since assured, would carry with it the reaffirmation of all that Mr. Bryan stands for has been hardly less assured. * * * The Democrats desire at once and the sooner the better, the honesty and the fidelity of their convictions. They propose to fight over again the last battle of 1896, with the addition of such new issues as events have brought upon the scene. They would rather go to defeat on these lines than to victory on any plan of campaign, however politic, involving evasion or subterfuge; and whatever may be thought of the practical sagacity of such an attitude considered from the standpoint of calculating politics, the objective point of which is success, and success alone, its courage and its faith are alike admirable.

"There is one way of fighting. It has not in the month of the Courier-Journal, which always believed in straight politics, to dispute it. If it wins, it will vindicate itself and need no other approval than its own. If it loses, the men responsible will drop out of sight and mind, never to hope again. They take their political lives in their hands and like the paladins of old they go forth to battle. As theirs is the risk, be theirs the glory; theirs the rewards, theirs the fruits, the honors and the fame. * * * Sometimes the most reckless daring is the truest wisdom. Intrepidity often attains of fate by its own velocity what the fickle jade would fain deny a less ardent suitor. Emotion is infectious. It may become epidemic. * * * The billows of enthusiasm which rolled off from the hills of the Missouri into the plains of Kansas, may be the beginning of a flood tide that will mount higher and higher as the moons change, reaching upon the day of election that high water mark which no resources of money and organization however great, can successfully meet and overcome.

"We should have conducted another line of battle, a different plan of campaign. But long ago the Courier-Journal abdicated its leadership, accepting that of the men now in the saddle; and we shall abide the results in honest good faith, sincerely hoping that they are right and we ourselves are wrong, and praying that the end will justify these energetic demonstrations in the name of Democracy. * * And, as some votes need to be secured in the coming election that were wanting in 1896, it may be that the Courier-Journal will come in handy in the home stretch.

Doctrinal quiddities apart, and we take leave to think both our friends as party weapons and their virtues as political preservatives. The factious [illegible] of the pressure of the great party of forces, which from the days of Jefferson to this good hour, has divided the country. On one side are the [illegible] on the other side are the representatives of the governing classes, admirably organized and thoroughly equipped. The leaders of the people who take upon themselves to direct the battle assume a terrible responsibility. Upon their wisdom, or lack thereof, their success or failure, hang the hopes the fears of millions of noble men and women, who invest them with the heavy burden of leadership; simple, faithful, toiling men and women; who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow and ask only of government an equal chance in the cruel strife of life and labor. There in front of them stand the armored legions of prerogative and power; stall fed or corrupt, skilled and trained. Back of them the Augean stables of political corruptions each mounted by a trained hackey fresh from the school of Platt and Quay and Hanna; an unlimited gatling battery of boodle to draw upon; and, over all, the milk white flag of purity which the pirate has time out of mind lured the lambs of commerce. Mr. Bryan, and the leaders behind him, can afford to make no mistakes. They must win, or else they are lost, and yet worst of all, with them will go down the cause of that equal and exact justice to all, exclusive privileges to none, on which the eyes of the people, the hope of good government, are fixed, as upon the dawn of political regeneration; and yet now, it may be many a year before that star shall rise again.

"So clear the way for action. We shall regard all that platform as rule binding. From now on let the word be forward, and be no enemy, and not a friend, who would limit, hinder, the freedom of any one who, whatever his indivual preferences, would in good faith support the ticket. We shall vote, and on the day of election all be voters, and he shall approve himself the best democrat who gets in most of these.

Serious Ills of Women

The derangements of the female organism that breed all kinds of trouble and which ordinary practice does not cure, are the very things that give way promptly to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Uterine and ovarian troubles, kidney troubles, ulcerations, tumors, unusual discharges, backaches and painful periods—these are the ills that hang on and wreck health and happiness and disposition.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has a wonderful record of absolute cures of these troubles—a constant series of successes for thirty years. Thousands of women vouch for this. Their letters constantly appear in this paper.

"Could Not Sleep."

Sleeplessness marks the very climax of human misery. It is only a step removed from insanity. When sleep no longer restores the exhausted nature, the struggle with disease cannot last long. The starting point of the nervous disorders which produce ill-health and sleeplessness, is generally a diseased condition of the womanly organs. Restore these organs to sound health and the sleep comes back, the day's work no longer wearies, and sleep is sought and enjoyed. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures diseases of the womanly nature. It dries the drains which weaken women; it heals the inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

There is no alcohol in Favorite Prescription, and it is entirely free from opium, morphine and all other narcotics. It is a temperance medicine.

"My health was very poor for two years and I was a great sufferer. I tried many medicines but it did me no good. I wrote to Dr. Pierce, stating my condition, and he kindly answered my letter and sent me a bottle of Favorite Prescription. I took five bottles of the 'Prescription' and one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and I feel like a new woman."
