LANE TELLS HIS STORY ON STAND

Gives Version of Encounter With Mrs. Waymire in Private Office.

CASE TO LAST ALL WEEK

Hungry Mob Crowds Courtroom and Eagerly Hears Cross-Examination of the Mayor, Which Will Be Continued Today.

Rapid progress was made yesterday in the trial of Mrs. Belle Waymire and E. E. Radding, charged with plotting to blacken the character of Mayor Harry Lane. The opening statements were over by noon and then the hearing of testimony, was taken up, Mayor Lane occupying nearly all the after-noon with direct examination.

Mayor Lane repeated his former ver-closs of the attack made on him in his medical office by Mrs. Waymire and medical office by Mrs. Waymire and of her method of getting into his good favor. Although he was uncer-tain in regard to many lesser details of what occurred during his several meetings with the woman, the Mayor's impression on the jury was plainly a strong one and he was given the closand most respectful attention

Many to Take Stand.

Although the trial has not dragged thus far, it is now plain that all week, at least, will be required in getting the case before the jury. Counsel for both sides are feeling their way with the utmost caution and the cross-examination on both sides will be exhaus-tive. Mayor Lene was under cross-examination when court adjourned yes terday and the Waymire-Radding at-torneys will spend at least another hour with the Mayor this morning. His cross-examination may even continue throughout the forenoon, as Attorney

That Mrs. Waymire and Radding will she grabbed hold of me and began tearing both be placed on the stand was stated yesterday by their attorneys. In fact, it is Mrs. Waymire's appearance on the stand where the stand was read and the stand where the stand where the stand was read and the stand where the stand where the stand where the stand was read understand wherein the greatest hope of acquittal is held. In interviews and during her preliminary examination, her story was remarkably graphic, con-vincing and ingenuous in detail. Not once has she contradicted herself, even before the enslaught of skillful crossexaminers who sought without success to entrap her in many a cleverly-set trap. The woman's story, Radding a, and the testimony of a half score of minor witnesses will consume several days, and the state will need at least another day. Allowing a day for arguments ments, the case may go to the jury by Saturday.

Attendance yesterday was overwhelming. Twice the force of Deputy Sheriffs in attendance at the court had to beat back the scandal-hungry throng which surged about the door, obstructing that aperature so that interested parties could get neither in nor out. Like hungry flies the curious, eager horde clung tenaciously about the corridors, awaiting some chance about the corridors. about the corridors, awaiting some chance

Crane Necks to Hear.

On the inside of the courtroom every seat, every aisle, every possible inch of mob, which stood inert and stolid while some point of law was being arrived, only to be fanned into eager interest by some suggestive bit of evidence. It was a scandal-bungry horde, open-mouthed as lacious, for the most part. Several times the words of a witness were lost in a round of vulgar mirth aroused by the testimony. Twice Circuit Judge Ganten-bein had to threaten to clear the courtroom. And in the midst of this precio room. And in the midst of this precious throng there was one woman, a neatly-gowned person of 30 or thereabouts, who sat in the third row and drank in the testimony with ravenous interest.

Court opened at 3:30 A. M. with every bit of the courtroom filled. Some of those present had been waiting fully an hour. As soon as the jury was in place Dan J. Malarkey arose as Special Prosecutor to present the opening statement on beto present the opening statement on be-balf of the State. He spent an hour and 15 minutes telling what the prosecution would seek to show. He said the evidence at hand would reveal that the af-fair was nothing more than a plot to blacken the reputation of Mayor Lane. He went over the Mayor's various meetings with the woman, the struggle and scene in the Hamilton block, and all details of the affair. The thing was plainty a plot against the Mayor, in which four conspirators were engaged. Malarkey said. The four were Mrs. Waymire, Raddley, a nawnbroker named Mendelay and ding, a pawnbroker named Mendelay and a man hired in a jewelry store of the name of Bell. Bell is Mrs. Waymire's avowed sweetheart, or was at the time of the trouble. It would be shown, he added, that Radding approached T. C. Devlin and Councilman Wills, political Attorney McGarry occupied another hour or more in outlining the attitude of the defense. It was a case of lovemaking, he said, lovemaking which had overreached the hounds of propriety. He thought the Mayor's musual interest in a strange though attractive woman, his receiving her in a private office and his other conduct would demonstrate the conduct the details of that when she began screaming, didn't you say "Baby, baby, what on earth are you doing." There was another demonstration from the audience at this and after the court had restored order and threatened to demonstrate the conduct the details of that "Instead of asking her if she was creazy when she began screaming, didn't you say "Baby, baby, what on earth are you doing." There was another demonstration from the audience at this and after the court had restored order and threatened to destail the audience at this and after the court had restored order and the audience at the conduct would be a conducted to the conduct of the conducted the conducted the conducted the conducted the co alone was the offending party.

The first witness called was M. G. Clark, who drew a detailed diagram of White, who occupies the rooms jointly with Mayor Lane, was next called by the state. He said the Mayor was in the habit of calling at the office at noon, and of returning at 5.30 P. M., to attend to his small practice. He also went into details as to the arrangement. of the room and as to Mayor Lane's ap-pearance after the tusale with Mrs. Way-mire. The testimony of this witness had no important bearing on the case. He

t?" asked Attorney Legan very sud-y, and there was a respondent cran-of necks and murmur of satisfaction and expectation from the gaping section of speciators.

"Two, I think," was the reply. The subject was pursued no further, and the mob sank back into stolldity. Mayor Lane Is Called.

A moment later the courtroom was all agape again when the name of Mayor lane was called as the next witness. Someone out near the door nearly got into a fight with someone else over two notes or so of standing-place at this nocture. Deputy Sheriff Bulger pre-cented trouble and then cleared away the overflow once more, and abut the at 3:20 P. M., and was kept until 5, the last 50 minutes of the time being given to cross-examination. He described the furnishings and appointments and then, at District Attorney Manning's suggestion, proceeded to tell, in his own way, the story of his experiences with Mrs. Waymire.

Waymire.

"The woman came to my office at the City Hall," began Mayor Lane, addressing himself to the jury. "She introduced herself as Mrs. Waymire, of Missouri, and sald she had been in trouble with her husband. She said they had a child, which was in the custody of her husband's people, and expressed a wish to bring the child out here. She wanted to know how I could help her. I told her she had better see a lawyer, and also she had better see a lawyer, and als referred her to Mrs. Baldwin and Mrs. Trumbull, who are interested in Trumbuil, who are interested in charitable work. She said she didn't care to take the matter up with those people, as she didn't want her troubles to be known to any more people than she could help. I thought little of the matter. Many people call on errands of that kind. They call at my office, and follow me home, and there are hundreds of them. I have—"

"I object to all this talk as to your policies and thinks like that," interposed
Mr. McGarry. "Confine." "Confine yourself to this

"All right. Well, she had a plan for kidnaping the child and wanted to know if I thought the Juvenile Court would take the child away from her if she got it. I said the courts were usually con-siderate of mothers in such cases. She called again, and this time seemed un-decided about the child, and said she didn't know but that it would be best to leave it with the grandmother. She said she was working at the Hazeiwood Res-taurant, and was only making $2 a weektaurant, and was only making $8 a week.
"It was quite a while before I saw her again. Her first call was some time in July and along in August she came to say she had decided to get her child. In a few days she would receive money from her mother with which to go back and her mother with which to go back and she wanted to know if I would give her a letter of general references. I said yes and told her to speak to my stenog-rapher about it. She did this. Later when she telephoned about the letter. I found the name had been spelled wrong and said the letter would have to be re-written, as I did not want a mistake like that to zo out." that to go out."

Coming down to the night of the trouble, late in September, Mayor Lane said he reached his private office at 5:30 o'clock and was in a hurry to leave, being tired out from overwork and attendance at late meetings. Only the night before he had been up until 1 o'clock with a meeting of the East Side Improvement Club.

Thought She Was Crazy.

"When she called I was in a hurry to go and tried to get rid of her without being rude," the Mayor continued, "After Logan did not seem to have gotten more than started after 50 minutes of meaning sound, then her voice raised and

I saw she was not insane and under-stood there was premeditation about it She was screaming and tearing at me like a wildcat. I caught hold of her wrist and tried to free myself and demanded that she let go of me. Her screaming was violent by this time. Someone broke it the glass in the door and pulled the curtain aside and then she let go of me.

To Whom It May Concern: This is to cortify that the bearer. Mrs. Relie Way-mire, is a very estimable lady and a resident of this city. Any courtesies extended to her will be appreciated by me."

After other details of the struggle in mestion had been told of, the witness was turned over for cross-examination. Mr. Logan went into Mrs. Waymire's earlier visits minutely.

"Now about that letter, was it necessary to have her call so often for ouldn't you have mailed that as well as

'Isn't it a fact that you called he nice names, dearie and baby and girlie? "No, not her or any other woman," protested the Mayor, trying hard not to oin in the roar of laughter, but falling.
"Did you call her 'my child'?"

Never Before in History of Institution Has Like Honor Been Conferred-Directors Are Unan-

For the first time in the history of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club, last night a member was re-elected to the presidency of the institution. At the neeting of the directors, when it devolved upon that body to select the officers for the coming year, George W. McMillan was elected president with only his own vote in opposition. The selection of Mr. McMillan meets with the approval of the entire club, for during his administration he has conducted the affairs of the insti-tution in a most profitable and successful manner. In spite of his protests against re-election, he was chosen by 10 of the 11 directors of the club, his own vote being the only one in opposition As president of the club Mr. McMillan has accomplished more than any other day by the McCredles. Engon Califf, Anson Mott and Char lie Moore, all members of the Port-ind team, have been sold to the Aber-deen team of the Northwestern League by the management of the Portland team and will have to report to that club in order to play ball during the coming season. Mott and Califf are good men, but the indifferent manner in which they conducted themselves for Portland last season caused them to become unpopular and they were not figured on as members of the regular eam for the coming season.

In Moore's case the situation is different. This player refused to aign with McCredie last season because the Portland manager did not offer him enough money and held out all year. Moore is a fine player and if Aberdeen gets him that club will have a most welcome addition to its aggregation. Manager McCredie has also received notice that First Baseman Danzig has sen ordered to report to Portland for the coming season, and with that player and Kennedy as possibilities for the position the Portland manager eems well provided.

"Merry Widow" Music for the Pianola

For over a year it has been in the Pianola Library. Every once in a while a big hit is scored abroad by some musical production—perhaps of a serious character or perhaps a light operetta. It is often a year or two before such successes are publicly given on this side of the Atlantic,

It's usually a fact that such music is obtainable in the form of Pianola Rolls long before the
