WAR IS DECLARED ON LOCAL TRUSTS

Council Passes Resolution and Mayor Names Committee to Wield Probe.

ATTORNEY TO AID

Councilman Vaughn Fathers Meas ure on Floor of Chamber-Draymen's Combine Probably First Victim in Line.

Councilman Vaughn yesterday declared var on the various filegal combines and trusts of the city by introducing a resolution in the Council providing for the apintment of a committee of three by the Mayor, with power to summon witnesses put the latter under oath and to take to put the latter under eath and to take testimony in regard to all alleged unlawful combinations doing business here. The resolution was adopted and Mayor Lane named Councilmen Vaughn, Belding and Concannon. They will be assisted by City Attorney Kawanaugh and his deputies in the investigations.

It is not known just what the next step will be in the work of attacking illegal combinations, said to be operating in restraint of trade, but it is supposed that one trust will be selected for a test case. The City Attorney has for some time been endeavoring to bring criminal prosecutions against some of Portland's combines, but, as he said yesterday, has been unable to secure the proper evidence because of the failure of the Belding antitust law to provide a means of securing testimony and setting possession of papers and books in the hands of the alleged lawbreakers.

City Attorney Kawanaugh asked for a detective to assist him in securing evi-

City Attorney Kavanaugh asked for a detective to assist him in securing evi-dence against trusts several months ago, and Chief of Police Ghitzmacher assigned Detective J. W. Inskeep to the duty, but Mr. Kavanaugh told the Council yesterday that, just as the operative was get-ting into good condition to do effective work, the Chief recalled him, leaving the office without police help.

City Attorney Kavanaugh is in hearty

City Attorney Kavanaugh is in hearty accord with the resolution passed yesterday, and gave it his official indorsement. He said that some means must be furnished him to secure evidence, if any prosecutions are to be instituted against the so-called trusts.

Under the provisions of the ordinance passed yesterday, the committee named will have power to summon any person before it and to compal answers to questions. There is no information at hand at this time as to what alleged illegal combine will first be attacked, but as Councliman Kellaher furnished City Attorney Kavanaugh with copies of the torney Kavanaugh with copies of the Portland Draymen's Association's scale of prices and of their by-laws, it is thought probable he will first proceed against that organization. Councilman Driscoll is a member of the association. and will be a witness, it is said, if the matter is probed.

Councilman Driscoll also charged that there is a retail grocers' trust, and the Council asked City Attorney Kavanaugh two weeks ago to investigate this, so its officers may be summoned and quesofficers may tioned.

Corbett Estate Wins Fight.

After a long wrangle between Council-men at the session of the City Council yesterday afternoon, the Corbett estate was granted permission to place a venti-lation trap on the Fifth-street side of the new Corbett building, but this matter brought about what promises to be a rather drastic action on the part of the municipality. Building Inspector Spencer was called upon for a statement as to whether the ventilator could be put in was called upon for a statement as to whether the ventilator could be put in without using the sidewalk, and he said without using the sidewalk, and he said it could; also, he said, he would recom-mend the revocation of every vent per-mit in the city. Mayor Lane asked him to submit a list of such vents. Action will then be taken Mayor's Message Slighted.

Mayor Lane's message to the City Council was not heard by that body yesterday afternoon at its regular session, because of its length, as was explained by Councilman Annand, who moved to by Councilman Annand, who moved to dispense with its reading and have it re-ferred to the committee on ways and means. Mayor Lane at this juncture re-marked that the message contained some things he would like to have the Coun-climen know, but Mr. Annand replied that they knew it all, anyway, insamuch as they had read the message in the newspapers. The Mayor thereupon re-ferred the matter to the committee. ferred the matter to the committee.

Council Disregards Protest.

Over the protests of the City Engineer, the Fire Marshal and the Chief of the Fire Department, the City Council yes-terday granted the permit asked for by W. P. Fuller & Co. to install a large tank for the storage of lubricating oil under the street at Thirteenth and Love-joy streets. In this tank will be stored about 400 barrels of lubricating oil. Some of the Councilmen fought the petition on the grounds of danger to property and usurpation of the public thoroughfare.

RECEIVER'S FORCE IS BUSY

Preparing Statement of Oregon Trust Bank Accounts.

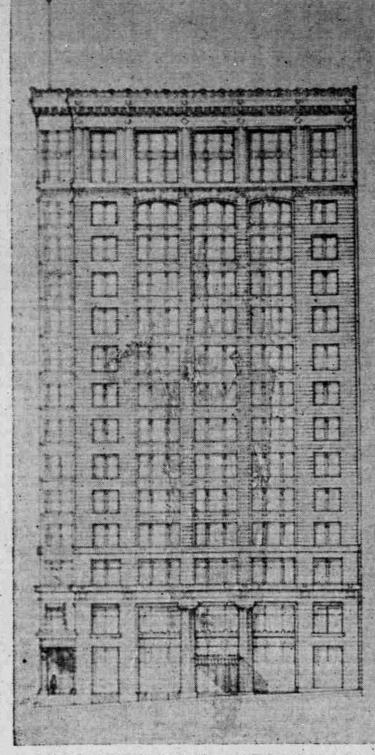

Almost as busy a place as it was when t was in its palmy days is the Oregon Trust & Savings Bank, where expert ac-countants and clerks are busy getting out a statement of the exact status of the accounts of the institution. The working accounts of the institution. The working force is bending every energy toward an early completion of this statement, which must be finished before a petition for two years time in which to pay the claims against the hank can be presented to the court. Early and late typewriters and adding machines are clicking off the figures that will show the exact status of every account in the bank.

every account in the bank. It is also too early to complete the di-rectorate of the new bank, for until these who are wanted to act as directors can be shown exactly how the affairs, of the bank stand, it is useless to try to interest them in the bank. President Reed and Receiver Devlin will not invite substantial business men of the city to become di-rectors until a comprehensive statement of the bank's exact resources and littles can be shown.

Two Eastern Oregon men have been named as possible directors, but nothing definite has been settled. These men are William E. Grace, president of the Citiens National Bank, of Baker City; N. U. Carpenter, president of the First National Bank, of Sumpter. Louis G. Clarke, of Portland, is also a poesibility, and it is understood that steps have been taken to place him on the sibility, and it is understood that stops have been taken to place him on the directorate. He has not yet accepted the should not be revoked.

WILL BE PORTLAND'S TALLEST BUILDING

FIREPROOF BLOCK TO BE ERECTED BY THE FAILING ESTATE AT FIFTH AND YAMHILL STREETS, SKETCH BY DOYLE & PATTERSON.

One of the most important building projects, announced for the near future in Portland, is the handsome preproof block to be erected by the Falling estate at the southeast corner of Fifth and Yamhili streets. This building will be 15 stories high, or three stories higher than the new Wells-Fargo block, the tailest building in Portland. It will stand on the site now occupied by the Portland Gas. Company and the new skyscraper will contain the quarters of this corporation. The illustration here shown is a reproduction of a sketch on display at the architects' exhibit in the Museum of Art. It is a front elevation and was displayed to show changes that have been made in the design since the preparation of a large perspective drawing that is also a part of the present exhibit. Since the perspective was drawn by Doyle & Patterson it has been decided to add three stories to the atructure and otherwise alter the specifications, as shown by the above cut.

Definite announcement has not been made of the time that construc-

Definite announcement has not been made of the time that construction work on this building will begin. It is generally understood, however, that work of laying the foundation will be under way within a few months. It is also known that the entire building will be creeted at one time, instead of building the lower stories for temporary occupancy, as was at one time reported to be the intention.

COUNCIL TOUCHED BY STORY OF DAUGHTER'S RUIN.

Unable to control his emotions, his frame trembling and his voice choked with sobs, E. F. Noland told the story of ruin of his 16-year-old daughter the City Council yesterday afternoon. He was there to protest against the granting of a transfer of license to C. F. Landerholm, who wished to establish another saloon in the neighborhood of the Noland saloon in the neighborhood of the Noland home. His tears and pleadings moved the hearts of every member of the body, and the transfer was not only refused, but upon motion of Councilman Wills, John J. Conboy, the proprietor of the saloon that Noland blamed for the downfall of his daughter, was ordered to appear before the liquor-license committee at its next session and show cause why his license should not be revoked.

Seldom indeed is such a sight witnessed

Seldom indeed is such a sight witnessed in the Council chamber as that presented when Mr. Noland started to speak against the transfer of the Landerholm permit, but lest control of his emotions and broke down completely. Deep silence reigned, save for the sobs of the man whose daughter, as he had just explained, had met ruin through the influence of the Conboy saloon, near her home. "I can't speak further," concluded Mr.

Noland.

"He don't have to speak any further, so far as I am concerned," said Councilman Baker. "And I think I can say the same for my colleagues. When a father tells us that his daughter was ruined by a saloon in his vicinity, he need not say anything more. Sit down, Mr. Noland, we'll take care of you."

When the petition for the Landerholm transfer came up it was upon majority torests were behind the protests against the transfer. Among others present was Mr. Noland, who stepped forward and asked to be heard.

"The saloon we now have there has caused me intense sorrow," said Mr. Noland. "My little girl—she is only 16 years old—is in the House of the Good Shepherd just through the influence of the saloon now run by Conboy, right near my home. I think I have suffered enough."

Unable to proceed further, Mr. Nolaid broke down and wept. Then Mr. Baker rose and spoke, afterward calling for a ote on the majority report, which was Opposes "Revocable Permits." but Offers No Substitute for Them.

Meyor Lane took a fling at the "revocable permits," frequently issued by the City Council, at the session of that body resterday afternoon, when a petition for sidetrack privileges from the Portland & Seattle Railroad came up. The petition was for a permit to lay tracks on Fif-teenth street, from Marshall to Johnson streets, and was granted. "These revocable permits are worthless," said Mayor Lane. "The mere fact that you call them revocable permits does the city no good. None are ever revoked; and if you revoke any, it will be only at the end of a lawsuit."

"How would you do it, then?" asked Councilman Kellaher, of Mayor Lane. "I don't know," replied the Mayor, as he directed the Auditor to proceed with the reaging of other business.

Vaughn Opposes Cancellation.

The big fill on East Sixth street, from East Sherman to Division, may be or-dered rescinded, but it is certain that a fight will come up in the committee on streets, when the matter is reconsidered at the next meeting. In the City Council yesterday afternoon, the Pacific Bridge Company, the contractor, presented a release to the city for all expenses. The work is being fought by the Inman-Poul-

German laborers, recently discharged from the city employ in the parks. At the last meeting of the park board, the superintendent's action was confirmed, and Attorney Schnabel now asks for a hearing for the men by the Civil Service Commission. The men say that one reason they lost their positions was because they refused to contribute toward a Christmas present for Mr. Montleth. The latter sets forth that he discharged the men he sets forth that he discharged the men because they were incompetent and lazy.

Property-Owners Protest.

There is a general protest against the proposed widening of Sandy Road, be-tween East Sixteenth and East Twentyeighth streets, and some of the proper-ty-owners threaten to sue the city for damages, should the width be increased. A formal protest was filed yeaterday with the Auditor, and will be investigated by the street committee of the Council at its next session.

Some Observers Think They Trace Fine Hand in the Appointment.

BRISTOL MADE SCAPEGOAT?

Descried by Heney in Order to Discredit Senator Fulton?-Belief That U'Ren Will Be Boostfor Governor.

That Heney combined forces with Senator Bourne to put Schuebel into the office of Federal District Attorney and dig Senator Fulton's political grave is the opinion of persons who think they trace the fine hand in Schuebel's appointment.

And that W. C. Bristol, who is to give way to Schuebel in the office, was made a scapegoat of the game and kicked out on the pretext that he "insulted" the Attorney-General, is the opinion of some others who think they have traced the lines still further. lines still further lines still further.

Bristol deserted by Heney and blamed for Heney's delay to prosecute the land-fraud defendants; Schuebel raised to his place to pay one of Bourne's eld political debts; Fulton driven into a corner, unable to make a showing for his candidate with the President and attacked by Heney on the eye of his run for re-cleo-Heney on the eve of his run for re-elec-tion to the Senate—all this is gossip on the tongues of persons who are trying to figure out the meaning of the Schuebel appointment.

And since next in order for Bourne's favor is W. S. U'Ren, the Oregon City "lawgiver," and there was talk in Bourne quarters some time ago of running him to succeed Fulton (a plan evidently abandoned), the question now arises, What job will U'Ren be boosted for? The frequent answer is, "Probably for Governor." appointment.

Bourne's Apology for Schuebel.

The studied endtavor of Senator Bourns The studied endtavor of Senator Bourns to represent that Schuebel made no effort to oust Bristol has raised the further question, "Why the endeavor?" Was it not proper for Schuebel to try to get Bristol put out and himself put in? Why should there be any such apology? Why has it been so important to announce that Bristol put himself out, by insulting the attorney-General with a telegram? Did not Heney want it kept dark that he was willing to behold Bristol a scapegoat, in order to make an alliance with Bourne that would defeat Fulton?

All this surmise has cropped out of the

that would defeat Fulton?
All this surmise has eropped out of the mystery of Bristol's decapitation. The real cause of Bristol's fate has been dark and has caused much wonderment in Oregon political circles. Now some observgon political circles. Now some observers think they are getting the first ray of light. Heney called on the President the day before Christmas, just two weeks before the Schuebel appointment. That the President conferred with him about the appointment there can be little doubt. That Heney failed to bolster up Bristol's cause is evident. That Heney has had an understanding with Bourne for some time is the auspicion of Bristol's friends, and they cite that not long ago figure conferred in California with U'Ren, Bourne's close friend, on the occasion of U'Ren's visit to that state.

Chill Between Hency and Bristol.

When Heney was in Portland three weeks ago, there was a chilliness be-tween he and Bristol. The two had a private interview, and didn't get along very well. Hency took the stand that Bristol had made his own trouble in FATHER'S APPEAL with a strong delegation of citizens to protest against the continuance of the cation of its license.

Washington, and Bristol that the trouble in Bristol had made his own trouble in Bristol had made his own trouble in Washington, and the trouble came from other sources—from politics and from Heney too.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 8—Mail advices from South China tell of a terrible fire at Canton, where 30 lives were lost in the burnling of a restaurant. A Chinese recently returned from California bringing a cinematograph machine, and at a wedding feast at a Chot Chan restaurant he gave a cinematograph exhibition. Sevnow seemed incumbent on Hency to square Bristol in Washington. Hency didn't see matters in that light, at all. Hency made no effort in Washington for Bristol's retention. He said before starting from Portland that Bristol could take care of himself. Just before Hency set out for the National capital. Schuetake care of himself. Just before Heney set out for the National capital, Schuebel started for that place, and seems to have been there when Heney arrived. Signs of a well-taid scheme to appoint Schuebel and discomfit Fulton appear in the whole business. The scheme was cleverly carried out. Bristol was caught between the two millstones, Bourne and Fulton, and abandoned by Heney to that fate.

Evidences of some such deal between Evidences of some such deal between Heney and Bourne are detected by observing ones, even at this distance. That they will be denied by both men is certain. But both desire the political undoing of Fuiton, and what would be more natural than for them to unite? Bourne has wished to displace Bristol with his own favorite. Heney has been willing for this to be done. Together they lay a trap for Fuiton. Bristol is slain for sacrifice. Heney disclaims responsibility. Bristol's friends are of some importance. Heney knows it. Two of them are Judge Gilbert and Judge Woiverton. Gilbert and Judge Wolverton.

Thus far, Bourne has been author of the tale. Will Fulton write the next chapter? And will U'Ren be Oregon's

DR. FOULKES ON SALVATION

Sermon by Evangelist Pastor at the First Presbyterian Church.

"Christ died to make the salvation of some men certain, not to make the salvation of all men possible," was the astonishing doctrine preached by Dr. astonishing doctrine preached by Dr.
W. H. Fonikes, the evangelist pastor of the First Presbytgrian church, last night. He justified it as follows:
"The foundation of the cross is laid deep, enough to get under all men's sins, but if the great sacrifice upon it made the salvation of all men possible, then a man might be saved whether he then a man might be saved whether he believed or not. No. The sacrifice was made so that if you come to the cross and believe that your sins are was made so that if you come to the cross and believe that your sins are natied there you shall be saved.

"The cross is the bridge of the chasm that enables us to ascend from the depths of the human heart to the heavenly heights. It is the reconciling cross with one arm over a sin-stricken world and the other reaching to the throne of God. I am well aware that the theory of divine deliverance must not be founded on fancy. It must be age-long and ageless. God must match his wisdom and power with the tragedy that has overcome his universe.

"But God is willing, able, and does save. He has entered with the lost race and taken the initiative of redemption. The question is just how far must he enter into the world to redeem it? Every religion has some form of revelation in which its doity comes down among men to make them what they ought to be. Some say he must just come to the edge and dip in and dip out as in the Ruddhiat concern.

down among men to make them what they ought to be. Some say he must just come to the edge and dip in and dip out, as in the Buddhist concep-tion, where he bears none of the bur-dens. What good is it to be told the way to climb the steeps if we have a burden upon our backs that is greater burden upon our backs that is greater than we can bear? Men ban never be delivered by the mere knowledge of truth.

"Some say God must touch the sent! ments, feeling and emotion. But that does not save all. Many a revival cap-tures the feelings, but not the man. If God is to enter a lost world to save it. he must go down to the deepest depths, to the bottom of the pit in the human heart. That is the reconciling cross. It cannot save from above, but must come down and lift up."

The meetings will continue tonight and tomorrow night of this week, and all next week. Beginning Monday night, Fred Butler, the famous singer who charmed so many while sing-ing at the White Temple last Summer, will sing nightly. The women's prayer meeting today will be at the residence of Mrs. P. J. Mann. 403 Third street, between 2 and 3 o'clock.

FREE LESSONS FOR SEVEN

There are chances for free music lessons for just seven more music-lovers to share in the splendid offer made by Ellers Piano House. Only seven of the fine high-grade instruments which were secured during the recent financial uncertainty at a tremendous reduction, and which can now be obtained at $264 for the $475 fancy cases and $248 for the plain cases, remain. They have been brought over from our big wholesale warehouse and are among the finest we have ever exhibited. The entire shipment of eight carloads has been disposed of, with the exception of these seven instruments. A four-months course of plano lessons goes with each instrument free. The buyer selects any teacher or school preferred. We pay the bill. While the prices for these planos should be for cash, time payments may be arranged.
