Prelate Advises Moral Life for Young Men of Columbia-Gold Medals Awarded at Commencement Exercises of University.

Moral Living is Urged.

"Opportunities there will be plenty, and it remains with you to take advantage of them. Whatever success you achieve will be the result of your work, and not others. We have state schools and public schools, which are supported by the bounty of the people, but this college depends upon the sacrifice of these devoted teachers, without endowment. They give themselves freely for your moral development. If you pay heed to the moral lessons you have received here, young men, then with the intellectual training you have received, which is equal to that of any institution in the Northwest, there is nothing that you cannot accomplish. Take your moral and religious training into your life and he efficient, patriotic American citizens, and worthy sons of the Catholic Church."

President Joseph Gallagher addressed the suddence hiefely thatking Moral Living Is Urged.
