Complimenting Mrs. J. H. McClement of Brooklyn, N. Y., a much-esteemed visitor to this city, for her recent visit, Mrs. J. H. McClement was hostess for one of the prettiest and most delightful teas of the week at her apartments in the Virginia Hill yesterday afternoon. The charming hostess, who celebrated her 50th birthday last week, was one of the merriest of the guests yesterday, and was assisted by the Misses Marjorie Templeton, Lindsay Morton, and Margaret Dillingham. Today Mrs. McClement will be guest of honor at a bridge party tomorrow evening for which Mrs. Edwin Caswell will be hostess. Mr. McClement, one of the prominent business men of New York, will arrive tomorrow evening for a short visit, and later both he and Mrs. McClement will tour Southern California.

This occasion marks the 12th party given Mrs. Nelson on her birthdays by her daughter, Miss Margaret McAdams. A large number of those present have attended 10 of these affairs. The home was prettily decorated and the floral gifts very handsome. An old-fashioned spelling match was the entertainment for old and young both afternoon and evening and caused much merriment. Mrs. Herbert Wright was the winner in the afternoon and Miss Edith Ellis in the evening. The fun closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and an invitation to come again next year.

Mrs. Nelson is mother of J. E. Nelson, correspondent for the Associated Press at Seattle.

Those present were: Mesdames Newton, Jones, Dentler, Clarke, Wright, Rumsey, Henly, Hedley, Ewing, Thompson, Hansen, Dickie, Blackwell, Nelson, Groome, Laidlaw, Rathbun, Dowd, Lutten, Lytle, Warner, Thomson, Hoswell, Hallam, Hood, Hodson, Penton, Bronaugh, the Misses Nathan Harris will be the director. masters. You can be one. I envy you your youth."

"If I only could make a success at something," she murmured.

"You not only can, but you must. You owe that to yourself. I find that you, young Vergara took a bit of cloth the universal trouble these days with young women is that they expect to get something for nothing. They expect to have things fall into their laps simply because they are women. We men are largely to blame. Our absurd idea of chivalry has robbed our women of self-reliance. Take that away from a high-spirited woman, and it's no wonder she grows restless, nervous and discontented. It's the type of woman can't and won't stand it. It's this that's at the bottom of most divorces."

"You mustn't brood over what has happened," he added, as he made ready to go. "Be glad that you've got a fresh, clean start. Pick your career, concentrate upon all its details, and you'll win."

Oregon Congress of Mothers

The Oregon Congress of Mothers held an afternoon tea yesterday in the Meier & Frank tearoom. Mrs. Aristene Felts presided and made a charming address of welcome. ## How to Earn Money At Home

Sweet Peas as a Money Maker. PORTLAND, March 6.—A friend made a very tidy sum from the sale of sweet peas one Summer. As most persons are familiar with the method of their culture, I will only outline her system of making sales and preparing blooms for market. She was fortunate in having soil particularly adapted to their needs, so was able to grow particularly fine, large flowers.

She first made the rounds of the leading hotels in a city 10 miles distant and asked permission to supply their tables with sweet peas for the season. The leading hotel, a large one, told her if she could supply sweet peas with stems nine inches long, she could consider herself an under contract with them. Her peas were up to requirements, so with this hotel and two smaller ones as patrons, she was assured of a certain return each week. Then she went to the managers of several large apartment-houses and asked permission to solicit customers there. A winning smile and a bunch of her sweet peas won the consent in every case and enabled her to call at each apartment, leave a bunch of peas and her card.

Many asked her to return, some once, some twice a week and throughout the Summer she supplied sweet peas for what parties, teas and even a family wedding, for she was a wise little woman and had planted her peas, each color separate, and had chosen her colors wisely, so she was able to supply flowers for almost any color schemes.

She put 18 stems to the bunch and tied with raffia, cutting her blooms after sundown and setting their stems in shallow pans of water until morning. Her peas were up to requirements, so with this hotel and two smaller ones as patrons, she was assured of a certain return each week.

Physician Gives Recipe For Gray Hair

A Well-Known Physician and Author Gives Simple Home Recipe That Will Darken Gray Hair.

Dr. Stanton Burroughs, the well-known physician and author, recently made the following statement: "Gray hair can be easily darkened by the following simple recipe which you can mix at home: 75-100 of water add a small box of Barbo Compound, 1 oz. bay rum and 4 oz. glycerine. Apply it to the hair every other day until the desired shade is obtained. It not only is an excellent hair darkener but at the same time removes dandruff and other ills of the scalp. I use it myself and have no hesitancy in recommending it to my patients. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost."—Adv.

Divorced Life

By Helen Messong Fuessle.

(Copyright—The Adams Newspaper Service.) Concentration. MARIAN awoke one morning with a touch of tonsillitis. She sent at once for Doctor Graham, who for several years had been both her friend and her medical adviser. An elderly man of impressive personality, he had won her confidence and respect in a way that few men had ever appealed to her. She welcomed this opportunity to see him again.

"The general presence of the big-bodied, big-hearted physician filled the room as he entered and made an examination of the afflicted tonsils. He pronounced the trouble but trifling, and wrote a prescription, then instructed her how to care for her throat.

"What are your plans?" he asked later, with the blunt and inoffensive kindness for which she liked him.

"I don't know," she answered, soberly. "Now that I have my freedom, I'm frank to say that I don't know what to do with it. I must find work, but I don't seem able to find a place to fit in. I never knew there were so many women hunting work in this town."

"You have charm, education, and personality," spoke the other. "You ought to have no trouble making your way."

"But in what? I've rushed around from pillar to post. Everywhere they demand experience."

"Why shouldn't they?" demanded the doctor with a smile. "You must find out, first of all, what you are best fitted for and most strongly drawn to. Then keep forging straight in that direction. I'm afraid you're just a little flighly."

"Yes, I think I am," admitted Marian. "It makes me hate myself. Why was I born such a dummy?"

"Nonsense," he objected. "It's merely you to you. That's one of the cardinal facts of existence. I have no doubt whatever that there are a dozen or more callings in any one of which you could make marked and profitable headway. But whatever you decide upon, whether it is to be a seamstress or an actress, you must first master the fundamentals. This country is seething with competition. The one who wins is the one who knows. The prizes are for the experts, the
