Eugenist Says Rich and Brains Show Great Decrease in Birth Rate.

POOR, UNFIT ARE PROLIFIC

Mrs. Alec Tweedie Declares Eugenicists, Long Looked Upon With Suspicion, Will Solve Social Evils if Taken Seriously.

LONDON, July 19.—(Special.)—Mrs. Alec Tweedie, the well-known author of "Mexico as I Saw It," has written a highly interesting article on the subject of eugenics in the Fortnightly Review.

"People do not seem to realize," she says, "that we are rearing a race of degenerates at so rapid a rate that the future of our British Empire is at stake."

"It is worth something to be born healthy and decently cremated and buried. In time we shall have both these advantages. Science will master the first, wisdom will accept the second."

"The improvement of the race, for that is what eugenics means, has been looked upon with suspicion; but in a few years this scheme will be proclaimed a working fact and an unalterable necessity."

"Training unobtainably does much. Take, as a simple example, a stupid girl from a home; a sensible mistress and good food will often make a capable servant of her in a few months."

Mentally and physically the girl will improve. Unions Are Extraordinary. "No one should be allowed to marry without a doctor's certificate. It should be as necessary as the marriage license."

Under our present careless system the most extraordinary unions take place. Members of families where insanity is known to exist, where drunkenness has been hereditary for generations, where consumption or cancer has reduced the circle on by one, are free in this country to marry just as they please, no inquiry being made by the other party to the contract.

"A race must be built from the best if it is to stand. Yet in Britain one person in every 120 is officially qualified as insane. There are roughly speaking, 500,000 mentally afflicted persons in our islands."

"Granting that the birth rate has decreased, it has to be admitted that this has happened only in the upper classes, among the people with money and brains, the very people to produce the right sort of children, to train and educate them properly afterwards."

"What of the others? The lower we go in the social scale the more prolific the people, the more ignorant, the more undesirable progeny. The uneducated have no knowledge of eugenics. There is none to teach them."

Insanity Breeds Crime. "A large percentage of crime has its well-spring in feeble-mindedness. Let us go back to our prisons and observe the faces of the men and women occupants. Some denote cunning, but the average represent stupidity. Drink is the root of much of the evil—drink sought to give temporary respite from hideous surroundings by men, drink taken in place of food by over-worked, underpaid women."

"What right have we to shut our eyes to so grave a situation? Can it be well to let these unthinking people go on bringing into the world unfortunates whom they can control no more than they can control themselves?"

"Would it not be wiser to put them out of the land, to colonize, and let them lead healthy out-of-door lives—married, if they may, but sterilized—leaving the world no worse than they found it, even if they cannot make it better?"

"The life blood and power of the country are being sapped. If we cannot cure the cancer, we can at least prevent its progress. Our present economic condition is disastrous. What party government cannot effect science perhaps may."

JEALOUS RIVAL SLAYS MAN

Italian Builder About to Be Married Finds Watery Grave.

ROME, July 12.—(Special.)—A drama of jealousy seems to be bound up in the murder of Giuseppe Lanfrancconi, whose body was found in the Lake of Varese Sunday.

Lanfrancconi was a master builder of San Fedele, who was shortly to be married. One day last week he left home, saying he was going to Varese to buy furniture for his new home.

His fiancée begged him to return soon, as she was nervous of a rival. From Tuesday until Sunday nothing was heard from Lanfrancconi, and his body was found in the lake Sunday.

He was blindfolded, and his hands were tied behind his back, and a 30-pound weight was attached to his feet.

Umatilla Harvest in Full Swing.

ECHO, Or., July 8.—(Special.)—Harvest is in full swing here, with ideal weather prevailing. A score of headers, combines and threshers have entered as many fields as the county has, and the Umatilla county is enjoying one of the greatest harvests she has had in years, and a long harvest she expected.

Adjacent to Echo alone there are 10,000 acres of wheat, averaging from 20 to 25 bushels an acre.

Camper on Kilkicat Cool. LYLE, Wash., July 13.—(Special.)—The last few hot days have brought numerous additions to the already big crowd of campers along the Kilkicat River and in the mountains. All the stations on the Goldendale branch have been turned into veritable tent cities, and their occupants are enjoying the cool mountain breezes and healthy diversions. Fishing and hunting are excellent.

Lyle Elks Entertain. LYLE, Wash., July 13.—(Special.)—Lyle's ranch Elks are playing host to several Elks from the East and their families this week. Numerous ranchers in the vicinity are members of the Elks and were recently from the East and were members of the Elks and were recently from the East and were members of the Elks.

BEAUTIFUL SINGER SUES PROMINENT HOTEL MAN FOR DAMAGES.

MISS RUTH L. TRAUPLANT.

Miss Ruth L. Traupant, a beautiful young singer, has started suit for damages against Henry G. Williams, a prominent hotel owner of New York, for $50,000. She declares that when she was 19 years old and had made a flying start for fame in the musical comedy line, Mr. Williams proposed marriage and induced her to give up the stage. This was in 1904. In 1907 she became disgusted with waiting for the marriage and went abroad to resume her musical education. But she met Williams in Paris and again he promised to marry her. It was not for some time after this that he confessed that he was a married man, she alleges.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL ECHOES BOBOY

Pir Saheb, of Bagdad, Mohammedan High Priest, is Venerated by Followers.

SQUALID STREETS BLOSSOM

Poorest Quarter of City Transformed Into Bower of Beauty for Visit of Chief—Followers Salaam as Carriage Passes.

BOMBAY, July 19.—(Special.)—A highly modern city of telephones and electric tramcars, has been the scene of a remarkable Mohammedan religious "revival," set in an atmosphere that vividly recalls the Arabian Nights.

This stir of religious inspiration was the result of the visit to the city of the Pir Saheb of Bagdad, the High Priest of the Faithful, a leader who is to the Moslems what the Pope is to the Roman Catholic. He is looked upon with the utmost veneration by the followers of the Prophet, and they flocked daily to the bungalow where he took up his quarters in order that their eyes might look on the blessed face of the saint (for as such he is regarded), or that they might perhaps be allowed to kiss his feet. The Mohammedans in this city alone number many thousands, and their numbers were reinforced by every train that arrived from the country districts during the visit, and, with an extent, in fact, that his Holiness was compelled to appoint certain hours of the day on which to appear to the people in order to give himself even a minimum of attention.

Special services were held in all the mosques, and all over the town itinerant preachers seized the opportunity of exhorting street corner crowds to faithfulness and fervor.

The culminating point of the ceremonies was reached when the Pir Saheb came to drive through the streets of the native quarters of the town so that even the poorest and busiest might see him. The Mohammedan community rose nobly to the occasion, a "firman" was issued that the faithful should contribute according to their means to a fund for decorating the streets, and for several days beforehand preparations were made on an elaborate scale.

The narrow, dirty streets were transformed into gardens of flowers, with festoons of greenery and bunting, and lit up with fairy lamps and lanterns, until the miserable slums were like fairyland. When driven along the route half an hour before the Pir Saheb was timed to start one felt as if he had stumbled on to the Arabian Nights.

Candle and oil and acetylene lamps threw myriad-colored lights on the great blossoms which covered the houses, and danced on the streamers of flags which the poor combatants of the narrow, dirty streets were transformed into gardens of flowers, with festoons of greenery and bunting, and lit up with fairy lamps and lanterns, until the miserable slums were like fairyland.

By far the most interesting part of the scene was the moving throng below this gaudy canopy. Thousands and thousands of Mohammedans, men, women and children, swarmed in every direction, all clad in their gay attire—glowing crimson, deep blue, flaming scarlet, golden yellow, and purple.

Memor rubbed shoulders with the tall Marwar, the bejeweled Hoja with the full-bearded Muli, the ruddy Jat with the plumed Sikh, the Arab, the Sikh, and the Hindu. They were all here, and all in the most picturesque and the most impressive manner.

At various points along the route his Holiness was presented with garlands of flowers until by the time he had reached the end of the journey his carriage looked like the triumphal car in a pageant of the Middle Ages. It was simple in the extreme. Half a dozen cavalcades from the bodyguard led the way, followed by a carriage with the carriage driver and a pair of mules, an open victoria with his Holiness, a palanquin, a bearded, intellectual-looking man, younger than one would have expected, and another bodyguard.

There was no speech-making, no cheering, nothing but profound salaams and eager, reverent looks. It was certainly an Arabian night.

DUBLIN'S HEALTH SHOWS PROGRESS

Women's Association Is Feature in Machinery of Insurance Act.

WORK DONE IS VOLUNTARY

Organization of 18,000 Members Conceived by Lady Aberdeen to Take Prominent Part Against Tuberculosis Plague.

BY TIMOTHY J. O'CONNOR.

DUBLIN, July 19.—(Special.)—One of the most important features of the working of the Insurance Act in Ireland is the Women's National Health Association, organized by Lady Aberdeen. This association has 18,000 members in Ireland and 150 branches. Lady Aberdeen established it in 1905, when she was in private life, and before she came back to Dublin for the second time as the wife of the viceroy, in the following year. It was, and is, a voluntary association, and was doing extremely good work in regard to public health before the Insurance Act was introduced at all. It was recognized, too, as an extremely useful institution in the interim report of the Departmental Committee on Tuberculosis, which referred to it as follows:

Although the provision available in institutions outside the poor law for the treatment of cases of tuberculosis is exceedingly small, having regard to the large death rate from the disease. The committee desires to express its appreciation of the work done in Ireland by the Women's National Health Association. The members are of the opinion that every effort should be made to assist and develop the work of the association.

Possibilities Seen Early. When the Insurance Bill was introduced Lady Aberdeen saw great possibilities from the point of view of the work of her own association, and as soon as the bill became law she proceeded to make the necessary arrangements to take full advantage of it by starting an "approved society" under the auspices of the Women's National Health Association.

Consequently, out of the nucleus of the Women's National Health Association, she started the Sianthe Society, which was approved by the Government. The members are of the opinion that every effort should be made to assist and develop the work of the association.

The Sianthe (Health) Society, acting in conjunction with the Women's National Health Association, has very big job before it. The sum voted to Ireland for sanatoria is $725,000—a pretty large sum from the Irish point of view. Of course that includes dispensaries. Both, however, require time to get into working order.

Organization Is Ready. That is where the Women's National Health Association comes in. It already has an organization at its disposal, and it has very generously offered its advice and services to such councils of counties or county boroughs as may be unable, for little while, to make the arrangements necessary to put them in a position of providing the necessary accommodation under the act for tuberculosis patients.

Lady Aberdeen's association is quite prepared to stand aside after the local authorities have succeeded in starting their own necessary machinery. The headquarters of the Sianthe Insurance Society, and also of the Women's National Health Association are at Ely House, and at present the officials there are absolutely overwhelmed with correspondence in regard to the new approved society, and to this and that point in the act. The officials are enthusiastic in regard to their work, but the most enthusiastic and energetic of all is Lady Aberdeen herself, who keeps in constant personal communication with the office, and follows the development of the work of the society with the very keenest and most intimate interest.

Ex-Mayor's Estate Is $20,000. KILMATH FALLS, Or., July 19.—

(Special.)—The estate of ex-Mayor Sanderson has been probated and is rated at $20,000 and consists of business and residence property in Klamath Falls and lands in Coos County. W. C. Sanderson, of Ashland, brother of the Mayor, was appointed administrator at the request of the executor of the late Mayor. The narrow, dirty streets were transformed into gardens of flowers, with festoons of greenery and bunting, and lit up with fairy lamps and lanterns, until the miserable slums were like fairyland.

PARIS, July 19.—(Special.)—It is only two years since the first "autobus" made its appearance in the streets of Paris, and now there is only one of the old three-horse omnibuses surviving—the chocolate "beetle" known as the Madeleine Bastille—and that will be replaced before another month is over by the new omnibus.

The picturesqueness of the boulevards may suffer, and so undoubtedly will the nerves of the householders on the great boulevards. But, on the other hand, the new omnibus is a step toward the superiority of mechanical traction in comfort and speed.

Some curiosity is felt as to the fate of the disgruntled old horse-drawn cabs. They are being used as Sunday excursion vans, and a few are taken by municipalities in places far from railway lines.

Among the latest innovations of the season is the "summer taxi," which came out at the beginning of the year. It is a motor car with a fold-down top, and is used in places far from railway lines.

At various points along the route his Holiness was presented with garlands of flowers until by the time he had reached the end of the journey his carriage looked like the triumphal car in a pageant of the Middle Ages. It was simple in the extreme.

Half a dozen cavalcades from the bodyguard led the way, followed by a carriage with the carriage driver and a pair of mules, an open victoria with his Holiness, a palanquin, a bearded, intellectual-looking man, younger than one would have expected, and another bodyguard.

It was remarked that of a large number of men who visited a house on the outskirts of the village, named by a peasant woman named Ivanova. Tamarin and her 17-year-old daughter Olga, not one was seen to return, and the discovery of corpses mutilated beyond recognition in a neighboring wood led to the house being surrounded by a force of gendarmes under Colonel Vassiloff.

The woman and her daughter were secured after a violent resistance, and a search of the house resulted in the gruesome discovery of 27 corpses in a storehouse, as well as a great number of watches, purses and other articles of value and a quantity of male garments.

The eating-room of the house was furnished with a door, through which the victims were precipitated into the cellar.

In the latter murderous instruments and fetters of all sorts were found. The woman ceased to be in the head of a band which, during recent months, had robbed and murdered 48 men who had been decoyed to the house by Olga, as mentioned in other papers belonging to the band who were also arrested, while nine others escaped.

Olcott Withholds Statement. SALEM, Or., July 19.—(Special.)—Not having received officially a copy of the letter and resolutions from the executive committee of the Republican Central Committee of Portland, calling on candidates on the Republican committee to express themselves as to their political affiliations, Secretary of State Olcott, who is the Republican nominee for re-election, would not express himself today as to what he would state in his letter of response to that committee.
