

SERMONS INSPIRED BY DAY OF THANKS

Special Musical Programmes Appropriate to Occasion Given at Churches.

MINISTER COMPARES AGES

Citing Attitude of Hordes Toward Christ Who Supplied Them Food, the Rev. D. H. Trimble Says Public Is Little Changed.

Sermons appropriate to the approaching Thanksgiving day were preached in many of the pulpits of Portland yesterday, and special musical features suitable to Thanksgiving were offered.

At the Kenilworth Presbyterian Church the Rev. L. K. Richardson held a special historical Thanksgiving service in which he preached a sermon on "The History of the Kenilworth Church." Next Sunday night the annual thank offering will be taken.

Among the other churches in which advance Thanksgiving services were held were the First Congregational, L. R. Dyott, pastor; Central Methodist, C. C. Harick, pastor; Central Baptist, H. Trimble, pastor; Clinton Kelly Methodist, John Parsons, pastor, and Calvary Presbyterian, D. L. Kiehl, pastor.

In his Thanksgiving sermon the Rev. Delmer H. Trimble preached from the text, "Ye seek me not because ye saw miracles, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled."

"The multitude of old looked no further than the miraculous multiplication of the loaves," he said, "they were seeking bread rather than blessing."

"The greatest thing that Christ could do was to satisfy their hunger. And when the poverty has been banished, his mission would be at an end. He merely was, in their estimate, a dispenser of bread. But this is a mistake that runs through the ages."

"I barely have learned in this 20th century even that God means ought else but bread. Multitudes of men will believe in God only when their account is large and their health is sound."

"We can understand why a dishonest merchant should fail, why disease and death should come to libertines and drunkards, but we cannot understand why the best of us should become bankrupt; why disease should claim in their prime a Henry Drummond or a Frederick W. Robertson."

"There are finer gifts than bread and bank stock, and because God would give the finer he sometimes withholds the coarser. We must stop estimating the pleasure of God in us by the loaves that he sends."

"The same Christ who multiplied the loaves one day, refused to do it the next. He evidently had more important work to do than feeding the stomach. All his miracles simply were intimations of the greater things that he would give—the purer heart, the personal power, the royal courage, the inspiration divine."

"At this Thanksgiving season we rightly thank God for material blessings, prosperous homes and abundant harvest. If, however, we are richer only in bread and money, and not in material, health and wealth, we are poor, indeed."

"Write a letter to your mother in time that it may reach her on Thanksgiving day, bringing her another blessing for which to be thankful," said the Rev. Benjamin Young, in his sermon last night at the First Methodist Church.

When speaking of Thanksgiving day, a special sacred concert appropriate to the occasion was given by the choir, under the direction of Miss Edith R. Collins. Solos by Miss Collins, W. A. Montgomery, a duet by Mrs. Elizabeth Stowers and Harold Hurlbut, and four selections by the chorus, were the features of the programme, which was opened with a short organ recital by William L. Patton.

The First Methodist Church will unite with the First Baptist, First Congregational, First Christian, St. James Lutheran and others in a service at the First Christian Church Thanksgiving morning. The Rev. Luther R. Dyott, of the First Congregational Church, will preach the sermon.

Rev. John Parsons, pastor of the Clinton Kelly Methodist Church, preached on the things that we ought to be thankful for. He drew a parallel from the miracle of Christ feeding the multitude with five loaves and two small fishes. He said the principal thing to be thankful for was God, and that God made man for himself, and that his hope was in his immortal soul. He followed with a discussion of the dignity of man and the spirit of our civilization.

SALEM CHILDREN GATHER

Sunday School Work Discussed at Great Mass Meeting.

SALEM, Or., Nov. 23.—(Special.)—More than 1000 members of the city Sunday schools attended a mass meeting at the Armory, this afternoon, designed to stimulate interest in the Sabbath schools of the city.

Rev. C. A. Phipps, of Portland, general secretary of Sunday school work in the state, led the recent trip to the conference in Zurich, and E. S. Kapp, of Spokane, general secretary of Sunday school work in Washington, spoke of the work being carried on there.

Dr. Luther Dyott will conduct meeting of various congregations.

"ROBBER" DEN ROOF FALLS; BOY KILLED

Tragedy in St. Johns Ends Thanksgiving Hopes of Poor Family.

TWO ARE BARELY RESCUED

Lads' Appeals to Couple Who Do Not Understand Words Inspire Them to Dig With Hands in Sand and Reach Victims.

Roy Magraw, 12 years old, died under tons of sand, and two other boys were rescued yesterday morning only by the work of a man and a woman who thought they did not understand the frantic appeals of another boy, dug with bare hands in the sand of a cut of the O.W. & N. Company at the foot of Reno street, St. Johns.

The accident takes away the last of a feeble hope of the Magraw boy's parents, who live at 925 North Kellogg street, for a happy Thanksgiving. They have been kept recently by charity of the county and it is probable that the body of the boy will be buried in porters' field on Thanksgiving day.

The Magraw boy, Olin Haynes, 13 years old, son of O. S. Haynes, of 333 North Leonard street; Olin's little brother, Albert, and Clarence Ford, the 15-year-old son of E. W. Ford, of 337 North Leonard street, dug the cave. They intended to play "robber" and incidentally to shelter themselves from a misty rain which was falling.

Youngest One Is Outside.

Albert Haynes, the youngest of the four, was outside when the roof of the sand cave in. He turned about to find his playmates buried. For five minutes he tried with his hands to dig them out. Then he ran to the top of the hill and called Mr. and Mrs. Robert Postowski, who live at 1022 North Edison street.

The Postowskis did not understand his words, but ran with him to the cave. There the boy made them understand, and they started to dig with their hands. The first boy uncovered was Clarence Ford, whose face was black and who almost had ceased breathing.

With the little Haynes boy crying at his shoulder that the lad found was not his brother and that his brother was still in the drift, the Postowskis worked over the Ford boy until he revived.

In the meantime the little Haynes boy had uncovered a part of his brother's clothing and all three dug him out. He was severely bruised about the back and was unable to stand.

Body Is Found.

He was taken home, and the Postowskis hurried to the top of the hill and got O. Larson, of 1019 North Edison street, to bring two shovels to the scene. With these they searched for Roy Magraw, and finally uncovered his body. Twenty minutes had passed before it was found.

The boy evidently had died a few seconds after he was buried, for his mouth was open and filled with sand. The Postowskis and others who had gathered tried in vain to restore breathing.

The body was taken to the home of John Messner, a farmer, near by, and later taken to the undertaking establishment of Dunning & McEntee.

STAMP BUYER WANDERS

Errand to Postoffice Leads to Police Headquarters.

Had Carlo Peterson been eligible to entry in the United States Postoffice there is no telling how far he might have traveled under postage stamps amounting to $47.50 found on him yesterday when he was picked up at Twelfth and Alder streets by Patrolman Schirmer.

Peterson was sent to the Postoffice shortly after noon Saturday by Charles E. Ray, a druggist, of 650 Albert street, and instructed to purchase postage stamps with $50 handed him. Late Saturday night Peterson failed to put in an appearance, so Ray telephoned Peterson's description to police headquarters and asked that he be "picked up." He was.
