Thus Jehn Davis, not yet is years old and just beginning to recover a healthy color after a three-months' battle with cocaine habit while a prisoner at the Linnton rockpile, related the ease with which he and many another youth have obtained the drug.

with which he and many another youth have obtained the drug.
Davis is in the County Jail, under charge of officers of the Juvenile Court, waiting to give his testimony against S. Miller, a South Portland druggist, whose store, it is alleged, is a depot for the illicit sale of drugs. Davis, leathing the vice into which he fell less than a year ago, made a full and free statement of his experiences, and in his boyish way expressed hope that the vendors could be dealt with severely.

How Habit Formed Is Told.

"I got into the habit first by sniffing the drug," he said. That is the way most of the boys start. After a fellow gets the habit he seems to want to get others into it, and that was the way with me. I know a fellow, a grown man, who used cocaine, and one day he asked me if I wouldn't like to try it. I sniffed the powder and it made me feel good for awhile. Then after the effect passed off I felt worse than at first and I wanted more of the drug. So I got to sniffing regularly, and because that wasn't strong enough, pretty soon I began to use the hypodermic. I didn't do that very often until I was arrested and Judge Taxwell sent me to the rockpile, I am glad I went, but I hope they will let me out pretty soon. I think I am thoroughly cured. If I stay away from the fellows who use cocaine. I am going to the mountains and work hard." I got into the habit first by sniffing

Davis is a square-built young fellow, with a frank minner, and comes of a good family. He admits that he was on the verge of becoming a criminal and a wreck, through the ravages of the deadly drug.

When saked how many youths he knew who were drug-users, Davis heat-tated and then said, "Oh, 39 or 30 anyhow. We got to knowing each other through going to the same places to get the drug, but otherwise I flid not associate with the flends much. I guess there are many boy flends besides those into every part of the city, say omcers of the Juvenile Court, and involve many children of respectable parents, girls as well as boys. Most prevalent is the practice in South Portland, where boys below the age of 10 are congrued sniffers. The habit in boys is almost always accompanied by an intense craving for cigarettes. Once under the sway of the drug, physicians say, the boy becomes a potential criminal, falling into the way of stealing small articles to all for money to buy more co-

cles to sell for money to buy more co-caine, until he loses all moral fiber and becomes capable of every sort of crime. The drug as dispensed illegally is so adulterated that large quantities of it are consumed in the making of a vic-
