A COMBINATION of balmy weather radiating with warm sunshine and the last week of Lent is responsible for the dearth of social affairs this week. Many of the younger set are passing the forenoons centering over the hills on their favorite horses, and the afternoons are devoted to motoring with a rest for tea at one of the attractive out-of-town clubs. In spite of all the enthusiasts one sees riding and motoring. The golf links resemble a panorama of brilliant colored sweaters, with flying white skirts and gayly attired men both mornings and afternoons. From now until the general exodus to the beach and mountain resorts, the social affairs will be "al fresco" affairs, either at the clubs or the attractive suburban residences of the smart set.

Miss Loreta Hussey, a popular society girl of Stockton, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brown Caswell for a few weeks. She will be entertained after Easter at numerous informal affairs.

Miss Lulu Paul, of Walla Walla, is visiting here. She came to attend the operas and as she has many friends here she will be extensively entertained.

Miss Hulda V. Lien and Carl Liedstrom were married Thursday by Rev. James D. Corby, of the First Universalist Church, and are at home to their friends at 1559 East Everett street.

Among the events of recent date was a pleasant surprise party for the celebration of George Berkshire's 11th birthday anniversary. A number of his young friends gathered at his home, 273 Morris street, for games and music, at the close of which light refreshments were served. Among those present were: Misses Catherine Anderson, Ruth Anderson, Dorothy Barick, Effie Terrell, Ella Berkshire, Eliza Brady and Agnes Buswell. Masters Lawrence Baker, Clifford Mason, Lawrence McClellan, Edwin Matthews, Fred Matthews, John Wiebers, Frank Terrell and George Berkshire.

Miss Edith Potter, who is attending college in the East, will pass her Easter vacation in Indianapolis with her uncle, M. A. Potter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moehneke were pleasantly surprised on Sunday at their home in West Linn, Or., the occasion being Mr. Moehneke's 74th birthday. The rooms were decorated prettily with wild flowers. Dinner was served to over 50 guests and were entertained by J. M. Moehneke and Levean Moehneke with violin and clarinet solos. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Heft, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heft, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moehneke, Mr. and Mrs. George Moehneke, Mr. and Mrs. August Moehneke, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil May, Mr. and Mrs. William Blumh, Mr. and Mrs. Edward France, Mrs. Fred Schwichtenberg, of Portland, Mr. and Mrs. J. Voll, Mrs. Edward Burke, Miss Elsie Blumh, Athleen Blumh, Marie Blumh, Myrtle May, Bernice Heft, Geneva France, Geraldine France, Berta Moehneke, Nina Moehneke, Yvonne Moehneke, Pearl Fisher, Alice Burke, Rene Moehneke, Jim Visisher, Freda Voll, W. Blumh, John Moehneke, Levean Moehneke, Wesley Moehneke, Virnel Moehneke, Wesley Moehneke, Bess France, Roger Burke, Wendell Burke, J. M. Moehneke, Fred Hetman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Moehneke.

ALBINO WIG AND DARING EVENING GOWN MAKE STRIKING COMBINATION.

The attractiveness of this daring gown of black tulle with taffeta tunic is accentuated by the Marie-Antoinette Albino wig. The snow white of the hair and the pinkness of the shoulders make a remarkable contrast against the black of the gown.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hessong Fuessle.

Copyright—The Adams Newspaper Service. Straight Talk From Ann. THE next day dawned clear and bright. Ann and her guest, at 9 o'clock were off for a walk. Both warmly clad in sweaters and heavy skirts. Ann, whose daily cross-country tramp was often 20 miles or more, cut the distance today to three, in deference to her unhardened companion.

The rattling morning air sent the blood dancing through Marian's veins, lulling her worries to sleep and filling her with sheer joy of being alive. "Do you know," she said, "I'd give a whole lot if I could only forget such things as cities forever and just make up my mind to live the rest of my days in some quiet little place like this. The thought of going back to the city and looking for work scares me." She paused and dark memories flicked upon her. "I hate the men who do the hirings," she went on. "I hate the way they look at me, and their insinuating glances. A man is a man, and a woman's his legitimate prey."

"Play the game!" exclaimed Ann. "Play the game! Play it all the time. Play it hard. Beat men at their own game. Fight and master them. Wind them around your fingers. Make them do as you want, not as they want. Override and conquer them. That's the way. My dear, I envy you your chance. If I were not a slave to the paint brush I'd delight in going against exactly what's waiting for you back there in the city. Don't be wishy-washy and think it's a man's world. Get that out of your mind."

Marian thrilled with big, sweeping, though formless courage as her walking mate talked. Here was a creature who made her see things, feel things, gave her flashes of vision, made her eager to be up and doing. "Go on!" urged Marian. "Talk to me some more. It's just what I need." "What you need," continued Ann, "is more nerve, more daring, more fighting spirit. Don't think that you are through with men just because you have kicked out of matrimonial traces. You've just begun your dealings with men. I can't tell you how to go about it. You've got to find out for yourself. Don't sit around and wish. Jump in and do! You've got it in you. Getting your divorce for the reasons you did prove

I think if the matter were put to a man like Wallace, for instance, in a straight jacket, clear way, and he were shown not only how selfish his course really is, but how it will make for a wife that is a mere nonentity, he would see the justice of her side. Then, too, if I were in Alice's shoes, I should just go ahead sweetly and pleasantly having my own way in things that were right, just as though it were a matter of course that my wishes should be considered, as though I never thought of such a thing as his taking a different view. You often shame a man into doing right, by just expecting him to do it. Or rather, perhaps the appeal to the sense of right in him wakes it. And then when it is awakened, he is really glad to do the square thing. But Alice is such a meek, colorless little thing, I fear she will just be an echo," concluded the Matron.

"And then the married life and the home will lose what it should have from her personality," mused the Friend. "For two, when the individuality in each is expressed, can give more than one."

The Engaged Girl slipped away, looking as if she had some things to think about.

Women's Clubs

By Edith Knight Holmes.

CENTRAL Woman's Christian Temperance Union will hold an all-day institute tomorrow at its headquarters in the Dekum building. Guests from other unions will be welcomed. Mrs. M. L. T. Hidden will conduct the program. All departments will report. The juvenile work, the medal contests and the scientific temperance work will be discussed. The meeting opens at 10 o'clock.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club will meet today with Miss Grace Amos, 553 Hawthorne avenue. The study of the United States will be taken up. Willamette Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet tomorrow afternoon with Mrs. Esther Allen Jones. "The First and Last Battles of the Revolution" will be the topic of a paper by Mrs. Pittinger. The women of the White Temple will give an "at home" to the new members this afternoon between the hours of 2:30 and 4:30 o'clock. Mrs. W. H. Selinger will be chairman. The women are asked to bring "recipe" books. The Shakespeare department of the Portland Woman's Club will meet today at 2 o'clock in Women of Woodcraft Hall. Margaret Chambers, Clerk will instruct the members in Act IV, "Julius Caesar?"

Every woman's club in Portland is invited to send a delegate to a meeting which will be held at the Library this afternoon for the purpose of discussing the public market question. It is planned to form a permanent organization.

DEFOOTING IS STOPPED

Idaho County Officials Notified to Suspend Operations.

LEWISTON, Idaho, April 6.—(Special.)—James Graves, county defooter, of Idaho County, has received word from State Veterinarian White at Boise to suspend defooting operations under further notice from the state capital, owing to a recent ruling handed down by a District Judge in Ada County. The letter from the State Veterinarian is as follows: "I am advising you not to defoot or accept any coyotes, wildcats, fox, lynx or wolves for bounty in the future until notified to do so." The State Veterinarian did not intend to mate how long the ban would remain placed upon the bounty rule.

Genesee Farmer Buys Holsteins.

GENESE, Idaho, April 6.—Joseph Kraut, of this place, has just returned from Spokane, where he purchased a carload of full-blood Holstein cows. There were 14 in all and 12 of them were 2-year-old heifers. These cows just arrived from Pennsylvania. Mr. Kraut is one of Genesee's most successful farmers and is going to go into the dairy business.

At Vancouver, Wash., on Wednesday, April 1, Captain Frederick Patterson, of Albina, was married to Mrs. W. L. Whitte, of 548 Commercial street, Portland. The captain is well known here, having been on the river a good many years. At present he is master of the "Butterfly."

The interschool hop will be given on the evening of April 17 in Cotillon hall, and all students of the local preparatory schools are anticipating this event.

Miss Jane Beatrice Mayo, of Chicago, and A. Frederick Menke, also of Chicago, were married at Great Falls, Mont., on April 6. Mr. Menke is the architectural designer of the school buildings in Portland. On their return the couple will reside at the Mallory Hotel.

The Harriman Club will give its last dance of the season at Cotillon Hall Thursday, April 23. All the new dances, together with the old favorites, will be enjoyed. The invitations are now being mailed.

Miss Grace H. Baxter, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Baxter, Quartermaster's Corps United States Army, arrived in Portland a few days ago and left on April 3 for a 10 days' visit with her sister, Mrs. Dillon, at Big Eddy, near The Dalles, where her husband, Captain T. H. Dillon, Engineers' Corps United States Army, is in charge of the Cello Canal construction work.

Miss Baxter has been visiting relatives and friends East and across country, where she has spent the past four months. She is very glad to return to the Oregon-Washington country, where she has not as they want, not as they want. Override and conquer them. That's the way. My dear, I envy you your chance. If I were not a slave to the paint brush I'd delight in going against exactly what's waiting for you back there in the city. Don't be wishy-washy and think it's a man's world. Get that out of your mind."

Irvington Parent-Teacher Association will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in room 15 of the school. Miss Ethel Mitchell will conduct the kindergarten in room 3. Miss Bess McGee, of the Albina Branch Library, will give a talk on "Books and the Home." Important business will be discussed, and a large attendance is desired.

Clinton-Kelly Association will meet tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, and the Sellwood Association will meet at 2 o'clock. Superintendent Churchill will address the Sellwood meeting and the schoolchildren will sing.

Holman Association will meet this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the assembly hall of the school. Mrs. Aris-

Little Discussions OF Love and Marriage

BY BARBARA BOYD.

When One Dominates.

"I AM afraid," the Matron confided, "that Alice's marriage will not prove happy."

The Engaged Girl pricked up her ears. "Why not?" asked the Friend.

"Well, Wallace has a very forceful character. He dominates. Or, to put it more pointedly, he rides roughshod over everybody. And Alice is rather a meek little soul. And so I think she will just be submerged."

"I suppose that is the reason he liked her, because she did not oppose him in any way," mused the Friend. "But perhaps she won't mind being submerged."

"Yes, she will—in time," replied the Matron. "No woman, I don't care how quiet and unobtrusive she is, wants her individuality to be entirely swallowed up by another. In her secret soul, she rebels. And she can't help being, at times anyway, unhappy. You see, in fact, she almost ceases to exist. She never dares do a thing without consulting him, and if their desires differ she immediately yields. That is not a happy existence. She may endure it, but she can't really enjoy it."

"But what can a woman do if she has a husband of that sort?" asked the Friend.

The Engaged Girl listened attentively, meditatively twirling the ring on her finger.

"She hasn't an easy problem on her hands," admitted the Matron. "And she ought to begin to solve it in the engagement period and not wait until the knot is tied. For one thing, when their wills clash, as they are sure to, they ought to talk it out, amicably and lovingly, you know, not quarrelsomely."
