

CROWDS WILL BE HELD IN CHECK

Diggs Trial Not to Be Resumed Until Tuesday at San Francisco.

COURT INSISTS ON ORDER

Corridors to Be Cleared of Curious Throngs—Testimony Indicates Diggs Was Leader on Excursion to Reno.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 10.—(Special.)—The morbidly curious crowd which has hung intently on every word in the trial of Maury I. Diggs, the ex-State Architect, charged jointly with P. Drew Cammett, son of United States Commissioner-General of Immigration, with violation of the Mann white slave law, that have to wait another day before it can return to the seat. Tomorrow is law and motion day in the United States District Court, and the trial of Diggs will not be resumed there until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Aside from the oft-told general story of the lives of Diggs and Cammett and Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris, the feature most strongly brought out by the witnesses, who have testified thus far is that Diggs was the leader in the affair from start to finish.

Bills Paid by Diggs.
It was Diggs, according to Assistant Attorney-General Sullivan, who referred to the girls the threats of arrest and exposure which finally induced them to run away. It was Diggs, according to the conductor on the train who produced the transportation and engaged the drawing-room. It was Diggs who, according to the other witnesses, who engaged rooms at the hotel in Reno, paid bills, hired the house and attended to business in general. Cammett seems to have appeared as a business manager only once, when he arranged with the grocer to supply provisions.

At the opening of the trial, Attorney Marshall B. Woodworth, for the defense, said that Diggs had 30 witnesses to attend to in the future sessions, that nearly a dozen of these had been brought from Sacramento to testify against the character of Marsha Warrington, before the trial was started on the trip to Reno. Now that Judge Van Fleet has ruled that the previous character of the girls is absolutely immaterial to the case, it is estimated that many of these witnesses will be dispensed with.

Corridors to Be Cleared.
In order that there can be no repetition of the scene of confusion about the corridors of the court, on account of a curious crowd crushing in to hear the testimony of Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris last week, Judge Van Fleet today announced that he would not tolerate further the presence in the corridors outside his courtroom during the progress of the Maury I. Diggs trial or persons unable to obtain seats within.

As soon as the seats in the courtroom are taken at the future sessions the corridors of the Postoffice building will be cleared and no one will be permitted to loiter within 200 yards of the scene of the trial.

Judge Van Fleet declared that any defiance of this order would be considered contempt of court, and that the offenders would be summarily punished.

Clubwomen who tried to crowd their way up the aisles of the courtroom at Friday's session had to be roughly handled before order was obtained.

TWO MEN UNDER ARREST

Jealousy Said to Have Prompted Giving Information Leading to Capture of Alleged Slayer of Joseph Logue.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(Special.)—Information furnished the police by a jealous woman has resulted in the arrest of two men, one of whom has been charged with the murder of Joseph H. Logue, the diamond merchant, who was found murdered in his office in McVicker's Theater building last December.

The prisoners are "Johnny" Faith, 23 years old, a police character, and Harold F. Schneider, 22 years old, said to be a singer in cheap theaters. The name of Schneider is believed to be fictitious and the police refuse to reveal his real identity, although it is admitted that he made the direct accusations. Schneider jumped to his feet and made an effort to attack his accuser. He was seized by several detectives and forced back into his chair before any harm was done.

Schneider later denied that there was any truth in Faith's story, saying he would be able to prove that he was not in the city at the time Logue was killed. It is said the evidence now in the hands of First Deputy Schuetzler will be presented to the grand jury at an early date in an effort to have Schneider indicted as Assistant States Attorney Frank Johnston and Edward Fleming, secretary to States Attorney Honine, were in Schuetzler's office and heard the story told by Faith. Johnston said he believed through the arrest of these men, the mystery surrounding the murder of Logue would be cleared.

Stolen Jewelry Recovered.
Schuetzler says he has in his possession a pair of earrings valued at about $30, which Faith claims were taken, with other jewelry, from the safe in Logue's office after the murder. Faith, according to Schuetzler, insists that Schneider gave him the diamonds two days after the murder, and says that at the same time he described to him the manner in which he committed the crime for the purpose of robbery. Schuetzler also says he has a clew to the whereabouts of other articles stolen from the safe, and that detectives are now in a city near Chicago making an effort to recover them. Faith and Schneider have been under arrest since Thursday.

It is said that a woman killed by Faith told detectives she knew something about the murder. He was subsequently arrested. Schuetzler is shielding the woman in the case. He denied that a woman was implicated in any way, but for three hours today a young woman carrying a baby in her arms was in consultation with Schuetzler in his private office. Another young woman also was taken to Schuetzler's office during the afternoon.

GUN-POCKET IS FEATURE

Suffragist Gown, in Which Builder Has Solved Problem of Affixing Pocket Without Spoiling Figure, to Be Popular.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—(Special.)—The policeman's garb and the suffragist's dress are the latest in fashion's creations. Slashed skirts? Surely, and patch pockets, too. They're mighty mannish, but the designers echo the old, old reason—they're sensible. The "lady coppers" must have the slashed skirt—and with considerable slash. Else how can they pursue and arrest the flirtatious mals or the clever girl crook who slashed drapery is a necessity—giving freedom of limbs for rapid "get-aways."

There's the rub. How can a woman who must ensure the morals of others wear such a risque gown? The answer is in the "lady copper" dress. It is a suffragist gown, in which the builder has solved the problem of affixing a pocket without spoiling the figure, to be popular.

"I'm not quite sure about that slash," said Mrs. Mary Boyd, one of the woman policemen of State's Avenue Station. "It seems necessary, but—will the public stand for it?"

Mrs. Boyd knows all about slashed skirts and scanty garbs, for one of her duties has been censoring the costumes of bathers at the Fourteenth street bathing beach.

Mrs. Boyd and probably all the "lady coppers" are going to view the uniform the designers have recommended for them at the annual style show of Chicago dressmakers which opens Tuesday. The uniform is made of blue serge with a brown or buff-colored athletic vest. The skirt has a large pocket and the coat has two of them. They are large enough to hold an old-style "44," or they will completely conceal a modern automatic pistol of larger caliber.

Shirtsleeves Made Possible.
With this costume the "lady copper" may pull off her coat and loaf around in the station squadroom in her shirt-sleeves and vest—just like a regular man policeman.

The suffragist dress is similar, except for the helmet hat, the revolver pocket and the shirring star. It was not believed that the designers could build a skirt without spoiling the symmetry of the figure, but the designers believe they have overcome this drawback and they predict much popularity for the suffragist gown.
