WHEAT GOSPEL SPREAD

MRS. JENNIE KEMP RETURNS FROM TRIP IN YAMHILL COUNTY.

People Everywhere Eager to Join in Movement for Wheatless Oregon. Tour Lasts Ten Days.

After a 10-day tour of Yamhill County, spreading the plea for a wheatless Oregon, Mrs. Jennie Kemp reports to the state food administration that old and young everywhere joined heartily in the good cause.

The substance of the report of Mrs. Kemp, who is a Portland woman, and one of the food administration's loyal campaigners, is here given: As a result of an evening meeting at Amity the men of the audience began to lay plans for the return of all available white flour. They expressed the hope that Amity could gather a carload of flour for return.

At Williamsburg several automobile loads of residents gathered at an open-air meeting before the hotel. Keen interest in the wheatless crusade was evident.

The schools of Sheridan were visited and in the afternoon women of the town filled the Red Cross workroom to hear the message. The big meeting here was held in the theater in the evening. Mrs. Knickerbocker, chairman of the women's committee of the Council of Defense, presiding.

More than 800 pupils of the schools of McMinnville were addressed during Mrs. Kemp's stay there.

The county tour closed at Lafayette, where keen interest in ways and means of serving the country through food conservation was displayed by the citizens.

NEW FIRE LAW ORDERED

PERSONAL LIABILITY FOR PREVENTABLE BLAZES IS AIM.

Ordinance to Be Drafted and Presented to Council Will Penalize Carelessness and Neglect.

Following conferences with members of the fire prevention committee, Acting Mayor Bigelow instructed City Attorney LaRoche to draft an ordinance, which, if passed by the Council, will fix personal liability for the cost of extinguishing a preventable fire and will fix individual responsibility for all consequences due to carelessness or neglect.

The ordinance will be similar to measures in force in Cleveland, New York and the state of Pennsylvania, which are said to have resulted in a great reduction of loss through fire due to carelessness of individuals.

The proposed ordinance will affect all persons who refuse to obey orders issued by the Fire Marshal to remove fire hazards. Should a person fail to comply with such an order and a fire follows on the property, the city will be empowered to collect a sum equivalent to the cost of extinguishing the blaze. This cost will include the wages of the firemen while working at the fire, a reasonable amount as rental for the use of the apparatus of the city and the cost of water and other material used in putting out the fire, with an additional 10 per cent as an overhead and maintenance charge.

Damage resulting to property by virtue of carelessness or failure of another property owner to obey the orders of the fire marshal will be assessed to the person responsible for the fire. This assessment can be collected by a civil suit in courts.
