There arrived in Portland recently a carload of the poorest, skinniest, shelly old cows that ever disgraced this city of ours, consigned to a local butcher. 'Tis a shame that our grand State of Oregon should have no law protecting the consumer from such awful meats. The only protection that Portland people have is through Federal inspection, but that is NOT COMPULSORY upon all slaughter-houses, giving those that dare not have Federal inspection the opportunity to buy up this class of stuff and foist it off upon a credulous and trusting public. The law of libel does not allow us to publish the names of these unscrupulous buyers, but be careful in buying that you do not partake of some of these LIVING SKELETONS. See that the market offering you meat dare show his meat to you in the carcass instead of scraps and pieces that may have been cut up in some filthy, dirty, disease-breeding back room. We do not need to hide our meats from the buyer. We take pride in showing you the meat with the date of slaughter stamped plainly on each carcass, and furthermore do all of our cutting right before you. STUDY CONDITIONS AS THEY EXIST IN PORTLAND TODAY, AND GET WISE TO THE FACT THAT GOOD MEATS ARE NOT HID FROM YOUR SIGHT.
