Countdown to Super Sunday

the Denver Broncos 43-8.

After Seattle (14-4) and New England (14-4) won their conference title games, some Las Vegas sports books had the Seahawks - heading to the franchise's third Super Bowl - as 1-point favorites, while others made the game a pick 'em.

New England reached its eighth Super Bowl, equaling the Dallas Cowboys and Pittsburgh Steelers for most in league history. It's the sixth time in the past 14 years the Patriots have made it this far; they won trophies after the 2001, 2003 and 2004 seasons

But they lost in their past two Super Bowl appearances, after the 2007 and 2011 seasons, both times against Eli Manning and the New York Giants.

"It's hard to compare, year to year. I think every situation's different," the 37-year-old Brady said. "We've had a lot of good teams in the past. This one is going to have to win a very important game to kind of leave our legacy."

The last time these two teams met was in October 2012, when Wilson was a rookie who threw for the go-ahead touchdown with less than 90 seconds left, Sherman was not yet as highly regarded for his comeback play - or as widely known for his confidence - but intercepted Brady, and Seattle won 24-23. That game was best known for what happened afterward: Sherman's taunting tweet aimed at Brady.

Obituaries

In Loving Memory

Fannie Mae Stokes

A memorial service for Fannie Mae Greenwood Stokes, who died Dec. 23, 2014 at the age of 100, will be held Saturday, Jan. 24 at 11 a.m. at First AME Zion Church, 4304 N. Vancouver Ave.

She was born Feb. 22, 1914 in Tatum, Texas, the 5th of 13 children to John Walter Greenwood and Hattie Ann Whitten Greenwood.

She was known throughout the community and was affectionately called "Aunt Fan," as she was always willing to give her time and personal resources to ensure her family's needs were met.

In the early 1940s she worked as a certified welder in the Kaiser shipyards. She also had a long career at the county hospital, now known as the Oregon Health Science Center. Working diligently, she was upgraded to and honored as the first Negro to handle medical instruments for sterilizing, cleaning, and processing before being used for surgery. Fannie was a faithful member of the First AME Zion Church where she served for many years as a Deaconess.

Preceding her in death were her loving husband James Stokes Sr., as well as all of her siblings.
