Sacramento fans are priding them-elves on a strong infield for 1913, and a glimpse over the lineup shows a good foundation for their confidence. Manager Harry Wolverton will hold down third base; Tom Downey, former utility man for Chicago, secured in the tracks for McDonald, of Boston, will the other for McDonald of Boston, will The trace for account, of hoston, whi play short; Patsy O'Rourke has signed his 1913 contract and announced a wil-lingness to stay at second next season, while Hughle Miller will again be sta-tioned at first.

Los Angeles baseball Solomons have fiready doped out the outfield arrange-ment for the Angeles for next season, seymour is being booked for left field. Maggart for center and Ivan Howard for right field. Dillon may open the year with these three players, but they will flave to travel some to keep Lefty Lober out of the lineup. Lober is young, but fast as a bullet and pos-sessed of a magnificent arm. His one weakness is batting against left-handed pitchers, and it may be Dillon will use him only when right-hand pitchers are on the mound. Seymour always has been a great

Seymour always has been a great batsman, and he comes to the Coast League with a 300 average guarantee, but, offsetting this, are Cyrus'S years and his bearish disposition. Cyrus Bentiey fell from major league grace in 1910, when, on August 22, he was transferred by the New York Giants to Baltimore. Seymour inaugurated his big league Seymour inaugurated his big league career as a pitcher with the Glants, when Bill Joyce was managing. He was a left-hander, with a wonderful assortment of curves, but after vainly trying to control them, was converted into an outfielder for his batting. He developed into a star outfielder with Cincinnati, and then went back to New York, where he held down center on the 1905 champions. Mathewson and Ames are the only remnants of that NEW TODAY.
