

WOMAN, 85 YEARS OLD, IS MISSING

Mrs. Matilda Miller Sought Since Friday and No Clew Is Obtained.

POLICE AND FRIENDS AID

Mrs. T. Ross Returns After Absence to Find Home in Disorder and Mother Gone; Religious Differences or Foul Play Theories.

Mrs. T. Ross, 1884 East Madison street, has enlisted the aid of the Portland police, the Sheriff's office and friends in the search for her mother, Mrs. Matilda Miller, aged 85 years, who mysteriously disappeared from Mrs. Ross' home last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Ross went shopping Friday at 1 o'clock, taking her grandson with her. She left her mother at home, after the latter had declined to accompany her, asserting that she was tired and wished to rest. Mrs. Ross bade her mother goodbye, leaving Mrs. Miller on the bed in her room.

When Mrs. Ross returned she found the house upset and everything turned topsy-turvy. The drawers in bureau had been rifled and general disorder prevailed. She looked in Mrs. Miller's room, but Mrs. Miller could not be found. Thinking that she was visiting one of the neighbors, Mrs. Ross thought little of her mother's disappearance until late Friday night.

Police Get No Clew.

Saturday morning she appeared at police headquarters and asked that patrolmen be advised of the disappearance of Mrs. Miller. All Portland's police kept an eye open for Mrs. Miller, but night failed to reveal her hiding place.

Mrs. Ross, assisted by friends, sought in the woods that circle the home, but failed to find Mrs. Miller, so the aid of the Sheriff's office was asked and deputies will be detailed to scour the neighborhood for the lost woman.

Mrs. Miller had been in good health, said Mrs. Ross yesterday, but owing to a visit to the cemetery on Decoration day was rather tired. For that reason she declined to accompany her daughter on a shopping tour Friday.

Mrs. Miller has lived with Mrs. Ross and a son, Thomas Miller, who now lives near Astoria for the past ten years. She would often leave the home of Mrs. Ross and go to her son's home without letting anyone know, but however, was before Mr. Miller removed to the Lower Columbia. Mrs. Ross does not know exactly where Mr. Miller is, so she does not think her mother could have gone to him.

Foul Play Is Feared.

Mrs. Miller has two married daughters living in Lentz, and these Mrs. Ross visited yesterday, with no result. Mrs. Miller was a stout little woman and when she departed wore a black dress, white waist, blue coat and a black bonnet trimmed with purple flowers.

Mrs. Ross could think of no reason why her mother would be gone unless it could have been because of religious discussion. Mrs. Ross is a Methodist and Mrs. Miller a Catholic, and Mrs. Ross said yesterday that some of Mrs. Miller's Catholic friends might have induced her to leave. This theory is given little credence, however, by the authorities.

Mrs. Ross has missed things from her house repeatedly and whether the thief was one of the neighbors or day and did away with Mrs. Miller is a question the police will have to decide.

Road Contract Is Let

State Contributes $20,000 of Cost of Highway; Town $3000.

OAKVILLE, Wash., June 4.—(Special.)—The contract for the state aid paving through Oakville was let Monday to the Grays Harbor Construction Company. The road will be asphalt concrete construction and will be 18 feet wide. The state contributes about $20,000 and Oakville must pay about $3000.

It is reported that the construction company will not begin on this job until their contract with the state is completed, which will mean that it will be at least September before work will be begun here. Empathic protest against this delay will be made, however, as local people are very anxious to get the work under way.

Inactive Kidneys Cause Disease

"I shall not soon forget the benefits I derived from the use of Foley Kidney Pills."—Al A. Godfrey, Forest Grove, Oregon.

Too much work and too little work seem to have about the same effect on persons past middle age. Proper action of the kidneys is necessary to good health. They act as a filter and remove from the blood poisonous waste matter which if permitted to remain in the system leads to many complications.

Many nervous, tired, run-down men and women suffer from pain in the back and sides, dizzy spells, bladder weakness, sore muscles and stiff joints and fail to realize that rheumatism, diabetes or even Bright's disease may result.

If you have cause to believe that your kidneys are weak, disordered or inactive you should act immediately. Foley Kidney Pills have been used by young, middle aged and old with complete satisfaction. They act quickly and surely and have given relief in cases of ten years' standing.

Famous Novel Picturized.

The production of "The Eyes of the World," coming to the Hellic Theater next Sunday, will be of special interest, by reason of the fact that Harold Bell Wright, the author of the book, which has broken all records as "best sellers," with a sale of several million copies, had an active personal hand in the work of interpreting his character for the screen. To do this Mr. Wright gave up all his literary activities. Such a co-ordination of famous writer, producer and studio-working force is said never to have been known since motion pictures were evolved from the novelty period to the undertaking of cinema features of many reels.

"The Eyes of the World" is a story of California. For the film production the author has added a prologue which goes back to Boston a generation before the opening scenes of the book and shows the origin of his characters. This is said greatly to increase interest in the picture.

Readers of the book will recall many scenes in the mountains that ought to provide great material for a thrilling and scenic photoplay. There is, for instance, the furious hand-to-hand combat of Rutledge and King, the rival lovers, on the precipitous cliff. As in the book, this is the major climax of the film production, and great things are promised in the way of thrills when this is shown on the screen.

The search of the forest rangers for the missing mountain girl who has been kidnaped is another feature of the romance, from which much may be expected in the picture version. This part of "The Eyes of the World" is said to provide opportunities for an exhibition of much daring horsemanship. For these scenes two of the greatest riders in the country were engaged by Clune, the producer, and the result is said to be embodied in several scenes never before shown in photo-drama. An elaborate musical score is a feature of the production.

Hart in Cowboy Make-Up.

William S. Hart, who appears at the Columbia in person tomorrow night, is just finishing a comprehensive tour of the chief cities of the country, a trip that was commenced four weeks ago at Los Angeles. The tour has carried the famous Thomas H. Ince-Triangle photoplay star as far east as Washington, New York and Boston, to the north as far as Minneapolis, and to the northwest country. From Portland Hart will jump to San Francisco, and after spending a few hours in that city will return to Los Angeles to resume the making of photoplays under the direction of Thomas H. Ince.

In his appearance before Portland fans Hart will be seen in his familiar cowboy make-up—the real Hart of the screen, with wide-brimmed Stetson, fuzzy chaps, flapping, flowing bandana about his sun-tanned throat, and with spurs clanking at his feet. Patrons of the Columbia next Wednesday will be come personally acquainted with "Bill" Hart of filmdom. Hart will speak concerning his motion-picture work, and there will be displayed on the screen, in addition to this talk, a specially made picture showing Hart and his film associates making one of the well-liked Ince-Triangle photoplays of western life at Inceville, Cal.

Jan Hay, Assistant Director.

In order that every detail in connection with the intimate war scenes of Pickford's forthcoming Arterart production, "The Little American," should be correct, Cecil B. De Mille, the director, induced Captain Jan Hay Beith of the British army, and author of the story, "The First 100,000," personally to supervise these scenes.

Captain Beith happened to be in Los Angeles on a lecture tour, and hearing that Mr. De Mille was staging Miss Pickford's new patriotic story, "The Little American," immediately offered to put his knowledge of modern warfare at the disposal of the director.

The scenes depicted the French army being driven back by the invading Germans through a French village.

Fairbanks Buys Bonds.

Douglas Fairbanks has purchased $100,000 worth of Liberty Loan bonds, from the Guaranty Trust Company, his New York bankers. John Emerson, Arterart director and scenario writer, Anita Loose, have each purchased $10,000 worth of bonds and the rest of the Fairbanks organization are about to invest some of their earnings in these patriotic bonds. This is the result of Fairbanks' recent lengthy talk with his entire organization on their duty to the American flag.

That Next Chaplin Picture.

Here's the start of the latest Chaplin—the title of which is not announced.

Charlie meets with a merry maiden in a cabaret, uses his eyes to effect, simper and smirks, and elements of surprise are promised from that point on. Mutual describes the picture as a "scream."

Of course, Edna Purviance is the leading lady, having the part of the merry maiden, and big Eric Campbell is seen as the waiter, who attempts to spoil Charlie's plans for unrestrained joy.

The release date has not yet been announced.

Screen Gossip.

One theater boasts of a pianist who plays "Holmes and Spence" when the "Railroad Raiders," "The Lass of the Lumberlands" or one of those elaborate railroad stories are being screened; "In the Glass, O My Darling" whenever the Ince vampire wends her sinuous way across the stage, and falls sympathetically behind a few bars when the star is put in jail.

Charlotte Burton, well known to the filmgoers as an American heroine and heavy, recently filed suit against Essanay for $25,200. Miss Burton alleges that the Chicago concern took her from her happy home in Santa Barbara, Cal., brought her to Chicago and then failed to live up to its contract.

When the French picture play, "A Naked Soul," was shown to the reviewers in the projection-room of World-Pictures Brady-Made there was a practically unanimous chorus of superlative commendation. The acting of Susan Grandalaise (the sweetest girl in Europe) and the other principals in a fine cast was spoken of in the highest of terms, while the direction of Louis Mercanton came in for unmitigated praise as a model for many directors better known in America.

ALIENS MUST MOVE OUT

ENEMIES LIVING NEAR NAVY-YARD AND BARRACKS WARNED.

Hotels May Be Affected by Order, as Most of Them Are Within Half Mile of Some Armory.

TACOMA, Wash., June 4.—(Special.)—All alien enemies living within one-half mile of the Puget Sound Navy-yard at Bremerton or the Army barracks at Vancouver, Wash., must change their residence by June 9 or suffer arrest.

That announcement was made by United States Marshal Boyle today after he had received instructions from the Department of Justice at Washington. Mr. Boyle said that the order would be rigidly enforced.

A point not made clear by the order is whether or not state armories will be protected in the same way as the Navy-yard or barracks. Mr. Boyle will ask further information regarding this.

If armories are so protected it may have the effect of barring out travelers who are not citizens of the United States, as most of the hotels in Northwest cities are within a half-mile radius of armories.

It is said that the order as interpreted for barracks and Navy-yards will affect a considerable number of persons.

Instructions received in Portland are to the effect that armories are included in the order prescribing the zone forbidden to alien enemies. Germans who have not received permits will not be allowed within one-half mile of the armory in Portland.
