GOOD WORK DONE IN SHORT COURSE

Burns Folk Instructed Farming and Housekeeping by O. A. C. Men.

'STUDENTS' ARE ATTENTIVE

Sessions Attended by 150 Persons From Wide Scope of Country With William Hanley Acting Host at His Ranch Home

BY ADDISON BENNETT.

Profesor Scudder, of the Oregon Agricultural College, passed through Portland yesterday on his way to Corvallis land yesterday on his way to Corvaills from Burns, Harney County, where he had been assisting in conducting the agricultural short course, which was the first assembly of the kind in the Northwest. With Professor Scudder were Professor Potter, of the animal husbandry department and Mrs. Henrietta Calvin, dean of the domestic science and art department.

etta Calvin, dean of the domestic science and art department.

Profesor Soudder says that the meetings were the most interesting and beneficial he has ever attended. There were three meetings each day during the week, one in the forenoon, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, and between times the stock judging took place on the street, or out at William Hanley's "Bell A" ranch.

The attendance averaged over 150,

Hanley's "Bell A" ranch.

The attendance averaged over 150, and many of the "students" came 100 miles. One of the notable features of the meetings was the interest displayed by the attendants, most of whom never missed a moment and took copious notes of the lectures.

While these facts give the case of the farming course, the same are true of the domestic science course, being conducted simultaneously in another hall by Mrs. Calvin. She had never less than 150 in attendance and the ladles were no less interested than the meu.

men. Mr. Hanley has been working for years to have just such meetings held in various sections of Oregon. "The farmers are too poor to go to the college," has been Mr. Hanley's contention, "We must take the college to the "season" and in season and out of er." And in season and out of on he has labored toward that end.

Another fact bearing on this phase of the meeting was also symbolic of Mr. Hanley's interest—he threw the "Bell A" ranch and all of its buildings and paraphernalia open for the entertainment of those who could not well afford to pay hotel bills, and a great many took advantage of Mr. Hanley's generous offer.

Professor Scudder speaks in high praise of the conduct of the "students" and the hospitality, interest and co-operation of the residents of Burns. The "students," ranging in age from 15 to 80 years, many of whom at first "Joshed" unmercifully at the idea of "book farmers" coming to show them how to farm, soon became absorbed in their learning and every absorbed in their learning and every one of them would be still more en-thusiastic could the meeting be re-

Referring to the Burns people par-ticularly, Professor Scudder mentioned as "first honor men" Frank Davey, Julian Byrd and Dr. Hibberd. But

BANDMASTER WILL TAKE AMERICAN VAUDEVILLE TO ITALY.

American vaudeville, with syncopated embellishments, in the land of Romulus and Remus is the novel conception of Signor Gluseppe Sirignano, the noted Italian bandmaster, and, according to a statement made by him yesterday, several companies of vaudeville acts are now being organized in the East which he will take to Italy for presentation in the early Fall.

Signor Sirignano is at Pantages this week with his Banda Roma, an organization of Neapolitan and Roman musicians who have commanded attention from musical critics. Although the first tour of the West and his first season in America, Signor Sirignano is making himself at home and he is confident that his unique invasion will bring substantial financial proceeds.

Eva Tanquay, Amelia Bingham, Annette Kellerman and Frank Tinney are among those who will probably embark for the sunny southern land not later than September, 1913. It is planned by the bandmaster to keep the companies, which may number two, and possibly four, in his native land for at least six months, playing several weeks in each of the large cities. playing several weeks in each of the large cities.

May 3 Indorsed and Explanation Given of Present and Prospective Government.

Introducing Gay Lombard to a large number of women in Sunnyside school yesterday, Mrs. Ira J. Routledge, presient of the Parent-Teacher Association of that institution said: "I hope he will be the next Mayor of Portland." He was greeted with vigorous applause. He spoke on good government for an hour, after which refreshments were served by the women and he answered numer. ous questions and became better acquainted with those present.

Mr. Lombard expressed the hope that Mr. Lombard expressed the hope that the commission charter, which is to be submitted at the election May $, would carry, but he pointed out clearly that, in his judgment, no charter would create imediate radical change for the better. He said it will require time and patience to bring about good government, but he assured his hearers that he believed most heartly in commission government and said it is far superior to the present form, under which this city is being operated.

Taking up the subject of good government, for which he said he is fighting, Mr. Lombard gave a brief resume of the present city charter, showing of the present city charter, showing that it is cumbersome, outgrown by the great strides made by Portland in recent years; that there are too many officials with little or no authority, and that responsibility is so divided that one cannot point to a single individual as being to blame for bad conditions. He told how the municipal ditions. He told how the municipal government is conducted now, outlining the duties of the Mayor, Council, Executive Board and the various other board and commissions and detailed how hard it is for any one to do things worth while under this plan.

He then took up the proposed commission charter and, after giving it his hearty indorsement, saying he had spent two days studying it, told how it will operate, if adopted. He said that he had made a careful observation of this form of municipal government, not only by reading, but by actual investigation in cities where it has been put into effect

FEWER COLONISTS LIKELY

Railroads Not Expecting Heavy Westward Movement This Year.

Railroads doing transcontinental business are somewhat in doubt about the colonist movement that will begin Saturday, March 15, when the low fare one way tickets are placed on sale at Eastern points,

While the roads have done much to advertise the adventure of the sale of the sale while the rolls have done much to advertise the advantages of the North-west and the reduced rates, they are not expecting the heavy movement of two years ago, when, it is estimated, more than 25,000 persons came to Oregon to live.

The railroads this year have emphasized the fact that Oregon is par-ticular about its immigrants and that it desires farmers; not clerks and me-chanics.
