

PRIME EVIDENCE BARRED Home Occupied by Slayer of Nathan Wolf Contains Revolver and Loot.

DOUBT OF GUILT VANISHES

Pistol, Rings and Envelopes Bearing Name of Pawnbroker Killed Here 2 Years Ago Found by Housemovers.

Every question as to the guilt of Edward H. Martin, now serving a 15-year sentence in the state penitentiary for the murder of Nathan Wolf, first of the pawnbrokers, was removed yesterday, when the revolver which Martin used in his murderous assault, and jewelry and envelopes containing Wolf's business address were found buried under the house in Sellwood where Martin lived.

The old four-room cottage at East Umattilla avenue and East Fifteenth street, which was the harbor for several months of one of the worst criminals in Portland, was crawled over by its story as it was removed from the lot. C. L. Hastings, a housemover of Gladstone, and A. Larson and L. G. Lamerton, found the articles that had been cached under the floor of the dining-room by Martin the night of the murder.

Murderer's Cache Found.

The house had been moved about 10 feet from its foundation, when one of the workmen's eyes caught the glint of jewelry. He crawled under the house to investigate, and in removing a few inches of dirt, a small paste-board box, containing part of a watch chain, several rings welded together and used for window display purposes, a nickel-plated revolver and two dozen envelopes used for enclosing repaired jewelry were unearthed. A Larson, one of the discoverers, noticed the name and business address of Nathan Wolf stamped on each of the envelopes. Recalling the attack made upon Wolf at the pawnbroker's place of business and remembering that Martin had resided in the house at the time of the murder, he immediately notified Captain of Detectives Moore of his discovery.

Detectives Tichenor and Howell, who were responsible for the arrest and conviction of Martin, were immediately notified by Moore of the discovery of the various articles found.

Borrowed Pistol Recovered.

The envelopes bearing Wolf's name were sufficient to convince the detective that the last bit of evidence had been found to corroborate with absolute certainty all of the circumstances in connection with Martin's conviction of the murder of Nathan Wolf. The Harrington and Richardson nickel-plated revolver, which a Mrs. Grubb had lent to Martin the day the murder was committed, was another important part of the cache.

Place Is Guarded.

As soon as the discovery of the murderer's loot became known in the neighborhood, a crowd of curiosity seekers gathered about the cottage. Many took away splinters from the building as souvenirs.

A patrolman was detailed to guard the place over night. When the house is moved from the lot a more thorough search will be made by the police with a view of finding other evidence in connection with the murderer's movements following the crime.

The finding of these articles establishes the guilt of Martin beyond a doubt, said Detective Tichenor. From the evidence given at the trial, there was absolutely no question in his mind that Martin was committed the murder.

C. Grimschacher, who was chief of Police when the murder was committed, said last night that he had always been convinced of Martin's guilt.

Chief's Belief Confirmed.

"As soon as I was made acquainted with the facts in the case, it was clear to me that Martin murdered Wolf to follow out his motive of robbery," said Chief Grimschacher. "I am glad that these articles were found, as all doubt as to Martin's guilt has been removed."

The lot on which the cottage stood was purchased a short time ago by the Board of Education for a children's playground. The house is being removed preparatory to improving the grounds.

It is understood that Martin's parents, who are wealthy New Yorkers, were in Salem a few weeks ago and visited their son at the Penitentiary.

Bloody Shirt Best Clue.

The crime for which Martin was convicted was committed on the evening of May 1, 1908. Between 6 and 7 o'clock Martin entered Wolf's place of business at 153 First street, and shot the jeweler through the neck. The body was then dragged into the rear room, where Wolf's head was hacked with a hatchet.

Martin then made a systematic search of the store and is said to have remained over an hour in the place before escaping with his loot. Among the more valuable stones and pieces of jewelry had been locked in the safe a few minutes before Martin made his attack on Wolf, the murderer obtained only a few articles and undressed himself. About $200 was taken from the money drawer and the pledge safe.

In attacking Wolf, Martin was smeared with blood to such an extent that he was required to remove his shirt and collar. The shirt was found by the detectives, and was their first clue in chasing down the murderer. The shirt was wrapped in a piece of paper and thrown back of a North End lodging-house. A peddler identified the shirt as he had sold to Martin. Within one week from the time of the murder Martin was arrested charged with the crime.

Manslaughter Verdict Returned.

Martin declared his innocence, but his wife had strong suspicions and openly accused her husband of the deed, later refusing to testify against him. In the meantime the officers made an investigation of Martin's record and found that he had been guilty of numerous crimes.

SLAYER OF NATHAN WOLF, AGAINST WHOM IMPORTANT EVIDENCE HAS BEEN UNCOVERED.

EDWARD MARTIN.

With a mass of evidence against him, Martin was indicted for murder in the first degree.

His trial was not called until October, 1908, and was fought bitterly. J. J. Jeffrey was his attorney, while the state was represented by Deputy District Attorney Fitzgerald. The trial began October 7 and continued until October 13, when by a compromise verdict, the jury found him guilty of manslaughter. Martin was sentenced to serve 15 years in the penitentiary and to pay a $100 fine. A new trial was denied December 6, 1908, and Martin was taken to Salem to begin his sentence.

Martin is the son of W. H. Martin, a wealthy New Yorker. He was a graduate of West Point, and was dismissed from the Army for making fraudulent statements of accounts in connection with the post exchange at Fort Sill. He became addicted to the use of morphine, and from that time on he sank to the lowest level. Some time before the murder he was employed in the Portland office of the Oregonian.

His wife is said to be living in Portland now making her livelihood as a trained nurse.

MARTIN BLAMES SOMEONE ELSE

Convicted Murderer Says Loot Was Hidden After His Trial.

SALEM, Or., June 27.—(Special.)—By still obscure, Edward H. Martin, convicted of the murder of Nathan Wolf in Portland, declared tonight that he had hidden the loot after his trial. He said that the loot was hidden in a place which he had been told by the real murderer of Wolf after Martin had been convicted and sent to the penitentiary. "I can see no other reason why the loot was hidden in the house," he said tonight at the penitentiary. "At the trial, if my memory is correct, it was shown conclusively that no Jew was taking from the store. In my mind, it is certain I could have taken none of Wolf's jewelry to my home."

"I maintain now, as I have always maintained, that I am innocent of the crime. I was as low as a 'dope' fiend could possibly get before I was arrested and my arrest was a blessing to me as it straightened me up. But I have a remembrance in a general way of the events that occurred the day the murder was committed. I can see you had deposited the loot near the house," Martin was asked.

"I certainly would," he replied. "I can see no reason why anyone should be absolutely honest and that if the loot was hidden in the house, it was hidden in a place which I had been told by the real murderer of Wolf after Martin had been convicted and sent to the penitentiary. I can see no other reason why the loot was hidden in the house," he said tonight at the penitentiary. RISE ENTRAPS PROWLER

FATHER SENDS LITTLE GIRL AS DECOY FOR MAN.

Leveled Gun in Hand of Parent Holds Man Until Officer Arrives From Salem.

SALEM, Or., June 27.—(Special.)—By employing his little daughter as a decoy, A. Techudi, who lives two miles south of this city, today entrapped a prowler, who is declared to have terrified his family for the last week, and held the prowler at the point of a gun until the arrival of Deputy Sheriff Esch from Salem.

Techudi said that he had been watching the man for several days and this morning sent his daughter to the woods, a few hundred feet from the house, ostensibly to gather wood. Techudi watched her from the house. As she neared the woodpile the man stepped out and asked the little girl to take a walk with him.

Techudi came out of the house with a gun, placed it at the man's head and asked that the officers be notified. The people in the north part of the city are agitated over the affair. There are several other Greeks in the vicinity and they are being closely watched by the residents in that neighborhood.

Metschian Sells $13,000 Tract.

SALEM, Or., June 27.—(Special.)—Purchase was made by the state today from Phil Metschian of a quarter of a block, directly east of the Capitol grounds, the consideration being $13,000. This is a portion of the property which will be used as a site for the new State Capitol building.

Insure Yourself Against Tomorrow

The dollars that you invest today in one of those unsurpassable orchard or garden tracts in the Beaver Homes' district at Redland, will fully safeguard you against possible future reverses.

Because the Beaver Homes' tracts are going up. Today they form a fertile new, logged-off district, fresh, fertile, highly productive and easily within your reach. Shortly they will form another rich established district commanding fabulous prices for even small tracts.

Today the man with only $75 or $100 saved and who can spare but $8 to $12 a month can get in. Soon only the man with big means will be able to buy a Beaver Homes' tract.

Some 3000 acres of the choicest of this big, new district is being marketed by us at $25, $30, $35 and up to $60 an acre. We want producers on it, for producers are what develop the values, and we are going to retain a lot of that district ourselves.

It's only an hour's run from Portland to the new district. We will soon supply Portland's markets. A new trial was denied December 6, 1908, and Martin was taken to Salem to begin his sentence.

Hence, rail and water transportation. Smallest known freight rate. Lead unexcelled by any. Good fruit and vegetables. Fine water in plenty. Handy to schools, churches, stores. On good county road. Scenery unsurpassed. Just the place for a home. Immense savings in development of this rich logged-off district made possible by Chartisting, the new economy land clearing system. That's what makes it the greatest chance the man of small means has ever had in Oregon or the Northwest.
