SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.-(Special.)-Fay's wild throw to first in the ninth inning sent Spencer tearing in with the winning run this afternoon. Spencer reached first on a scratch hit, was ad-vanced on Wheeler's sacrifice and when Fay threw Irwin's grounder away at first, it was curtains for the Beavers. Outside this one misplay, Portland performed in perfect fashion and should have won the game. Both Joy and Kinsella had eyerything and gave as grand an exhibition of pitching as was ever seen of the local field. The score;

Aberdeen 3; Seattle 0.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 28.-(Special.)-Higginbotham had everything a pitcher ought to have today, and he held the cubs as safe as though they were the variest kind of bushers. Coy was hit harder than the score indicates, but fast fielding kept the score down. At that, had the work behind him been perfect. Aberdeen would have been let down with

Two old Portland players negotiated that run in the opening inning. Van-Buren led off with a single, Julie Streib passed him on with a sacrifice, and a double by Andy Anderson brought him home. In the third Dudley missed a throw-in from center field and Higginbotham scored during the excitement. An error, a sacrifice and a double scored Streib in the eighth. Scattle was never dangerous and deserved the shut-out.

SWORDSMEN ARE REFUGEES

Major Reid and Carl Nelson Lost All in San Francisco Fire.

By a coincidence Major R. F. Reid and Carl Nelson, who are to battle at Multnomah Field next Monday afternoon for the mounted broadsword championship of the world, are both San Francisco refugees and lost all of their worldly pos-retugees and lost at a first worldly pos-sessions in that great disaster.

The most highly prized of all his effects was a large scrap-book Major Reid had kept from boyhood, containing all of the

They certainly know how to fight," and the veteran swordsman who s to endeavor to vanquish the invincible Selson next Monday shook his head reflectively.

There is really only one thing that Nelson mourns among his possessions destroyed in the San Francisco fire, and that is the broadsword with which he fought his way to victory on a score of fields. Although believing that he had this blade packed with the few things he bundled together, yet, to his great sorrow, Nelson discovered that the sword had been left in his room, to be turned into scrap-iron by the flames.
