The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. B. Hinson at 8 o'clock, and immediately following the service a reception was held in the parlors of church. Preceding the wedding delightful musical programme was given by Edgar E. Coursen and several Inefficiency, Carclessness and Ex-

The church was a veritable bower of biossoms and palms, about 500 chrysanthemums and 300 palms being used. The organ loft and gallery were draped with vine maple and clusters of yellow chrysanthemums. A circular three-step altar was erected specially for the Little Bride Charms.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Goon Dip, the former a wealthy Chinese merchant with large cannery interests on the Columbia River, and he is also Vice-Consul to Scattle. She was a charming little bride in a handsome Callot model, of white French chameuse and rose point lace, with bodice of imported spangled net, and the full length court train was elabo-rated with renaissance lace, the skirt being draped and caught with a handsome pearl rope and tassel.

Her veil was hand-made dotted net with border of Duchess lace, edged with tiny chiffon rosebuds. It was draped in Juliette cap effect, from which hung a small face veil edged with rose point lace and orange blossoms. She carried the regulation shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley, but an innovation was in-troduced here by a long lace scarf being arranged in shower effect with the orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bridesmalds were Miss Yee

HOOD RIVER, Or., Oct. 15 .- (Special.)-Signed by 485 citizens of the county, a petition was filed today ask-ing that the members of the County Court-Judge Castner and Commissioners Putnam and McCurdy-tender their resignations, and in case the officials refuse to resign a recali election is prayed for on November 4. The following citizens were present when the petition was submitted to County Clerk Hanson: A. C. Staten, J. H. Shoemaker, Roy D. Smith, C. E. Nesbit, E. W. Swenney, J. T. Holman, A. T. Mason and S. W. Stark.

Mr. Shoemaker sald tonight: "Our reasons for asking for the resignation of the County Court are fairly well summed up in the allegations of the petition. We believe that they have proved themselves inefficient, unwise, careless and extravagant."

Specific instances of the Court's allegations of the Court's allegations.

Specific instances of the Court's al-leged extravagance and inefficiency are cited in the petition, as follows: "The expenditure of heavy sums for improper oiling of the county's roads; the employment of C. K. Marshall for the year as County Roadmaster at the salyear as county readmander at the sair ary of $5 per day and he to be paid the additional sum of from $2.50 to $7.50 for the use of his automobile and the construction of the Winans bridge across Hood River, it having been alleged that because of failing to se-cure skilled engineers the structure is

"We feel that the expenditures that we made and that have been cited as extravagant," said Judge Castner tonight, speaking in behalf of the court, "were such as were called for by existing conditions. We appointed Mr. Marshall after an expression of public opinion and, while we feel that we may have made some mistakes, we are sure that the majority of the substantial citizens of the county will stand back of us."

Railroad Officials Express Satisfaction With Showing and Approve Principle.

HEAVY GRADE IS TRAVELED

Feature Interesting to Transportation Men Is Cheap Fuel Used and Generation of Electricity Without Trolley Wires.

A revolution of tractive power meth. ods for both rail and water transportation is promised through the "electric transmission" system invented by H. B. Ewbank, Jr., of Portland, which was given a thorough and successful test yesterday on the Southern Pacific line between Portland and Hillsboro. Officials of the Southern Pacific Company, including D. W. Campbell, general superintendent; Henry H. For-ney, of San Francisco, chief air brake inspector, and others were on the car and at the end of the five-hour run declared themselves satisfied that the principle of the Ewbank invention is sound, practicable and correct, and that its feasible and economical applica-tion is probable.

The supreme test came in climbing the Fourth-street hill. The tracks here are laid on a 4 per cent grade. Although the car has a maximum generating capacity of 350 horsepower, only 84 horsepower was required in pulling the load up the hill. The car itself weighs 55 tons. About 20 passengers were on board. the Fourth-street hill. The tracks here

Strahorn Gives Praise. Robert E. Strahorn, president of the Portland, Eugene & Eastern, rode up the hill. This performance, he said, was sufficient to demonstrate the capabilitles of the new system.

The Ewbank invention is said to be simple in principle.

There are two features upon which the Ewbank system lays claim to attention from the transportation The first and most important is that it develops its own power and provides for electric transmission to each set of wheels; the second is that it burns distillate-a cheap fuel. The most important of these two principles, of course, is the electric transmission. In this it differs from both the gasoline motor car and the electric trolley car. It combines the most useful and most economical features of each. The car is equipped the same as any electric trolley car—that is, it has electric drive on each set of wheels, but the electric energy is obtained from a dynamo driven by the distillate engine in the front end.

Radical Change May Come. Its inventor contends that it will take the place of the trolley car. That it is an improvement over the ordinary gasoline motor now in use by the railroads is the opinion of Mr.

Campbell and Mr. Forney.
Substitution of distillate for gasoline is a matter of providing the proper kind of engine. Mr. Ewbank has done this. However, this is the first time it has been done successfully on a railroad car. Distillate costs about 7 cents a gallon—gasoline about 18 cents.

Mr. Ewbank first conceived his idea about four years ago. At a cost exceeding $50,000 he and his associates, but they felt surer the snake was dead but they felt surer the snake was dead passenger, baggage and mail car in which he has placed the machinery to which the principles of the invention have been applied.

Previous to coming to Portland Mr. Ewbank was superintendent of the New York Edison company. Thomas A. Edison himself has given him much assistance and encouragement in his work. Together with his father, Dr. H. B. Ewbank, he has organized the Ewbank Electric Transmission Company, which controls the invention. It is proposed to begin the manufacture of Ewbank cars in Portland if the invention is a commercial success.

AND THEY GOT IN BAD

It Was Really Their Own Fault for They Thought They Were All Right.

But the way it happened it made them feel very badly and ashamed of themselves, for they had been taking in the town for a week and especially the big stores, and both thought they were not only wise, but a little smarter than the many different salesmen that had given them so much time. But one day they happened over on the East Side, where Jim Hill is going to build and is putting in his big terminals, the only place where he could get the number of blocks required cheap enough. They were also surprised at Calef Bros.' big furniture store, covering the whole half block, and not wishing to miss anything, went in to look it over. It was almost pathetic to hear. First Jack would say to Edith: "Look, dear, here is the very same table we bought and it's $5 cheaper, and we paid $2.75 for our chairs, and here is the very same thing for $2.25." Then Edith discovered a full round front Empress dresser in birdseye maple for $21.50 and exclaimed: "Jack, this is a beautiful dresser as compared to mine that you paid $27.50 for," and so on all over the store. And this happy couple was almost sad when they left the store, for thinking how much more they had paid in the highrent district on the West Side, and they had not stopped to consider the fact that there was so large a store as Calef Bros. In the low-rent district of the East Side and that they would have been able to save so much and at the same time get just as easy payment terms.-Adv.

LAND FRAUD IS CHARGED thuslasm.

An alleged fraudulent timber land transaction is the basis of a charge of larceny on which George Sorenson, one of the men convicted of land frauds by Francis J. Heney 10 years ago, was arrested yesterday. Sorenson's ball was fixed at $4000, which he furnished.

The complaint was sworn to by Charles Dierke, who alleges therein that he and his wife paid Sorenson is $960, for which he was to secure for them 640 acres of Coos County timber land, on which he guaranteed there would be 50,000,000 feet.

Two other complaints of a similar nature against Sorenson have been made to District Attorney Evans.

Sheriff Tom Word, who heard of the prank yesterday and had one of his deputies make an investigation, said that some mucilage was also used by the young culprits.

Sudor, who is in training as a candidate for the Hill Miltary Academy football team, went to bed early Tuesday night. Shortly before midnight he was awakened by creepy noises in his room. Before he could fairly gather his wits he was pounced upon by about a dozen grinning students, who, after blacking on his face.

FEATHERS DAUBED ON TAR

Clarence Sudor, Victim of School boy Prank, Investigated by Sheriff, Beclines to Name His Attackers.

Treated to an impromptu tar party Tuesday night by zealous young fellow students at Hill Military Academy as his initiation into the mysteries of dormitory life, Clarence Sudor, 17 years old, of Chilliwack, B. C., was smeared up to such an extent that attendants at the Imperial Hotel baths labored more than two hours yesterday morn-ing to scrape off the sticky coating. The tar was applied to his legs and other parts of the body. The young en-thusiasts who did the hazing then spread feathers on the tar.

The prank started, Dr. Joseph A. Hill, principal of the school, said last night that he had learned by investigation, in a good-natured attempt to put shoe blacking on the lad's face. Sudor is a new student, this being his first year at the school, and some kind of initiation was considered fitting by the other students.

It didn't amount to a thing. The fellows just initiated me and there isn't anything to say. I don't see how anybody heard about it, for I certainly didn't tell."
