WOOL GROWERS PROTEST

BAKER, Or., Nov. 28.—(Special.)— Members of the Oregon Wool Growers'

Association in session at Baker this week adopted resolutions denouncing the tariff bill and the Oregon delegation in Congress for its support of the measure.

The resolutions declared that schedule K, putting wool on the free list while retaining an ad valorem duty on cloth, is giving the Eastern manufacture the privilege of exploiting the Western consumer.

The duty on grain and wool bags also is denounced as iniquitous, while the Congressional delegation is declared to have sacrificed the industrial interests of the Northwest ruthlessly for a mess of pottage.

apparently the contention of opponents to this plan has made some enemies for the commission charter.

It is held that to retire this Board at this time would be to place the gravity water system, which is already under contract, in jeopardy and as Pendleton has long needed a better water supply, the supporters of the present Water Board urge that it be continued in office by turning down the commission charter in Monday's election.

On the other hand those who are fighting for the commission form of government contend that it will be an easy matter to find capable men to carry out the project and that if the city is to have a commission it should be free from any incumbent of the old system of administration.

HEROINES OF THE MOVIES

A Wonderful Series of Personal Stories of the Stars of the Silent Drama Will Appear in The Sunday Oregonian

ILLIONS*of persons know motion picture players by sight and by name, and have gasped in awe at their thrilling feats on the screen; but they have yet to be told of their personal lives-crowded with dramatic interest-and of the personality of the stars of the silent drama. These articles will tell, in picture and prose, all that is thrilling and appealing concerning these "movie" heroines. More than mere beauty is required-nerve, fearlessness, resource, quick judgment, willingness to take their lives in their hands at a moment's notice and portray any part or do anything assigned to them—these are some of the requisites the "movie" star must have.

This remarkable series, in The Sunday Oregonian, will include such great favorites as:

Sunday, Nov. 30 .- 1-Alice Joyce-The "Maude Adams of the Pictures," who is one of the prettiest women in America, and one of the most demure. Yet she jumped from a locomotive on a high bridge into a river—risked her life for a picture—with no more qualms than she shows when she appears in a society role. Outside of business she is a quiet little home-

Sunday, Dec. 7 .- 2-Lillian Wiggins-A showgirl who has turned back the hand of time to the period when the world was young. She is known as the "Cave Woman," from the striking parts she portrays in acts picturing events in prehistoric times. From Broadway to the dawn of life is rather reversing the order of things, but she does it.

Sunday, Dec. 14.-3-Edith Storey-Whose stunts in aeroplanes have made thousands of audiences gasp. She is a marvelous horsewoman and the greatest favorite in cowgirl roles. When not busy in thrillers she lives in a palace on Riverside Drive.

Sunday, Dec. 21 .- 4-Mary Fuller-Piquant, pretty, charming Mary, the best loved star of all the players. Who has not been charmed by the story of "What Happened to Mary," which is written about her? Think of this dainty maid climbing down the side of a skyscraper by a rope-one of the great pictures in this particular article shows her in this daring act. She has more charms off the stage than on, as the story

Among the other prominent and popular "movie" heroines who will figure in this series, will be: 5-Princess Red Wing-An Indian Princess, who has become a big figure in the pictures of the plains.

6-Mona Dark Feather-She is really a Spaniard, but the movie world thinks she is an Indian, from the great number of Indian roles she has appeared in.

7-Clara Kimball Young-Most traveled movie star on earth. She has gone the world over for settings for her acts, has been in a thousand pictures and has been in every civilized and incivilized land. Her adventures are among the most startling in the history of the picture world.

8-Mable Norman-Whose cleverness is the wonder of the producers. She rides, swims, shoots, hunts, does everything.

9-Kathlyn Williams-The pioneer in the animal acts in the movies. Her daring has brought her into trouble many times. Once she was attacked by a leopard and only saved from death by a shot that killed the animal in mid-air.

10-Bessie Eyton-Another great star in the animal acts.

11-Helen Gardner-She writes her own plays, acts them in her own studio and produces them. She is the only woman who combines these three branches of the business. She is making a fortune rapidly.

12-Ruth Roland-The tomboy of the movies. She boxes, swims, fences, plays baseball, drives airship—undertakes any daring athletic "stunt."
