

NEEDS OF SCHOOLS WILL BE STUDIED

Professor Elwood J. Cubberley Arrives in Portland to Take Up Work.

THREE OTHERS MAY HELP

Noted Educational Experts of Nation Are Invited to Survey System and Equipment Now in Use in Portland.

The intent of such a school survey as is proposed in Portland, said Professor Elwood J. Cubberley last night in a news conference, is to find out what already has been done, the particular school needs of the city and how they are being met, what additions or extensions are desirable, and about what they will cost—in short, to determine how to get a maximum of educational efficiency on a basis of absolute economy.

Professor Cubberley, who will direct the survey, arrived in Portland yesterday from Palo Alto, Cal., coming on the invitation of the taxpayers' committee, chosen at a mass meeting last December. The members of the committee are Richard W. Montague, Mrs. Millie R. Trumbull, L. A. Lewis, J. A. Madsen and L. G. Holliday. He is head of the department of education of Leland Stanford University, and has had previous experience in school survey work, conducting a survey at Baltimore two years ago.

Others Will Aid in Work. The Portland schools enjoy a good reputation, one well above the average, said Professor Cubberley, and he anticipates that he will find more work to do in determining what you have than what you need. As a rule there is a good deal to be done in adjusting the school system to the needs of the community.

With Professor Cubberley in the work of making a complete survey of the school system and equipment of Portland, including buildings, grounds, books and apparatus, several other noted educational experts will be associated. The only other selection definitely made at present is that of Frank Spaulding, superintendent of schools of Newton, Mass., credited with having built up the best school system in New England in that city.

Others who have been invited to assist in the survey are: Edward C. Elliott, professor of education at the University of Wisconsin, who has just completed a survey of the New York City school system; Dr. F. B. Dressler, of Washington, D. C., expert on schoolhouses and school hygiene for the United States Bureau of Education; and J. H. Francis, superintendent of the Los Angeles city schools.

Prominent Men Invited. It is expected that of the three men, who were invited by telegraph last night, there is little question that at least Professor Elliott and Superintendent Francis will accept.

It is the purpose of the taxpayers' committee, of which Richard W. Montague is chairman, to secure the best commission ever assembled in America for a school survey. The men invited are pre-eminent in their several lines of educational work.

Professor Cubberley will return to Palo Alto tonight. He has made arrangements to have a large amount of statistical matter sent to him there, and will start work on it April 1. He will come to Portland April 10, at which time Professor Spaulding and probably other members of the survey committee will begin the work that is to determine the exact status of Portland's educational system.

Keeping in Touch With Home

IT IS wonderful how much satisfaction can be obtained from a talk over the Bell Telephone.

A letter carries words, but the Bell Service has been brought up to such a point of perfection that the modulations of the voice are clearly heard.

The cheery tones show that the talker is well and in good spirits. The call may come from a suburban village or a distant city, but within the limits of the carrying power of the voice the Bell Service carries the tone as well. You get a personal interview with a friend hundreds of miles away.
