THRONGS LINE THE ROUTE

Queen Hazel Reigns Graciously and Girls Who Accompany Her on Trolley Train Are Subjects of Much Favorable Comment.

Thoroughfares in the business district were literally carpeted with roses yesterday morning, when five trolley cars filled with swetty girls of the Peninsula bombarded the cheering multitudes with fresh, fragrant flowers plucked from the lawns and the gardens of East Side throne was Milm Harel Warmouth, whose beauty and popularity has caused her to be elected "Queen" of Kenton, from to be elected "Queen" of Renton, from which place many of the blossoms thrown in the spectacles were secured. She was attired in a gorgeous robe made by the women of Peninusia and bearing trimmings valued at $150. The garment was modeled after the coronation robe that will be worn by Queen Mary of England at the forthcoming ceremontes in London.

Queen Hazel was attended by Miss Rachael Johnson and Miss Constance Weedward, who rival her in beauty and wise received the heart support of their respective friends and admirers in the proceeding popularity contest. Little Allen Simmons, bashful and demure, was flower girl.

Residents of Peninsula had labored patiently and diligently to make this fenture of the Rose Pestival an event unique, spectacular and typical. In every point they succeeded. Although it took place in the morning when carnival crowds are not in the habit of coming out onto the street, the entire route through which the pageant passed contained its capacity of humanity.

Tens of thousands of outstretched hands eagerly grasped the flowers as they were cast by the girls in the slowly-moving cars. Eastern festival visitors were particularly pleased with the demonstration, and their comment on the patriotism and the entryprise reflected by the display were many and uniformly complimentary.

By courtesy of the Rose Pestival officials the two grandstands on Morrison street and one on Grand avenue past which the finats passed were thrown open to the public and people were admitted free. All were filled long before the announced time of the shower. There were sufficient roses to supply everyone. The girls were constantly engaged in sprinkling them among the people. Many fell to the street and were crushed under foot. Some had been pulled apart and the petals were scattered by the handful onto the heads, shouthers and arms of the admiring throng. In the residence district as well as in the business section people lined the curb to witness the display.

MANY PERSONS HERE TO SEE FESTIVAL WILL REMAIN.

Large Number of City's Guests Made Comfortable in Local

Although the great rush of the Rose Festival crowds to the hotels will be over Saturday night, clerks are receiv-ing dally requests to renew the rooms over Saturday night, clerks are receiving daily requests to renew the rooms taken for another week or more, to allow visitors who have come to see the Festival to remain to look over Portland and vicinity before leaving for their homes. The demand for rooms will not be nearly as great next week as in the week just past, but a large holdover crowd is expected to keep the hotels full for the next two weeks.

Throughout the week the co-operation of the hotel people for the convenience of the public is a subject of favorable comment among visitors, and especially visiting hotel men, a number of whom are arrivals at Portland houses. In every case where there was a known vacancy in another hotel the clerk who received the call for a room gave the mane and location of the other hotel to the visitor and enabled him to find accommodations. When the Festival is over the hotel people feel that they have accomplished something in the way of taking care of big crowds, which have not in the past taxed their ability to such an extent.
