"LID CLUBS" ATTACKED

WEALTHY MEMBERS TOLD TO GET DRAMSHOP LICENSES.

St. Louis Prosecutor Opens War on Social Organizations Which Dispense Liquor.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—District Attorney Harvey opened today what he called a "war of extermination" against "lid clubs" in St. Louis by filing quo warranto proceedings against the St. Louis Club, the Missouri Athletic Club and the Brewery Workers' Association of Missouri, to compel them to show why their charters should not be revoked. The proceedings are brought on the allegation that three defendant organizations have been selling intoxicants without a state license.

The St. Louis Club is a social organization of wealthy St. Louisans and the Missouri Club is a social and athletic club combined.

Since the Sunday and 1 o'clock closing laws have been enforced in St. Louis numerous so-called "lid clubs" have sprung up in the city. These clubs when attacked in the courts have sought refuge under a Supreme Court decision of 1890, holding that the St. Louis Club was not a dramshop within the meaning of the law.

Circuit Attorney Harvey said he had advised several wealthy members of various clubs to have their organizations take out dramshop licenses, but they declined on the ground that they did not care to be classed as saloon-keepers.

MINE DEATHS INCREASE

Pennsylvania Collieries Lead List of Fatalities for Year.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Fatalities in the coal mines of the United States during the first seven months of the year numbered 1487, as compared with 1419 in the like period last year, according to reports to the bureau of mines here. Pennsylvania leads the list with 763 deaths, an increase of 193 over last year.

Of these 280 were in the anthracite and 333 in the bituminous fields. West Virginia, with 181 deaths, shows a decrease of 75 over the fatalities in the first seven months of 1912. Then in order follow Ohio 99, Illinois 97, Alabama 55, Colorado 47, Indiana 32 and Tennessee 25.

LAND COURT IS WANTED

SENATOR WALSH WILL URGE CHANGE OF PROCEDURE.

Law Advocated by Montanan Would Permit Prompt Decisions—Department Now Far Behind.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, Oct. 3.—Senator Walsh, of Montana, has indicated his purpose to advocate the passage by Congress of a bill creating a public lands court to hear all appeals from the decisions of the land office, his announcement being made incident to his advocacy of the retention of the Commerce Court.

The idea taken up by Senator Walsh was first proposed by the late Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, but Heyburn never was able to get consideration for his bill, though it was before Congress at least six years. Being a member of the judiciary committee, Senator Walsh may be able to get his bill before the Senate and if it is carefully drawn he probably will find it has considerable support from Western Senators.

Senator Walsh advocates a land court on two grounds: first, that it will obviate the delays that now attend appeals taken to the Interior Department at Washington, many of which hang on 10 or 12 years before a final decision is announced; second, that such a body would decide all contents on the law and the facts, and would not undertake, as the department now does, to shape its decisions to conform to precedents which in themselves are at variance.

If all appeals in land cases could be taken direct to a land court, that tribunal could give reasonably prompt attention, and men could keep their pocket practically current. The Interior Department, as it now operates, is both administrative and judicial in its functions, and the same officials who are called on to decide questions on appeal are called upon to administer all the vast work of that big department, and comparatively little time is available for the truly judicial business.

DEATH REKINDLES LOVE

DIVORCEE WANTS BODY OF EX-MATE, OREGON CITY MAN.

Denver Woman, Freed on Grounds of Desertion, Would Provide Proper Burial.

DENVER, Oct. 3.—(Special.)—In spite of the fact that her husband had deserted her for the last two years and that she was obliged to sue for divorce on the grounds of cruelty, drunkenness and non-support, Mrs. Maggie Mashk, divorced on September 26, on hearing of the death of her husband, William Mashk, the following day at Oregon City, Or., today said she would telegraph to Oregon City to have the body brought back to Denver for burial.

Regardless of the abuse that Mrs. Mashk was obliged to suffer at the hands of Mashk, a feeling of love and respect seems dominant.

"Had I known that my husband was alone and suffering in a strange city," Mrs. Mashk said today, "I would have gone to him and supported him during his last illness. Now that he is dead, I think it is my duty to see that he receives a proper burial. I am the only living relative he had. If the insurance which he carried is not enough to pay for his burial, I will work to pay for the remainder."

Mrs. Mashk was granted the name of her first husband, Cornelius, when she received her divorce, but resumed the name of Mashk again yesterday.

OREGON CITY, Or., Oct. 3.—(Special.)—William Mashk, whose wife accused a divorce last week at Denver, Colo., died here on September 26 and was buried the following day. He had been employed at the Denver market
