on to a plateau was made in skirmish formation behind a perfect barrage, and landed them in the town practically unscratched, although the left wing met stiff opposition from machine guns in the wood.

A Twenty Minute Job

Twenty three minutes after their departure from their trenches the Americans were in Vaux. Half an hour later the American ambulances were there. The latter's work was vastly lighter than might have been expected.

American patrols for the past several nights had drawn the fire of German machine guns, revealing their positions so the infantry was able to approach the nests warily and surround and capture them with minimum casualties.

After the successful advance, bombardment of the rear areas was resumed so as to prevent German reinforcements being rushed up.

The village of Vaux is less than two miles directly west of Chateau-Thierry and is one of the principal defenses of the latter city. Clerebaut wood is a mile and a half west of Vaux and Hill 192 is about the same distance northwest of Clerebaut wood.

Hill 204 is about half a mile east of Vaux and extends to within less than a mile of the western outskirts of Chateau-Thierry.

"Between Montdidier and Noyon and east of Rheims French troops took prisoners in raids.

"German attempts near Belloy, Haute and in Alsace were repulsed by French fire."

Drive On Decayed Teeth Is Planned

The need of dental hygiene and the relation of teeth to general health will be brought before the public immediately through a comprehensive educational campaign, the details of which are to be presented at the annual meeting of in Portland July 1, 2 and 3.

The campaign will be unique in professional circles. It will be shaped to supplement the educational work done in the schoolroom among children, on the theory that a great many bodily ills are now directly traceable to ill-cared for teeth.

The educational campaign has been worked out by by Dr. J. C. Jones, president of the State Dental association, in connection with the State Dental Board, and the services of trained publicity men have been enlisted.

Campaign Comprehensive One.

The campaign will embrace the use of advertising space in the daily newspapers and weekly publications of the state; toothbrush drills in the schools everywhere in the state; moving picture propaganda, still slides and literature which will be generously scattered where it will do the most good.

"Now, when the Nation is under its greatest responsibilities, it is vital that we conserve our health as well as other things needed to win the war," said President Jones, "and research has proved conclusively that many ills are caused by neglect of the teeth. That is the reason for this educational campaign."

Leading dentists in all parts of Oregon are behind the movement and the campaign in reality has already been started. The very newness of it has attracted attention and the truths told in the educational talks thus far published have taken hold.

C. C. Chapman to Speak

The entire plan will come up before the State Dental Association's convention next week. C. C. Chapman has been asked to speak on the need of the campaign Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The dentists have called on Mr. Chapman because of his long training in publicity affairs and his identity with civic movements. President Jones of the association and Dr. H. H. Schmitt, president of the State Dental Board, also will discuss the educational plan and there will be an open forum for suggestions. It is planned to make this annual meeting the largest in the history of the dental profession in the state.

Other features of the session will include a post-graduate course in advance methods of dentistry, including special studies in oral infection by Dr. H. E. Friesell of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Dr. E. T. Tinker, of Minneapolis. All sessions and clinics will be held at the North Pacific Dental College.

tle more than it used to, but it ought not cost twice as much.

"A free man will cut two cords a day. A convict with a machine saw ought to cut two cords a day, and a gang of 20 convicts ought to cut 1000 cords a month. We have these contracts and we ought not abandon the leases and draw upon free labor."

Governor Withycombe said he had given conditional pardons to so many convicts, so they could work in the shipyards and other places where labor is needed, that only the "hard boils" are left at the penitentiary and it is not safe to take them into the timber.

That was the reason he assigned for not wanting to cut the wood on the Porter place, which was leased purposely to provide labor for the convicts. But the whole situation is a muddle with the cost to the state being run up by the purchase of motor trucks and equipment in an effort to get out enough wood to protect the asylum next winter.

Red Cross Benefit Dance Was Great Success

(Capital Journal Special Service)

Macleay, July 2.—A truly representative crowd of Marion county's young people made last Saturday evening one to be remembered at the Macleay hall, where a Red Cross benefit dance was held. With the best of music — Joy Turner's orchestra—and a good number of couples—about seventy five, the evening passed away happily for all concerned.

Ice cream and punch formed the enjoyment for the inner man, the latter being donated by Mr. and Mrs. J. F. C. Tekenburg. So popular was this dance that another will be given next Saturday night in the Macleay hall, with the same music and, it is hoped, as good a crowd as formerly.

After a vacation of six weeks, spent near the coast, at Mohler, Miss Hilda Lentz has returned home, accompanied on the return trip by Mr. and Mrs. William Lentz. "Bill" and his wife will remain at the Lentz home for a week's visit and then will return to Mohler where he is engineer on a logging railroad. The party arrived Sunday.

Much hay is now being cut in this neighborhood. Most of it is grain, which was once intended to be threshed, but which has failed to fill out, or which must take the place of hay destroyed by the aphis and dry weather.

Miss Margrete Bahnsen, who returned from a two week's visit at Corvallis Saturday, is now camping at the Lentz berry yard with her sisters.

Strenuous work in the Loganberry yards has commenced. The berries have suffered somewhat from the drought, and as a consequence are rather small, but the erstwhile weather prophets are predicting early rains, which puts hope into the growers hearts.

Strawberries and cherries have almost said good bye to the community with only a few late stragglers remaining on the plants and trees, as food for birds. The strawberries were only half a crop this year, but as a consolation to the growers, a very high price obtained at the canneries.

Carl Lentz, who has been in a Virginia cantonment, awaiting transportation to France, is believed to have gone, as his parents received a letter lately which stated that he expected to leave in two or three days. He is with an engineers regiment.

Three Hundred Rifles For Willamette U.

Three hundred rifles and ammunition have been already ordered for use at Willamette University for the coming fall term. The order was given at the suggestion of the war department as it is pretty well understood that the University and Salem high school will be given a military instructor beginning with the fall term.

The order for the rifles was forwarded yesterday by Dean Alden. It is understood that the war department will forward for University use rifles that were originally manufactured for the Russians but that when the troubles came, the orders were cancelled. Hence, while they may not be up to the standard of the latest models in use by the boys in France, they are modern rifles and might have been doing good service in Russia had things turned out otherwise in that Bolsheviki country.

At the last meeting of the board of trustees of Willamette University, Dr. Doney was ordered to go to Washington and confer with the war department regarding an instructor this fall and rifles. With the war department showing a willingness to forward these modern rifles, the indications are good that the military instructor will be forthcoming this fall.
